UK INDEPENDENCE PARTY
EUROPEAN ELECTIONS MANIFESTO
JUNE 2004

ROGER KNAPMAN

The UK Independence Party is the only moderate, democratic party to advocate Britain's withdrawal from the European Union. Founded in 1993, the party has gained support from the across the 'Big 3' parties - Labour, Liberal Democrats and Conservatives - to the point where it is now the nation's 4th largest and fastest growing political party with over 20,000 members. At the last Euro elections in 1999 the party gained three Members of the European Parliament, and since then they have been at the forefront of the fight to bring the truth about the European Union to the attention of the British electorate.

Since 1999, the European Union has changed dramatically. It has grown from 15 to 25 members, and the way in which it is governed has changed dramatically with the imposition upon Britain of the Nice Treaty. It is about to change significantly once again, with the proposed EU Constitution set to be finalised only 7 days after you cast your vote in these elections on the 10th June.

The government has recently announced that it will, after all, grant a referendum on the Constitution. What is clear, however, is that the government will sign it, and will, in concert with the European Commission, spend millions of pounds of your money on promoting it as part of an 'information campaign'.

The EU already costs us enough, without this propaganda flooding our country as it has flooded every country due to hold an EU related referendum in the past. Every hour of every day, you, the British taxpayer, contribute £1.8 million to the European Union. Put another way, that is enough to build a new, fully equipped hospital every 3 days here in the UK. At a time when our public services are dangerously overstretched, it is amazing that voters have never been asked to approve such extravagant spending, especially when it brings such little return. In fact, the British electorate has been asked only once; in 1975, when there was a referendum on whether the UK should remain within the then Common Market. Following repeated promises that there 'would be no impact upon British sovereignty', the British people voted to stay in. As of today, however, more than half of the electorate, 24,347,703 people, have never had a say, being too young in 1973 to vote.

A vote for the UK Independence Party is a vote to stop this, to bring it to a halt. We are not anti-European, simply anti-EU. We simply believe that the best people to run Britain are the British people themselves, through our elected parliament at Westminster. So, on June 10th, I ask you to lend us your vote. A large vote for UKIP will de-rail the EU Constitution, and send a message, both to Mr Blair and to the rest of Europe, that the UK is prepared to defend its democratic traditions, and will not meekly surrender to European federalism. There is no longer any question that Britain would be better off out. Help us to send that message to our government.

Yours sincerely,

Roger Knapman
Leader

U.K. INDEPENDENCE PARTY

UKIP and the European Union

The UK Independence Party advocates Britain's full withdrawal from the European Union in favour of a free-trade agreement similar to those enjoyed by other non-EU states including Switzerland, Norway, Iceland and Mexico. There will be no effect on jobs if we leave - this has been confirmed by the European Commission. In any case, we buy far more from the European Union states than we sell to them; they would not want to lose such a valuable market. After all, the UK is the world's 4th largest economy in its own right.

Britain's MEPs currently represent only 11% of the voting strength in the European Parliament, and Britain will shortly lose one of its two European Commissioners. Our influence in the European Union, which was never strong, is constantly being diluted as the EU empire expands. Our manifesto pledge, therefore, is simple and straightforward, and indeed has been used elsewhere. We present as our election pledge the following promise, which is extracted from the Labour Party manifesto of 1983, and which is as true now as it was then:

"Geography and history determine that Britain is part of Europe, but the European Union, which does not even include the whole of Western Europe, was never devised to suit us. Our membership of it has made it more difficult for us to deal with our economic and industrial problems, and has weakened our ability to achieve the objectives of our international policy."

Any future British government is bound to find continued membership a most serious obstacle to the fulfilment of its policies. In particular the rules of the Treaty of Rome are bound to conflict with our strategy for economic growth and full employment, our proposals on industrial policy and for increasing trade.

For all these reasons, British withdrawal from the Community is the right policy for Britain. That is our commitment."

Of course, the European Union has changed since 1983. In the intervening years, it has developed a diplomatic service, a flag, an anthem, an army, a police force, a judiciary, and many other aspects of statehood, the most recent being its attempts to grant itself a Constitution. The time has come to say NO.

A vote for UKIP is the only way to say NO.

UKIP is committed to a Britain which is free, democratic, independent and, most importantly, is governed by the British people through our parliament at Westminster. We believe that British taxpayers money should be spent on British taxpayers, on their hospitals, schools and pensions. Just imagine what we could achieve if we saved the annual £11bn contribution to the European Union, most of which is lost in fraud and corruption according to the EU's own auditors, and spent the money here.

On June 10th, SAY NO to European Union. Vote UKIP.
