INTRODUCTION

Dr. Geoffrey Clements
PARTY LEADER

BRINGING FULFILMENT TO THE LIFE OF THE NATION THROUGH GOVERNMENT BASED ON NATURAL LAW

"THE BEST GOVERNMENT IS NATURE'S GOVERNMENT - Natural Law - which governs our universe with perfect order and without a problem. Natural Law governs all life, from the galaxies to the solar system to our planet Earth; and certainly our own lives are governed by Natural Law. The Natural Law Party has the knowledge to bring the support of Natural Law to every individual and the whole of the United Kingdom. Our national life will be in harmony with Natural Law, and everyone will enjoy peace, happiness and prosperity. We have the scientific knowledge to create a government as efficient and nourishing as the government of Nature."

A turning point in politics and government

Today we stand at a turning point in politics and government. A growing number of people are realising that government is not serving us well, and that the political ideas on which government is run are outdated. It is clear that the traditional political philosophies of Left and Right are no longer relevant in the affairs of running a country.

There is an urgent need for this vacuum to be filled. For the sake of the future of our nation, this void must be filled with a new approach that is both intelligent and effective.

This change in the political mood of the country was expressed by Lord Rees-Mogg, a leading political commentator, in the following words: "This is probably going to be one of the elections that reveals a shift of consciousness in British politics." (The Times, 20 March 1997)

Even the most committed supporters of the traditional parties are now realising that these parties have no fresh practical ideas to achieve results. If governments run by the old political parties have not fulfilled their electoral promises in the past, why should they be able to do so now?

An urgent need for new principles of government

There is an urgent need for new principles in the field of government, so that the fields of politics and government can be transformed from their present tarnished state into something worthy of governing the country.

Government is there to govern, to move life forward, to solve problems, to create progress. However, government cannot do this unless it has the intelligence and knowledge to do so. The incapacity of government today results from the completely inadequate knowledge on which it is based.

It is naive to imagine that the same old approach can bring fulfilment to the nation. How can the knowledge and policies that have contributed to the growth of so many problems suddenly solve them? Yet this is what the electorate is expected to believe, election after election.

Government is not fit to govern if it cannot solve problems

Government has the authority to create laws and administer the nation. It should be self-sufficient to promote and create the well-being and progress of everyone.

If the government claims that it has insufficient resources to fulfil its pledges, it is not a proper government, it is not a successful government. In this country, the government is spending 300 billion every year (43% of our collective earnings), the national debt is at an unprecedented level (380 billion), and yet the government is still unable to solve the problems that beset national life.

Recent reports show that runaway growth in the health and social security budgets (two of the largest areas of public expenditure) will mean that the next government is almost certain to overshoot its public-spending targets. In virtually every department of government the picture is the same.

This situation is clearly absurd. No other organisation would be allowed to continue in this fashion; it would have been declared bankrupt many years ago. This is precisely what government is: it is bankrupt, and this bankruptcy arises from a bankruptcy of knowledge.

Only a new seed will yield a new crop

Only by basing government on new knowledge can we rid us of this unfortunate situation. This is why the Natural Law Party was formed - to bring reliable and more comprehensive knowledge into the field of government.

Nature's Government - the perfect government

Everything in the universe is already administered by Natural Law. There is a natural hierarchy in the administration of the universe, from the universe as a whole, to our galaxy and solar system, to our planet Earth.

This hierarchy in Nature's administration results in perfect integration and harmony in the functioning of all parts of the cosmos. What we have been lacking so far is the application of this principle in national and local government, as well as in international affairs.

Complete knowledge of Natural Law is now available

The knowledge of Natural Law now available is complete enough to create a system of administration based on Natural Law and to structure a government that utilises the same infinite organising power of Nature that is already silently administering the entire universe without a problem.

Modern science has revealed that all the innumerable Laws of Nature that govern the infinite diversity making up our universe have their source in the Unified Field, a field of pure, infinite intelligence. The theories of modern physics have revealed the existence of the Unified Field of all the Laws of Nature, and, as these theories continue to evolve, they unveil more and more knowledge about the qualities of this field of pure intelligence.

Modern science deals with the physical world as co-ordinated by the Laws of Nature. The ancient knowledge of Vedic Science (recently brought to light in a complete form by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi), deals not only with the physical world, but also with the basis of the physical world in the field of intelligence or consciousness. Through Maharishi's Vedic Science, complete knowledge of Natural Law is available, with the procedures to enliven Natural Law in every field of life. Maharishi's Vedic Science reveals that the field of infinite intelligence that modern science has discovered as the Unified Field resides within everyone in their own consciousness. Maharishi's Vedic Science thus integrates the objective and subjective means of gaining knowledge.

When individual consciousness is fully developed, individual intelligence becomes aligned with the infinite intelligence of Nature. Fully awake consciousness results in individual thought and action fully in accord with Natural Law. Similarly, when collective consciousness is coherent and awake, the life of the nation grows to be in tune with Natural Law.

Maharishi's Vedic Science identifies 40 fundamental values of Natural Law, or modes of Nature's intelligence. A key discovery recently made in the understanding of human physiology has revealed that these 40 basic aspects of Natural Law can be precisely located in the structure and functioning of the human physiology. This discovery explains how it is possible on the physical level for human activity to be fully in tune with Natural Law. (See the section on Health.)

Time for a transformation of knowledge

The approach of modern science has led to a fragmented method of using the Laws of Nature. Specific Laws of Nature are used to produce specific effects, without taking into account the totality of Nature, and thus ignoring the cascade of other, often undesirable, effects that might be created. This fragmented approach has led to innumerable hazards in medicine, agriculture and food, industry, the environment, and indeed in all areas of modern life.

In contrast, the holistic approach of Maharishi's Vedic Science always upholds the totality of Natural Law at the same time as dealing with the specific Laws of Nature.

It is time for a transformation of knowledge itself. It is not just that the modern scientific approach is incomplete; it has even become enshrined in law. This occurred before its damage and dangers became evident, and yet the law of the land still defends technologies based on the limited approach of modern science (in the fields of medicine, agriculture and defense, for example), even when better and more comprehensive alternatives are known. The programmes of the Natural Law Party are based on the complete holistic knowledge of Natural Law.

Government is the innocent mirror of the national consciousness

The success of government depends on the level of creativity, dynamism and coherence in the nation. The government is an innocent mirror of the collective consciousness of the nation. If the nation is not strong and integrated, no government policy, no matter how wise or how well conceived, will be able to generate progress and success.

Until now, this important element has been missing from the functioning of government, and, as a result, government has continued to be beset by problems. This is why governments have continued to perform with lack of efficiency and effectiveness and have not succeeded in fulfilling their responsibilities to the nation.

Natural Law and the Constitution of the Universe

An examination of the qualities of the Unified Field reveals it to be the "Constitution of the Universe" - the home of all the Laws of Nature that govern everything in the cosmos. (See section entitled Constitution of the Universe). Enlivening this field of infinite intelligence in individual and collective consciousness means that this governing intelligence of Nature is available in our lives, individually and collectively.

Creating coherence in national consciousness - one fundamental solution to all problems in the nation

The Natural Law Party therefore regards the enlivenment of the Unified Field of Natural Law in the national consciousness as a priority, in order to create a coherent, positive and integrated nation. The first action of a Natural Law Party government will be to implement a reliable and tested technology to create this effect in national consciousness. This technology, which has been examined rigorously by scientific research, involves setting up a group of experts in Maharishi's Transcendental Meditation and TM-Sidhi programme, including Yogic Flying. The creation of such a group is easy to accomplish, and the results are reliable and profound.

A group of experts in Yogic Flying will have an immediate and lasting effect in the life of the nation. Life will grow to be in tune with Natural Law, success will become the hallmark of the nation, and effective solutions will be found to the deep and intractable problems that we currently face in all areas of life.

Such a group of experts in the Transcendental Meditation and TM-Sidhi programme has therefore been termed "A Group for a Government". A group of 7,000 experts in this coherence-creating technology will make government really competent to improve every aspect of the life of the nation.

Demonstration project in Washington, D.C., validating the effectiveness of the Group for a Government technology

In 1993, the effectiveness of the coherence-creating technology of a group of experts in Yogic Flying was demonstrated in Washington, D.C., in the USA, which is appropriately known as the "crime capital of America".

4,000 experts in Yogic Flying assembled in Washington, D.C., over a period of two months. The influence of positivity and coherence that they created was sufficiently strong to reduce violent crime by 20% from predicted trends and reverse the declining fortunes of Congress and President Clinton. After the project finished, crime rose and conflict and dissension again overtook the American government.

This demonstration project replicated the results of 40 previous studies, including another in Washington, D.C., in the 1980s. It is interesting to note that despite the overwhelming scientific evidence, which was scrutinised by an independent panel of scientists, both the local Washington government and the USA federal government ignored these findings. As a consequence, they continue to struggle with a rising crime rate and problems in national government.

British study confirms this effective method of reducing crime

A study published in 1996 in a leading British crime journal, Intelligence, Crime and Law (1996, vol 2.3, pages 165-174), has given a firm confirmation of just how effective a group of experts in Yogic Flying is in reducing crime and negativity. This study shows that in 1988 the crime rate in Merseyside was significantly reduced compared to 1987 and previous years, as a result of a group of people in nearby Skelmersdale and others in Liverpool engaged in the daily practice of Maharishi's Transcendental Meditation and TM-Sidhi programme, including Yogic Flying.

In each of the subsequent years between 1989 to 1993, Merseyside crime trends were significantly better than the national crime rate.

In 1987 Merseyside had the third highest crime rate of all 11 metropolitan areas in England and Wales; in 1993, by the end of the study, it had the lowest crime rate of all the metropolitan areas. Overall, during the six-year period of the study, crime in Merseyside fell by 15% while crime in the rest of the country rose by 45%. This represents a 60% relative drop in crime.

This study was the first of its kind to be conducted on crime trends in Great Britain. The powerful statistical technique of time series analysis, which was used in the study, clearly showed that the dramatic relative reduction in crime rate was not due to other factors, including unemployment, policing methods, population trends, or other strategies such as drug rehabilitation initiatives. The research establishes that the group of experts in Yogic Flying was the key factor in reducing crime.

The full creative potential of everyone as the most important national resource

In every field of national life, our most important resource is human creativity and intelligence. The effective and intelligent use of all other resources depends on how we utilise the human potential of the nation. If we do not allow that potential to be expressed, then no amount of finance or material resources can ever compensate. Yet, at present, we do little to cultivate this precious resource.

Let us give two illustrations:

Firstly, it is well known in modern psychology that we generally use only a very small fraction of our full creative potential, perhaps around 5%. Little or no systematic attention is placed on this factor in education. Therefore, individuality in every organisation, and in the nation as a whole, we are acting with only about one twentieth or even less of our full capacity. We cannot even begin to calculate the resulting loss to progress, happiness and prosperity.

The Natural Law Party regards the full development of the consciousness of every student as the fundamental of education; without focusing on this element, education is meaningless. The Natural Law Party advocates that the most effective method for developing the full creative intelligence of every student and teacher should be introduced through education. There is abundant scientific research showing that the Transcendental Meditation and TM-Sidhi programme is the most effective known method in this area and is therefore one of the programmes that the Natural Law Party will promote in education (see section on Education).

For all areas of administration, the Natural Law Party includes in its policies tested and effective programmes to unfold and use this most precious of all resources - the full creative potential of the whole population.

Another example is in the field of health. Every year, millions of people in this country unnecessarily suffer from serious illness and early mortality. This is simply because inadequate attention is paid to prevention in our health care service, and because we persist in using medicines and other forms of treatment that create serious negative side-effects, including major illness and death, even though there is abundant evidence to show that other effective methods are available that do not have these negative side-effects. (By some estimates, about one third of all illness in developed countries is caused by medical intervention.) The loss to national life is again incalculable, even setting aside the unnecessary suffering and hardship experienced by millions of our population.

The Natural Law Party's health care policies focus on prevention and the use of the most effective health care programmes, emphasising the best of natural health care and thus avoiding many of the adverse and life-threatening side-effects of current methods of medicine (see section on Health).

Similar strategies are employed in all areas of administration, as outlined in the following pages.

Placing the health and happiness of everyone at the heart of politics

This emphasis on the expression of the full creative potential of every person means that the Natural Law Party places the health, happiness and fulfilment of everyone at the heart of politics. Currently, political parties place so much emphasis on administrative procedures and financial issues, that human factors remain a secondary concern of government. Inevitably, everyone is frustrated because the government does not appear to be concerned with their personal fulfilment. The Natural Law Party will remedy this unfortunate situation by introducing programmes that allow everyone to develop and express their full potential in their chosen field of life, and by making sure that life is always put before political, financial, or administrative concerns.

Prosperity on the ground of creativity and happiness

The primary target of a Natural Law Party government is fulfilment for every citizen. We recognise that the pursuit of wealth without inner happiness and stability exhausts the life of the nation.

Government has become so focused on financial issues that national life has become overtaken by the notion that economics is the basis of life. Almost every index of success is in financial terms; even the overall performance of the nation is in terms of its overall economic output rather than its quality of life. The whole field of life has become sacrificed for money.

The policies of the Natural Law Party remedy this imbalance, placing life at the basis of economics, and giving the foundation for true prosperity, which will naturally flourish on the ground of creativity born of happiness.

All-party government - bringing an end to conflict in politics

The Natural Law Party will introduce an effective form of all-party government. The current situation, in which only the ruling party has a real say in government, disenfranchises a large proportion (usually a majority) of the population. Opposition is built into the very process of government, resulting in a high level of inertia and seriously blunting the effectiveness of all aspects of government.

Until now, an all-party government would have been difficult, if not impossible, to implement due to the high degree of stress and incoherence in collective consciousness. By having as a priority the formation of A Group for a Government - a permanent group of experts in the Transcendental Meditation and TM-Sidhi programme - the Natural Law Party will create an integrated national consciousness, on the ground of which a true all-party government can be formed, where the best minds from all parts of the political spectrum can make their contribution.

Using talented experts to run government departments

Another new feature of government that the Natural Law Party will introduce is to appoint creative and talented experts to run the various departments of government. Those who have demonstrated brilliant leadership in their careers, irrespective of their political allegiances, will be invited to head the relevant government departments. In this way, the most capable, experienced and gifted people can use their talents to bring success and fulfilment to the nation.

The five essentials of successful government

In order for government to secure its success, it must ensure that national life is in tune with Natural Law. The infinite evolutionary organising power of Nature will then be available for structuring the progress and fulfilment of all areas of life in the nation. Because life in the nation today is not lived in accord with Natural Law, government lacks the ingredients essential for successful administration.

There are five key elements that are at present missing from government and which should be introduced to bring the support of Natural Law to the individual and society. These five ingredients may be summarised as follows:

1. The development of consciousness, which is provided by Maharishi's Transcendental Meditation and TM-Sidhi programme, so that everyone can express their full potential and enjoy happiness and fulfilment in the field of life.
2. Training everyone to assess the level of balance or imbalance in their physiology, so that they can gauge their state of health and take any necessary remedial action to avert illness. This is easily accomplished through a simple and easily learned method of self-pulse reading (part of Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health). Such a simple strategy will avoid untold illness and suffering, maintain good health throughout the population and also result in substantial savings in the health budget.

1. Maintaining the collective health of the nation, through groups of experts in the coherence-creating technology of Yogic Flying
2. Ensuring that the life of the individual and the nation are in tune with Natural Law, in the immediate environment and throughout the cosmos. Human life must function in harmony with its cosmic counterparts - the planets and stars - and any unfavourable planetary influences must be neutralised

3. Making sure that town and country planning takes into account proper principles of Natural Law, so that one's surroundings at home and at work, and in every environment, ensure that life in each locality is healthy, happy, and successful. In particular, it is important to ensure that all government buildings and entrances to the country are in accord with Natural Law, to make sure there is no hampering influence on the good fortune of the population. For example, the orientation of government buildings is a crucial factor. According to the Vedic science of Maharishi's Shukra Yogi Veda, southern entrances, for instance, act as a steady drain on the good fortune of the occupants. (It is interesting to note that these principles are found in some of Britain's cultural traditions. In East Anglia, for example, night up to the nineteenth century, it was acknowledged that buildings should have their entrances to the east, south-facing entrances were avoided as creating undesirable effects.)

For a fuller description of these five elements currently missing from government, please see section on Health.

Support of Natural Law means good fortune

To raise the country out of problems, and to ensure the prosperity, progress and good fortune of the nation, in the future, it is important that all areas of the knowledge of Natural Law are given proper attention, and all necessary programmes implemented to bring life, in tune with Natural Law. The support of Natural Law means good fortune, both for the individual and for the nation as a whole. Support of Nature means: everything becomes favourable for unrestricted progress and smooth success. This has always been considered to be beyond the control of governments. Only the Natural Law Party has the policies to safeguard the good fortune of the nation; there is no way to rise above problems other than by bringing life in accord with Natural Law.

Natural Law Party government will prevent problems from arising

The Natural Law Party is offering a new definition of government. Any government worthy of the name government should have the ability to prevent problems. Otherwise, it is not a government; it is a foothold of situations and circumstances.

Any political party that cannot demonstrate that its policies will prevent problems and which cannot provide the scientific validation for the effectiveness of its programmes should stand aside and not present itself as a candidate for governing the nation.

It is remarkable that the old political parties, who have demonstrated their failure government after government, return to the population with the same agenda to ask for their vote yet again, and ask them to bear their incompetence for yet another term in office.

This irresponsibility should alert every voter to make his or her choice carefully, and only after gaining deep and thorough knowledge about each party. In the past, all parties had the same record of limited success on the basis of limited knowledge. Every voter now has a new alternative, the Natural Law Party, which offers the new element of flawless administration - the ability to govern as efficiently and perfectly as the government of the universe, Natural Law.

Good government means maintaining a strong, integrated national consciousness. Then negative trends will not arise, just as darkness cannot survive in the presence of light.

The Natural Law Party has the competence to maintain a strong influence of peace, positivity and harmony in Britain. The Natural Law Party will create a government that will indeed be a sovereign authority, in whose domain problems are easily resolved and further problems simply do not arise.

Britain's responsibility in the world family

Britain has traditionally been proud of its role on the international stage; the Commonwealth is a substantial forum for international affairs, and the United Kingdom has maintained its position in the United Nations as a permanent member of the Security Council.

However, in the United Kingdom should be aware that the so-called "Security Council" is a place of competition to create and sell arms that wreak destruction around the world. Throughout the world, it is common knowledge that these leading nations, who are also the main arms manufacturers, fuel many conflicts by supplying arms to both sides. The United Nations is a convenient vehicle for these nations to hide behind world opinion.

The reason for this behaviour is clear: the government can only act in accordance with the quality of national consciousness. If national consciousness is stressed due to the violation of the Laws of Nature by the population, it is inevitable that the government will also violate the Laws of Nature and become a source of negativity in the world.

Unfortunately, such negative action by the government also reflects on the quality of life in Britain. "As you sow, so shall you reap" is a well-known proverb in all cultures. When the government promotes the sale of arms to other countries, this automatically leads to increased violence, crime and terrorism in our own country.

The United Kingdom should lead the way in remedying this deplorable situation. Coherence must be created in the collective consciousness, and on this basis we must stop selling arms and instead become the purveyors of peace.

The Natural Law Party, having a presence in 50 countries, is making a strong stand to end the era of negativity and destruction produced by the sale of arms and other life-damaging merchandise, and to promote throughout the world a system of government that will restore the true dignity of life.

The Natural Law Party as a unifying force in world politics

The United Kingdom was the first country to see the formation of the Natural Law Party (in 1992, just before the General Election of that year). The party is now active in 50 countries, and three annual international conventions have been held. Because the Natural Law Party bases its policies not on political ideas, but on a practical, scientific approach, the Natural Law Party has universal appeal.

As a result, the Natural Law Party can itself be an important means to create unity and integration in the family of nations. Introducing Natural Law based programmes brings fulfilment to administration in each country; the universal principles of Natural Law apply to government everywhere. As the values of Natural Law rise in each country, harmony grows among nations.

Solving the dilemma in Europe - strengthening both sovereignty and unity

The present political battleground regarding the European Union is an expression of the need to reconcile two critical factors: unity and sovereignty. The widely-held opinion is that it is not possible to uphold both simultaneously; they are seen as mutually exclusive.

On the one hand, the growing unity in Europe has brought distinct advantages, such as the lifting of trade restrictions and the freedom of travel and residence. On the other hand, there is great alarm that Britain is rapidly losing its sovereignty, together with all the attendant risks that this involves. Already, it is clear that many of the rules and regulations devised and administered from Brussels are not in our national interest.

In reality, unity and sovereignty are not opposing concepts, they are complementary. Everywhere in Nature we see the co-existence of differences; opposite values are not at odds, they contribute to the richness of Nature.

Thus because Natural Law has two complementary values: the universal values of Natural Law, which is the same everywhere and at all times, and the specific values of Natural Law governing the infinite multiplicity of forms and activities found throughout the cosmos. Everything in Nature has its sovereignty, and yet contributes to the unified wholeness of the universe.

This principle of Nature's functioning, when applied to the field of government, solves the apparent dichotomy of interest between unity and sovereignty in the European Union. The creation of coherence in the national consciousness and the implementation of Natural Law programmes in each area of administration ensure that life in each country is unified, happy and successful. Every voter now has a new alternative, the Natural Law Party, which offers the new element of flawless administration - the ability to govern as efficiently and perfectly as the government of the universe, Natural Law.

UK MANIFESTO

A GROUP FOR A GOVERNMENT

1. CREATING A HARMONIOUS ATMOSPHERE WHERE GOVERNMENT DOES NOT MAKE MISTAKES

The Natural Law Party offers a simple formula to create a perfect government capable of satisfying everyone. The formula is: establish A Group for a Government. The first act of the Natural Law Party when it takes office will be to establish a group of 7,000 Yogic Flyers in Britain, who will create a highly coherent national consciousness, bring the support of the evolutionary power of Natural Law to national life, and create an atmosphere in which everything will be right, positive and harmonious in our government. This is what is meant by A Group for a Government.

By immediately establishing groups of Yogic Flyers the Natural Law Party government will create a positive and harmonious atmosphere in the nation in which it will be easy for our government to avoid making mistakes. The nation is now clouded with problems. But with the establishment of A Group for a Government we will have a clear sky and a new sunshine to make successful policies and programmes for all good to the nation.

A good government should maintain a strong, coherent national consciousness so that future problems will be prevented and existing problems will easily get resolved.

All-party government of the best experts in the nation

We will invite the greatest experts in the nation to lead this new government of harmony and positivity, bringing the geniuses of Britain into our nation's leadership for the first time. These talented individuals from every field of life will form an All-party Government which transcends the bitterness and conflict of party politics, creating a truly national government that serves the interests of all groups and all parties, and brings satisfaction to every citizen. With the atmosphere of unity and harmony in national consciousness created by A Group for a Government, the success of the all-party government will be assured.

Bringing support of Natural Law to the nation

With the establishment of A Group for a Government, national consciousness will become aligned with the Government of Nature, and will therefore enjoy the support of the infinite creative intelligence and organising power of Natural Law. With support of Natural Law rising in national life, the problems of the nation will disappear, as darkness disappears with the onset of light. The government will quickly rise to become a perfect government, as efficient and effective as the Government of the Universe, which perfectly administers everything in creation without problems or mistakes. See Hierarchy of Government.

A GROUP FOR A GOVERNMENT

2. HOW A GROUP FOR A GOVERNMENT WORKS: ENLIVENING THE UNIFIED FIELD OF NATURAL LAW - THE CONSTITUTION OF THE UNIVERSE

Creating a perfect government through A Group for a Government is based upon the discovery by both modern science and ancient Vedic Science of the Unified Field of Natural Law - the Constitution of the Universe.

Both understandings, modern and ancient, locate the source of Nature's perfect order in a single self-interacting field at the foundation of all the Laws of Nature. This field sequentially creates from within itself all the diverse Laws of Nature governing life at every level of the manifest universe. This infinitely dynamic level of Nature's intelligence, which is present everywhere in every grain of creation, is the Constitution of the Universe - the Government of Nature (refer to appendices 2-5 on the Constitution of the Universe).

Just as nations are governed by their national constitution, so the universe is governed by the Constitution of the Universe. All levels of the hierarchy of the universe, from the galaxies to the solar system to our planet earth, are governed by the infinite organising power of the Constitution of the Universe (see Hierarchy of Government).

The quality of government depends on the quality of the national Consciousness. A disintegrated national consciousness creates a disintegrated and ineffective government. An integrated national consciousness will create an integrated and successful government

Because this absolute system of perfect administration exists at all levels of the hierarchy of the universe, any government can now achieve perfection in its administration simply by aligning itself with the Constitution of the Universe, and gaining the support of its infinite organising power.

The Unified Field of Natural Law is accessible to everyone in their own self-referral consciousness

This is now possible because of Maharishi Mahesh Yogi's discovery that the Constitution of the Universe - the Unified Field of Natural Law - is accessible to everyone in their own self-referral consciousness, Transcendental Consciousness, self-referral consciousness, is easily gained through the Transcendental Meditation and TM-Sidhi programme, which includes Yogic Flying. Through Transcendental Meditation it is possible to access the Unified Field of Natural Law, and through the TM-Sidhi programme the individual is able to enliven this most fundamental and powerful field of the universe. Yogic Flyers, who experience bubbling bliss, demonstrate this ability to perform from the level of the Unified Field of Natural Law, and enliven its unifying and nourishing influence for the whole society.

Yogic Flying enriches every level of life

Scientific research has shown that maximum brain coherence occurs during the practice of Yogic Flying. Maximum coherence during Yogic Flying indicates performance from Transcendental Consciousness - self-referral consciousness - the Unified Field of Natural Law, where infinite organising power is lively. Research has further shown that groups of individuals practising Yogic Flying together, all enjoying this very high brainwave coherence, create coherence in collective consciousness, generating a unifying and integrating effect in the life of society. This results in a decrease of negative trends throughout society, such as crime, accidents, sickness, unemployment, and economic hardship, and an increase in positive social, economic and political trends. The most dramatic of the more than 40 scientific studies on this phenomenon have demonstrated that a group of 7,000 Yogic Flyers - the square root of 1% of the world's population - can produce this coherence-creating effect on a global scale, reducing violent and negative trends worldwide.

The Maharishi Effect - the field effect of consciousness

This extraordinary effect has been named the Maharishi Effect by the scientists who discovered it, in honour of Maharishi Mahesh Yogi who first predicted it more than 35 years ago. The Maharishi Effect is a field effect of consciousness created by the groups of practitioners of Yogic Flying, who enliven the Unified Field of Natural Law in themselves and in society. Every level of administration in the United Kingdom must have such a group of Yogic Flyers to support it - a group of 7,000 for the whole nation located in or near London, groups of about 1,000 for Scotland, Wales, and Northern Ireland, and smaller groups supporting every local authority.

Government reflects collective consciousness

The government is just a reflection of the quality of the collective consciousness of the whole population. National consciousness, national mind, the collective consciousness of all the people, governs the government in the same way as the individual mind governs the individual and the cosmic mind governs the universe. The quality of government depends on the quality of the national consciousness. A disintegrated national consciousness creates a disintegrated and ineffective government. An integrated national consciousness will create an integrated and successful government.

A Group for a Government creates integrated national consciousness resulting in perfect government

Now with A Group for a Government, it is possible for government to use a scientific approach to harness the enormously unifying power of Natural Law which perfectly integrates the ever-expanding universe.

When national consciousness becomes integrated (unified) through a group of Yogic Flyers, then automatically the government will become unified and harmonious, and will enjoy the support of the infinite organising power of all the levels in the hierarchy of the Government of Nature. A Group for a Government will create a unified and harmonious national consciousness which will in turn give rise to a perfect government free of problems and failures. This is Maharishi's Supreme Political Science, which offers now to bring fulfilment to the supreme aspirations of every sovereign government. (See publication Maharishi's Absolute Theory of Government.)

A GROUP FOR A GOVERNMENT

3. A GROUP FOR A GOVERNMENT DEMONSTRATED POLITICALLY IN MOZAMBIQUE AND SCIENTIFICALLY IN MERSEYSIDE AND WASHINGTON, D.C.

The positive effects of A Group for a Government have been demonstrated politically by President Chissano of Mozambique. When he created A Group for a Government in his nation, political peace came to the land after nearly 30 years of war and a devastating two-year drought came to an end.

A Group for a Government has also been proved scientifically in a $5.7 million 2-month demonstration project in Washington, D.C. In June-July 1993, 4,000 Yogic Flyers from 80 countries gathered in Washington to reduce crime in the world's most powerful city, which suffers from an extremely high rate of violent crime.

Official data showed a 20% reduction in total violent crime in the District of Columbia (the district that includes Washington) during June and July, compared to predicted crime levels - based on crime trends during the previous five years.

Before the Group for a Government global demonstration project began in Washington, D.C., the government of the United States was suffering from repeated mistakes, embarrassing failures and a disastrous fall in public confidence.

Following the arrival of the first group of Yogic Flyers on June 7, there was a marked upsurge in the success and effectiveness of the US Government, including a more co-operative and harmonious atmosphere in Congress, more popularity for the US government, and improved relations between the USA and other nations.

The press commented on the sudden dramatic improvement in mood in Washington, and pointed out that there seemed to be no way of explaining it. They used phrases like: "Bill Clinton's brightening sky what a difference a week makes" (New York Times) and "One may wonder whether Clinton really turned things around or if something else is going on." (The Washington Post).

A government without a means to unify the national consciousness is like a chariot with no one holding the reins. The horse will pull the chariot in all directions and the chariot will not go forward

More about the Washington project...

On the basis of previous research on coherence-creating groups of Yogic Flyers, scientists had told a public news conference in Washington that a dramatic improvement of this kind would take place when the group of Yogic Flyers assembled there. At the same time they predicted that after the assembly ended, these positive trends would begin to be reversed. This prediction too was borne out in fact. Immediately following the assembly, the atmosphere of harmony and co-operation in Washington decreased; partisan rivalry in Congress rose; and support for the Clinton Administration's foreign policy declined.

Many assemblies of Yogic Flyers such as the Washington scientific demonstration project have been held throughout the world during the past 19 years with similar success. Scientific studies on these assemblies have overwhelmingly demonstrated the power of these coherence-creating groups to improve the quality of life on the city, national and global levels.

In Britain the Maharishi Effect has been clearly demonstrated in Merseyside, as shown in the findings of the study published in 1996 in the scientific journal Psychology, Crime and Law (1996, vol. 2:3, pp.165-174). The study found that in 1988 the crime rate in Merseyside was significantly reduced compared to 1987 and previous years, as a result of a group of people in nearby Skelmersdale and others in Liverpool practising the Transcendental Meditation and TM-Sidhi programme of Maharishi Mahesh Yogi. In each of the years 1989 to 1993 Merseyside crime rate performed significantly better than the national crime rate while the group of experts in Transcendental Meditation and Yogic Flying was maintained at the same level. In 1987 Merseyside had the third highest crime rate in England and Wales; in 1993, by the end of the study, it had the lowest crime rate of all the 11 metropolitan areas.

Overall, during the six-year period of the study, crime in Merseyside fell by 15% while crime in the rest of the country rose by 45%.

The study used the powerful statistical technique of time-series analysis which showed that the group of Yogic Flyers was the key factor in reducing crime. The results showed that the reduction in crime was not due to other factors such as unemployment, police practice, population trends, and drug rehabilitation initiatives.

All these validations of the Maharishi Effect demonstrate clearly that A Group for a Government is the basis for successful government and a peaceful, happy world, free from violence and crime.

A GROUP FOR A GOVERNMENT

4. A DEPARTMENT OF THE GOVERNMENT TO HANDLE THE WELL BEING OF THE NATION

Governments have been administering society through different channels of authority represented by different ministries. What is missing is a department of government to handle the well-being of the nation as a whole.

A government without a means to unify the national consciousness is like a chariot with no one holding the reins. The horse will pull the chariot in all directions and the chariot will not go forward. If the prime minister gives his energy and attention to the different ministries but does not know how to administer the nation as a whole, he will never be able to save the ministries from weakness caused by disorder in national consciousness.

The future prime minister of the Natural Law Party government, Dr Geoffrey Clements, is an expert in creating a coherent, positive and harmonious national consciousness through A Group for a Government, so that problems will be prevented and no negative trends will arise.

Need for a greater intelligence than human intelligence to manage the infinite complexity of national life

One great challenge to every government is the management of the essentially infinite complexity of life in the nation, with millions of people possessing diverging tendencies, needs and desires. Administering this infinitely complex structure of human societies has proved over centuries to be far beyond the capability of human intelligence in any government. Therefore, it is necessary to bring a greater intelligence to the administration of national life. Natural Law, which administers the infinite complexity of the universe, is just that supreme intelligence that can handle all the complexities of national life.

The Natural Law Party will bring support of the supreme intelligence of the universe - Natural Law - to the whole nation, and then all the divergent interests of the citizens will be fulfilled and satisfaction will be enjoyed by all.

A GROUP FOR A GOVERNMENT

5. AUTOMATION IN ADMINISTRATION - ADMINISTRATION THROUGH NATURAL LAW

With A Group for a Government, we will have Automation in Administration - accomplishing everything effortlessly with the greatest efficiency and economy, without fatigue, and without problems or mistakes. The British government will administer the nation in just the same way that Nature silently administers the whole universe through the principle of least action, with maximum efficiency and economy.

The prime feature of such a perfect government will be quietly to nourish all life and spontaneously set and maintain all life in the evolutionary direction of Natural Law. Every action of our government will be promoted by the infinite organising power of Natural Law, and our nation will enjoy the same perfection of administration through Natural Law seen in the management of the whole universe.

Fulfilment to the many campaigns for an end to negative, destructive behaviour

In this country at the moment there are numerous campaigns calling for an end to some aspect of negativity in national life. Many of these campaigns command widespread support, but their success depends ultimately upon the quality of national consciousness. In a stressed, incoherent society all sorts of negative behaviour will arise. With the Natural Law Party's programme to create integrated national consciousness enjoying the full support of Natural Law, all that is positive, nourishing and evolutionary will automatically thrive.

The Natural Law Party supports all campaigns for a better quality of life - campaigns for the environment, for healthy food, for racial equality, for animal rights, for the care of the unborn child etc. - but we offer the formula to achieve the goals of these campaigns most effortlessly and quickly. Otherwise, without Natural Law programmes, even if one campaign is successful, new problems will keep on emerging. It is also impossible to resolve such problems through legislation, which is usually both costly and mainly ineffective. The only way to ensure health, happiness and prosperity for everyone now and in the future is by bringing life fully in accord with the evolutionary value of Natural Law.

Everyone involved in any campaign for a better quality of life is warmly invited to support the Natural Law Party whose policies and programmes can bring success to their goals.

UK MANIFESTO ALL PARTY GOVERNMENT

...with the ability to satisfy everyone

Peter Warburton
DEPUTY LEADER

"THE NATURAL LAW PARTY will bring an end to destructive party rivalry by forming an All-Party Government - a government which unifies the best ideas and talents of all political parties in a truly national government that will bring satisfaction to every citizen."

Over many decades, party government with all its conflict and bitter rivalry has proved to be poison to the nation. The Natural Law Party government will therefore choose the best talents from the whole society irrespective of party affiliation to form a unified All-Party Government in order to create a perfect government that will serve the interests of all parties and all groups in the nation.

1. Natural Law Party All-Party Government is based on integrated national consciousness created by "A Group for a Government"
2. Party Politics is a failure.
3. The Natural Law Party upholds our traditional system, including the monarchy and the House of Lords.
4. Eliminating corruption in Government - Natural Law Party offers a three-point strategy to prevent the age-old problem of corruption in politics.

UK MANIFESTO

ALL PARTY GOVERNMENT

1. NATURAL LAW PARTY ALL PARTY GOVERNMENT IS BASED ON INTEGRATED NATIONAL CONSCIOUSNESS CREATED BY "A GROUP FOR A GOVERNMENT"

The current divided structure of politics, full of party conflict and opposition, is a reflection of the stressed and disintegrated state of national consciousness. Therefore the Natural Law Party's first step towards All-Party Government will be to reduce stress and increase integration in collective consciousness through its programme of A Group for a Government.

When national consciousness becomes integrated and unified through the group of 7,000 Yogic Flyers, then automatically the government too will become integrated and will enjoy the support of the infinite organising power of Natural Law. Such a government will certainly be capable of bringing satisfaction to every citizen. (See Hierarchy of Government.)

Government departments will be run by the most successful people

The people chosen to run each department of the All-Party Government will be the most successful people in their respective fields. Cabinet ministers will delegate significant responsibility and authority for the management of the nation's life to these great men and women. These leaders would be invited, without regard to their political affiliation, to form a government run in the spirit of selfless service to the whole nation.

The Natural Law Party believes that the administration of the nation should be in the hands of the most successful individuals in the country - those who have already demonstrated in their own lives the highest degree of creativity, alertness, organising power and good fortune. If such individuals were to run the government then they would automatically bring to government the success and the support of Natural Law that they enjoy in their own lives.

In the All-Party Government of the Natural Law Party, the cabinet will be composed of the most competent individuals from all parties represented in parliament.

The Natural Law Party government will not be centred around one person. The prime minister will delegate responsibility and power for each area of government to the successful people invited to run that area. The prime minister himself will take overall responsibility to ensure the support of Natural Law for the country. He will focus on establishing and maintaining a group of 7,000 experts who will practise Maharishi's Transcendental Meditation and Yogic Flying in order to create an integrated, coherent national consciousness.

The Natural Law Party will keep the path of politics neat, clean, progressive and inspiring to all, nourishing to all, and satisfying all

Executive boards of top experts, rather than civil servants, to manage government departments

The Natural Law Party All-Party Government will appoint executive boards of the nation's top experts in each field - chosen from outside the civil service - to handle the day-to-day administration of each ministry. These experts will be in charge of the operation of the ministries. Decision-making will be dominated by the executive board of experts and not by the civil service. The board will use the expertise of the civil service without allowing it to obstruct progress. They will promote research and development of all new ideas and new technologies that offer promising, life-supporting solutions to the broad range of problems facing the nation.

All-Party Government - Representing the Nation rather than the party

Under all-party government no one party would dominate parliament and rule over the other parties. All Ministers and members of parliament would consider themselves not representatives of a party but representatives of the nation and the people of the United Kingdom. Their decisions would be based on a policy's scientifically proven benefits for the nation as a whole - not on its benefits for one party or on its effect on their political future.

Such a truly national government - uniting the most successful people of all parties and enlivening the support of the evolutionary power of Natural Law for the whole population - will be able to bring satisfaction to everyone, fulfilling the highest ideal of the democratic system.

Procedures have taken precedence over quick decisions

Britain's system of increasingly complex laws has complicated administration, delayed decisions and obstructed achievement of national objectives.

The Natural Law Party government will simplify national administration and speed up decision-making. For example, from the first day of our administration we will start phasing out VAT (see A Group for a Government), and employ the unemployed to rebuild the nation.

In addition, a Natural Law Party government will immediately pass a law requiring our administration to present a balanced budget to the nation within three years. After that further public borrowing will be forbidden by law.

The Natural Law Party's improved parliamentary procedures

The Natural Law Party government will introduce new parliamentary procedures, including electronic voting, to speed up decision-making, eliminate the time wasted in discussion and improve the efficiency of government. This will enable parliament to consider a greater number of important national issues each day, and cut short its internal waste of energy. (Each minute of parliament is 58 million minutes of the nation.)

For example, using an electronic voting system in parliament, the proposals for a bill would be presented on a video screen, and MPs would indicate through pressing the appropriate button their vote in favour or against of the bill, or whether the bill should be reconsidered at committee stage. MPs would be expected to have examined proposals in advance. The debates would then not need to involve unnecessary discussion and argumentation along party lines, which otherwise wastes the time of the entire nation.

Using such a system, many bills could be considered and decided upon in a single day, and there will no longer be delays of months or years in deciding issues of immediate importance to our citizens. The fast efficiency of a Natural Law Party government will quickly resolve all problems. The implementation of such procedures in parliament is especially needed now when there are many problems facing the nation and the government must consider and resolve them without delay.

It is very unfortunate that the nation currently has to witness negative and fruitless party parliamentary debates on television. Seeing our leaders quarrelling and attacking one another is a deep disappointment to our elders, and damages the delicate emotions of our children.

Under a Natural Law Party government the parliament will be transformed from a battlefield into a very peaceful think-tank, where decision is simple and decisions are made fast, in favour of all parties and groups in our nation.

Reviving British democracy through the introduction of proportional representation

The Natural Law Party supports the introduction of a system of proportional representation in the electoral system since it allows every voter to be democratically represented according to his or her choice. The present system of First Past the Post leads to inefficient and ineffective government because the ruling party usually represents even less than half the population. Other parties feel excluded from government and this inevitably leads to destructive conflict and rivalry in parliament and dissatisfaction in the nation.

In answer to the view that proportional representation could lead to weak government with many small parties having to form a coalition, the government of The Netherlands is a successful example of the operation of this system. It is one of the best run countries in Europe. The needs of every section of the community are represented in parliament and no vote is wasted. The parties work together in the best interests of everyone.

Do the leaders of Britain care more for the party or more for the nation?

The question to ask the leaders of Britain now is: do you care more for the party or for the nation? If party politics continues in its present form, nothing will change in Britain after the coming election - nothing. The nation will continue to drown in conflict and problems.

By creating A Group for a Government the Natural Law Party will create such unity and integration in national consciousness that automatically all the parties now divided in bitter opposition will be drawn together in an All-Party Government. This truly national government will utilise all the best and proven solutions to the nation's problems and quickly bring satisfaction to the supporters of every party and fulfilment to the population as a whole.

2. PARTY POLITICS IS A FAILURE

The current system of party politics is a clear failure, as we can see by the problems faced by the nation. There are many fundamental flaws in our party system:

- Though we proudly claim to be a multi-party democracy, only one party wins each election and rules the country for the following five years as a one-party state; in this sense our one party rule is as much a disaster as one-man rule.
- The one party that rules is always working on being re-elected, distracting their attention from conducting the business of government effectively.
- The party in power necessarily thinks first of the interests of its own supporters on whom it relies for support, rather than on the interests of the nation as a whole; the supporters of other parties feel perpetually frustrated and dissatisfied.
- The losing parties feel obliged to oppose the government at every step, and do everything possible to make it fail.
- Since the winning party only enjoys the support of 50% or less of the population, by itself it never enjoys the popularity to create a basis for the unity and the success of the government and the nation.
- Party politics not only divides parliament into warring camps, but increases divisiveness and bitterness between regional and other groups within the population.
- The result is highly ineffective government. This is a critical time when Britain faces severe challenges in health, education, employment, law and order, and its future in Europe. At this time the current party system of politics needs to be re-evaluated, and then replaced by an All-Party

3. THE NATURAL UPHOLDS OUR TRADITIONAL SYSTEM OF ADMINISTRATION, INCLUDING THE MONARCHY AND THE HOUSE OF LORDS

The government of the United Kingdom is a constitutional monarchy. The Natural Law Party upholds our Sovereign, Her Majesty the Queen.

Constitutional monarchy is fully available in the constitution of the universe - the theme of administration through Natural Law.

The tradition of administration of the United Kingdom mirrors the absolute system of Nature's Government, where everything is set and everything is always evolutionary and progressive.

So when the Natural Law Party presents a programme to structure the national administration in the light of Natural Law, it is fully in conformity with our National heritage.

The Natural Law Party is rising to glorify the traditional administrative structure of the United Kingdom, including the monarchy, the House of Lords and the House of Commons.

A monarchy, integrated with democracy, appears to be the ideal structure of government which upholds the unifying and diversifying values of Natural Law.

At present, when every nation is reaching for an ideal administration and new constitutions are being written in many countries, we are able to create this ideal structure of administration in the light of Natural Law because of our complete scientific knowledge of Natural Law, and because of our nation's centuries-long tradition of unified administration of diverse nations in our Commonwealth.

The Natural Law Party is celebrating this supreme scientific knowledge of Natural Law, and we are celebrating our own long-standing tradition of administration in the United Kingdom.

ALL PARTY GOVERNMENT

4. ELIMINATING CORRUPTION IN GOVERNMENT

Natural Law Party offers a three-point strategy to prevent the age-old problem of corruption in politics

Corruption in politics is an age-old problem for which no lasting solution has been found - despite many attempts. The democratic system of government was created to give power to the people and to root out corruption through legal checks and balances on government power. The practice in democracies of replacing officials every four to five years was designed to contain and control corruption and abuse of position.

However, recent world events have shown evidence of an increasing number of charges of corruption against leaders in many democratic countries, including Japan, Korea, India, Pakistan, USA, Russia, Poland, Italy, Mexico, Colombia, and of course Britain. In some instances, such as Brazil and Italy, leaders who came to power as the champions of anti-corruption have themselves been charged with being involved with levels of corruption even more serious than those of their predecessors.

In Britain, as in any country, the people need to be protected from rulers who become corrupt. Nevertheless, it is not entirely fair for the people to blame their leaders, since in the seat of power political leaders are exposed to negative influences that are beyond their control, and at every moment they are open to temptation.

As recent events in Britain highlight, this intractable problem continues to undermine the system of government and weaken the whole society. However, there is now an effective means to bring an end to corruption. The Natural Law Party offers a three-fold strategy to eliminate the problem of corruption in government once and for all.

The three elements of our strategy to eliminate corruption are:

1. Strengthen the collective consciousness of the nation

Government is the innocent mirror of the nation. The quality of government and its leaders, is simply a reflection of the collective consciousness of all the people. If the collective consciousness is disintegrated and negative, and people are not behaving in accord with Natural Law, then problems and corruption will be an unavoidable phenomenon of government.

If, on the other hand, collective consciousness is positive, integrated, and coherent, then the government will not be influenced by any negativity.

If the people of any country wish to be protected from corruption in government, then they must create an integrated collective consciousness. Positivity and harmony should be so strong and dense in national consciousness that negative influences cannot penetrate it.

Every government should have this armour of protection, which can be easily provided if the government maintains a group of Yogic Flyers. This coherence-creating group will create a strong and harmonious national consciousness - an invincible national consciousness - so that no enemy can arise from either inside or outside the nation (see A Group for a Government).

2. Protection from unseen negative influences

Every leader, no matter how honourable and well-intentioned he may be, is subject to influences from the environment, extending to the entire universe.

Recent discoveries in human physiology by Tony Nader, MD, PhD, (see Health section) have revealed, that the structure and function of the various parts of the brain have an exact correlation to the structure and function of the planets and constellations as they are described in the Vedic Science of Maharishi Jyotish. As the planets and constellations move relative to the earth, different influences - both negative and positive - affect human life. Therefore, even if an individual enters political office with a good reputation and an unstained character, later on he may begin to behave inappropriately due to these unseen influences.

These negative influences originate at a distance and cannot be seen, but every government leader must be protected from them.

Maharishi's Vedic approach to administration, which is offered by the Natural Law Party, provides procedures to counteract these unseen negative influences that come from the far environment. This is an absolute measure to protect the sovereignty of a government and the dedication to duty of elected officials.

3. Auspicious entrances promote support of Natural Law

Another principle of Natural Law that will create a positive or negative influence on the performance of a government is the orientation of the entrances to government buildings and to the country itself.

The most ancient textbooks of Natural Law - Veda and the Vedic literature - state that a southern entrance to a country or building is inauspicious and interferes with the support of Natural Law, thus bringing negative and destructive influences to the country or to the inhabitants of the building.

If government offices or the residences of government leaders have their entrances to the south, this will create a negative influence on their thinking. In order to protect the government leaders from this influence, any southern entrance to government buildings should be closed. The Natural Law Party programmes are able to remove negative influences created by southern entrances to a nation.

It is a priority to deal with southern entrances in this way. In general, the application of all aspects of the Vedic Science of Maharishi Sthapatya Veda, the science of architecture, design and planning in accord with Natural Law, to government facilities will ensure that they contribute only a positive, evolutionary influence on the thinking and decision-making of all those involved in government (see Housing and National Planning).

Conclusion: Prevention is the only solution to corruption

It is beyond the scope of law enforcement or independent government enquiries to contain all of the possible avenues of corruption in government. The only solution is to improve the system of administration, and make it invincible by adding the strategies of Natural Law described above to prevent the possibility of corruption ever arising.

EDUCATION

1. INTRODUCING STUDY AND RESEARCH IN CONSCIOUSNESS INTO EDUCATION

The goal of the Natural Law Party's policy for education is to give complete knowledge to everyone. As consciousness is the most basic element in Nature, the study of consciousness and research in consciousness will be introduced into all levels of education. This training, which has been missing from education, will unfold the full creative potential of all students, bringing them out of problems and mistakes, into harmony with Natural Law. With this training, students will naturally think, speak and act in a way that is always life-supporting for themselves and others.

Development of Intelligence—Increased IQ THROUGH THE TRANSCENDENTAL MEDITATION TECHNIQUE

Students who practised Transcendental Meditation showed longitudinal increases in intelligence when compared to non-meditating controls. Dissertation Abstracts International, 38, 7-B (1978): 3372-3373; Personality and Individual Differences, 12 (1991): 1105-1116.

Delivering the fruit of all knowledge to every student – a mistake-free, stress-free life, with thought and action spontaneously in accord with Natural Law, and the ability to achieve anything

For students, the study and experience of consciousness can easily be added as the first period of study each day. The Natural Law Party will introduce the Transcendental Meditation programme (which is the most comprehensively researched and systematic programme available for the growth of consciousness) in the school or college curriculum. As a result, students will be able to make fullest use of all other knowledge they gain. With increasing receptivity, alertness, creative intelligence, and energy, they will enjoy continuously expanding achievements.

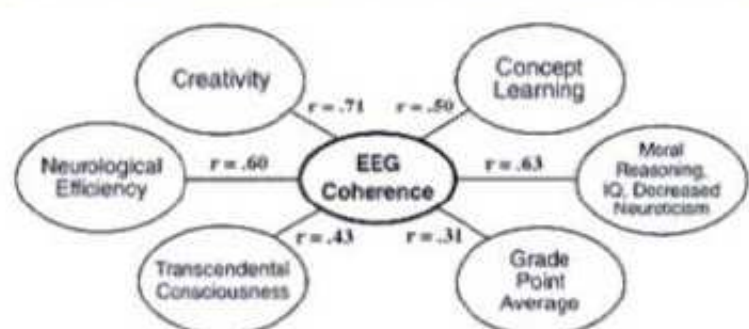

This approach to education, which integrates objectively gained knowledge with subjective technologies for developing the full creative potential of consciousness, delivers to every student the fruit of all knowledge - a mistake-free, stress-free life, with the ability to know anything, do anything, and achieve anything in a way that always nourishes life.

With the unfolding of their inner genius and increasing mastery over Natural Law, students will no longer be frustrated with their inability to achieve, but will be motivated for higher education and higher accomplishments on the basis of increasing success. This knowledge of the science and technology of consciousness will bring fulfilment to the existing system of education without disrupting the present structure in any way.

The educational programmes of the Natural Law Party promote an efficient and powerful thought and action with no waste of energy - in accord with Nature's principle of least action

These programmes are critically needed in Britain, where many secondary school leavers are ill-equipped, even in basic skills, to meet the demands of the work force; where too many students turn to substance abuse and experience frustration from lack of progress and success; and where the poorly educated secondary school leavers are the most likely to be unemployed. Furthermore, by having groups of students practising the Transcendental Meditation and TM-Sidhi programme in schools, colleges, and universities around the country, a valuable contribution will be made to creating coherence and integration in the national consciousness.

Optimization of Brain Functioning THROUGH THE TRANSCENDENTAL MEDITATION TECHNIQUE

High levels of EEG coherence measured during the practice of Transcendental Meditation are significantly correlated with improvements in physiological and psychological functioning. International Journal of Neuroscience, 13 (1981): 211-217; Experimental Neurology, 79 (1983): 77-86.

2. COURSES FOR TEACHERS AT ALL LEVELS OF EDUCATION

The Natural Law Party will institute special courses for teachers at all levels from nursery to university level. Training in the Transcendental Meditation programme will be made available as a standard part of the teacher-training curriculum and in special courses for already-trained teachers.

These training programmes will develop all the qualities needed for successful teaching: creativity, energy, intelligence, communication skills, alertness and flexibility.

Development of higher consciousness - increased creative intelligence and life according to Natural Law for every student

Teachers will also experience reduced stress and good health. At all levels of education, they will find greater fulfilment and reduced stress in their professions, since the behaviour of students and pupils improves and disciplinary problems decrease as a result of the Transcendental Meditation programme. The teachers will enjoy teaching students who are as keen to learn as the teachers are to teach.

3. COST SAVINGS

According to a report by Ernst and Young published in 1993, poor basic skills, especially illiteracy, cost British industry approximately 8 billion per year, and the taxpayer a further 1 billion in social security costs. In addition, those who lack basic learning skills lose 20% of their earning potential. Also, 40% of 16-19 year old students at further education colleges lack basic literacy and numeracy skills.

This waste of human potential and money can be reclaimed by using the educational programmes of the Natural Law Party.

4. WIDE RANGING POLICIES TO BRING FULFILMENT TO EVERY AREA OF EDUCATION

- Complete knowledge, experience and application of Natural Law will be made available to the whole population through existing training programmes, regular education and part-time schooling. Tax benefit will be provided for companies that improve training schemes and introduce the knowledge of Natural Law.
- Management training programmes based on the knowledge of Natural Law for all levels of educational administration, both state-run and private, to ensure the most effective and efficient use of human resources.
- More time for on-the-job training and retraining, with consciousness-based programmes that enable individuals to become completely successful in their occupations. The government will train and provide teachers of the science and technology of consciousness in all levels of education and in engineering, business and industry, health, police, military, and every other area.
- Science based education will be raised to Unified Field based education - education based on complete knowledge and practical utilisation of the Unified Field of Natural Law.
- A national apprenticeship programme, developed by both sides of industry (management and workforce) together with educational leaders, to prepare young people fully in the latest technologies and skills of their chosen occupations.
- The current level of financial support for every student who wishes to pursue higher education will be maintained. Tax benefits or educational allowances will be given to families who keep their children in education until at least 21 years of age.
- The option of more years in higher education and professional training for students, in order to develop their full potential.
- We will promote the use of all aspects of information technology to make study and learning more effective. For example, the use of video conferencing will enable students in different localities to have the advantage of studying with leading experts, and the use of the Internet will enable the supply of course material including text, pictorial, video and audio.
- We will also encourage educational approaches that help every student learn to take maximum advantage of computers and information technology with reference to their field of study. This will include interactive study using the latest technology.
- In addition to recreational sports, the inclusion in the primary and secondary school curriculum of regular periods of enjoyable physical activity designed in such a way that they involve no strain and accelerate the integration of mind and body and promote perfect health.
- Establishing local centres of knowledge, where parents can receive practical guidance in prevention-oriented health care for their families. Parents will be trained in pulse reading to help them maintain the good health of the whole family.
- Councils composed of leading experts in education, business, and technology to propose educational policies to education authorities in urban and rural areas.
- The Natural Law Party recognizes that women have a unique and vital contribution to make to the welfare of the nation as whole. An advisory council will be set up, composed of both professional women and mothers at home, to structure courses to enable women to develop their full creative potential.
- Research has shown that boys and girls perform better in separate secondary schools. The Natural Law Party therefore supports separate education for boys and girls up to college level, to develop the full creative genius and unique strengths of each group.
- Travel within Britain and travel abroad will be a part of education, starting from 'A' level and continuing through all levels of education, in order to give students experience of different cultures, develop in them an appreciation of our world family, and foster international patriotism. British universities will be opened in other countries, so that students can attend branches of their own universities in several countries for two to three years.

Improved Academic Performance THROUGH THE TRANSCENDENTAL MEDITATION TECHNIQUE

Within one year, students who practised Transcendental Meditation showed significant gains on a nationally standardized test of basic skills. Education, 107 (1986): 49-54.

EDUCATION

5. NEW EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMMES

Programmes for school leavers and university graduates - bringing perfection to professional and personal life

We will offer courses for school leavers and university graduates, to prepare them for their occupations by developing the qualities needed for success in professional and personal life: alertness, creativity, energy, flexibility, confidence, self-sufficiency, ability to communicate effectively, resistance to stress, orientation towards positive values, and support of Natural Law, which is the very real phenomenon of gaining support from the whole environment for one's desires so that whatever one wants can be achieved without strain.

Training for new professions to create a problem-free Britain

The Natural Law Party will offer new training programmes for new careers, which will be open to everyone including the unemployed. These training programmes will be for young people to learn new professions in the areas of health, business, politics, rehabilitation and education.

The participants will be trained to offer uniquely effective and rewarding knowledge to solve the problems in each of these areas of society. Problems arise when people violate Natural Law; each of these professions will teach the population how to live in harmony with Natural Law spontaneously and thereby bring their lives out of problems, strain and suffering.

As part of their preparation, course participants will study and directly experience in their own awareness the Constitution of the Universe, the fundamental level of Nature's intelligence, from where all the laws of nature emerge to govern the orderly evolution of the universe (see Appendix - Constitution of the Universe). Through simple, effortless techniques, students will identify their awareness with this invincible level of Natural Law. Their mind becomes imbued with the order and infinite creativity of the Constitution of the Universe; as a result they begin to speak and act in a way that always maintains progress and evolution. Life ceases to be a struggle and becomes a joy, with increasingly expanded levels of achievement and fulfilment.

These students will be employed by the government to maintain an integrated national consciousness through group practice of the technology of consciousness. In this way, while the students are training in new careers and rapidly developing higher states of consciousness in themselves, they will be bringing national life into accord with Natural Law. Supported by this group, the British government will become a model government, with the ability to satisfy everyone.

Short and long courses for adults - Knowledge for Fulfilment

Courses of varying length will be available for the adult population. The goal of these courses will be to give knowledge for fulfilment in life, for the development of higher states of consciousness, and for perfect health; and to prepare those who are changing careers to be effective and fulfilled in their new occupations.

Fulfilment and bliss at every level of education

All of the consciousness-based courses sponsored and supported by the Natural Law Party are simple, relaxing, and fulfilling, because consciousness is intimate to everyone - it is knowledge of the simplest, most profound, powerful, and blissful level of our own existence. The Natural Law Party brings bliss to the educational process, making education enjoyable for every student

Special colleges for students who dislike school and for early leavers

A Natural Law Party government will establish colleges for those who perform poorly and are frustrated in school, or who have left early without completing their education. They will be given programmes to awaken their latent creative potential through the experience of pure consciousness, whose nature is bliss. Learning will be effortless, and its benefits immediately noticed as increasing happiness, interest in knowledge, organising ability, and support of nature.

EDUCATION

MAHARISHI SCHOOL, SKELMERSDALE, LANCASHIRE

"Since introducing the unique integrated system of education (developed by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi and supported by the Natural Law Party) over 11 years ago, we have seen a fulfilling blossoming of creativity and intelligence in pupils of every age. As a result of this growth, all aspects of pupils' lives are enhanced. For the past two years, results have placed the school as the joint top school in Lancashire - a tremendous achievement for an academically non-selective school - and equal first with the top 2.5% of schools in England and Wales. The great development of creativity can be seen by the ever-growing number of national awards and prizes for poetry and literature won by the school and individual pupils. National and international visitors remark on the settled and industrious atmosphere in the school, an ideal climate for learning.

"Any school can have these same benefits without changing its character, philosophy, or programmes of study. This system of education will enhance every aspect of the life of a school and enable the fulfilment of its highest ideals; it is cost-effective and can be quickly and simply introduced. I would recommend this system to any educator who is committed to achieving the most effective and rewarding system of education."

- Derek Cassells

HEALTH

Creating a disease-free society through prevention-oriented health care

Dr Geoffrey Mead

HEALTH

1. SOLUTION TO THE HEALTH CARE CRISIS

The deepening crisis in health care today cannot be resolved just through increased funding or more efficient organisation of the National Health Service.

At the heart of the crisis is the failure of the existing medical system to prevent the majority of diseases, the continuously escalating costs of modern medicine, and the hazardous side-effects of modern drugs and medical procedures. These hazards have been documented by thousands of reports in scientific journals (see Hazards of modern medicine).

To resolve this crisis, the Natural Law Party government will introduce an effective programme of preventive medicine based on the complete knowledge of Natural Law available in Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health - Maharishi Ayur-Veda - the comprehensive scientific system of natural health care.

Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health is prevention-oriented, highly cost-effective, and free from harmful side-effects.

The Natural Law Party's proposed solution to the health care crisis upholds the same principle of preventing sickness and promoting health that was the inspiration for the founding of the NHS over 50 years ago. In the words of one of the founders, William Beveridge: "Can we create a situation in which the medical, nursing, and social work professionals will be engaged mainly in promoting positive health, rather than, as at present, being strained to deal with a demand for services over which they appear to have no control and can only contain by some arbitrary method of rationing?" (Government White Paper, 1942).

The Natural Law Party's focus on prevention will allow more prompt and efficient attention to the sick, since effective prevention is the best way to relieve pressure on medical services.

This will also enable people with less serious disorders to receive medical attention at an earlier stage, when their condition can be more easily treated and thereby prevented from progressing to a more serious condition.

In addition to focusing on prevention, the Natural Law Party will also promote natural approaches to treatment of disease which are free from harmful side-effects and effective (please see section 10). These treatments will be available under the National Health Service alongside all that is useful and non-detrimental from modern medicine. Patients will have freedom to choose the system of treatment they prefer.

3. ELIMINATING THE ROOT CAUSE OF ALL DISEASE -- VIOLATION OF NATURAL LAW

According to Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health the basic cause of ill-health in the individual, as well as disorder in the nation, is violation of Natural Law. Violation of the laws of nature disrupts the connection between the body and its inner intelligence, creating stress and illness. The health programmes of the Natural Law Party will bring every aspect of life spontaneously in accordance with Natural Law, thereby eliminating the root cause of sickness and suffering.

A study of health insurance statistics on over 2,000 people practising Maharishi's Transcendental Meditation programme over a five-year period found that participants required much less medical treatment in all 16 major disease categories. Psychosomatic Medicine, 49 (1987): 493-507.

HEALTH

4. BRINGING COMPLETENESS TO HEALTH CARE

It is recognized that the health of the individual is determined not only by the physical factors that are the main focus of the current medical system, but also by more far-reaching psychophysiological, social, and environmental factors. The Natural Law Party's health programme encompasses the full range of factors that influence health, as found in the 40 areas of the Veda and Vedic Literature. This includes the following essential aspects of health care, which have previously been neglected by modern medicine:

Consciousness

The basis of human physiology is the field of intelligence or consciousness - the field of Natural Law. Because this basis of health - consciousness - has not been included in the theme of prevention and cure, the effectiveness of health care has been seriously restricted.

The development of consciousness as a means to improve health has been missing from health care due to the absence of a technology of consciousness. The Natural Law Party will supply this missing element by introducing the science and technology of consciousness - Maharishi's Transcendental Meditation and TM-Sidhi programme - into all aspects of health care.

Extensive research has demonstrated that these simple techniques improve all aspects of human health. This overall effect of balance and integration is graphically demonstrated by research documenting numerous effects that are directly opposite to the deterioration that occur with ageing (please see section 10)

The Natural Law Party's health programmes promote activity in accord with Nature's principle of least action, which does not allow stress, strain, or disorder to accumulate in the physiology.

Self-pulse reading for good health

Health means wholeness - the whole is more than the collection of parts. A perfect approach to health must take care of the parts and the whole simultaneously. In this context, the key concept is homeostasis or balance: balance between the whole and the parts; balance between the holistic value of life and individual values of life; balance between consciousness and its expression, the physiology; balance between different qualities of consciousness and their divisions and subdivisions; and balance among all the various expressions of consciousness, the different parts of the physiology. Existing health care systems do not consider health in this way and this is why they ultimately fail to serve their purpose.

The Natural Law Party will make available to the whole population courses in reading their own pulse according to the special principles laid out in Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health. Through this procedure of self-pulse reading, the individual is able not only to assess accurately the degree of balance in every aspect of the body, but at the same time to contribute a balancing influence from the level of consciousness where the parts are connected to the whole.

Pulse reading provides a unique means for diagnosis of the condition of the whole and its relation to the parts. The quality of the pulse is thus the indicator of the degree of health or ill-health - the degree of balance in the relationship of the whole with the parts.

Pulse reading assesses not only the effects of such factors as diet and behaviour on the physiology, but also the influence of the entire environment, from the immediate environment of the home to the cosmic influence of the planets, stars and galaxies. All these influences contribute to balance or imbalance. The quality of the pulse therefore reflects the extent to which a person is able to live according to the laws of nature that govern consciousness, physiology, and indeed all levels of existence - individual and cosmic.

We will train the whole population in a simple procedure of self-pulse reading to detect physiological imbalances, and simple dietary recommendations to correct imbalances before diseases arises

As well as being an essential diagnostic tool for every doctor, Maharishi Ayur-Veda pulse diagnosis is also easily learned and used by everyone. Through self-pulse reading, individuals can detect imbalance before it gives rise to disease and then take the necessary preventive measures (using diet, exercise, herbal preparations, Transcendental Meditation, etc.) as specified in Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health. It is also the perfect tool for every mother to maintain the good health of her children.

Creating collective health for the nation

For a national health service to be worthy of its name, it must take care of the national health - the vitality and integrity of the nation as a whole. However, the concept of national health has until now been missing from the nation's health policy. The Natural Law Party government will implement scientifically-proven programmes for improving the collective health of the nation by disallowing the growth of stress in collective consciousness. Crime, violence, turbulence, economic failure, and other negative trends are disorders of national health and have their origin in violation of the laws of nature by the population of the country. In turn, these expressions of negativity create an adverse effect on the health and well-being of everyone.

The Natural Law Party government will create a strong, integrated, and harmonious nation by establishing a permanent group of experts in Yogic Flying. More than 40 scientific research studies have demonstrated the effectiveness of this technology in reducing negative tendencies and promoting positive trends in all areas of national life.

Cosmic counterparts of human physiology

Of paramount importance for health is the discovery by Dr Tony Nader (please see section 2) that different aspects of human physiology have their cosmic counterparts in the structure of the universe. Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health includes the knowledge of Jyotish, which provides systematic methods for calculating the influence of these cosmic counterparts on all aspects of individual and collective life. These calculations provide valuable information on existing and future health trends and allow appropriate steps to be taken in order to correct imbalance and avert disorders.

No one can ever remain healthy at all times unless this missing knowledge is introduced into health education and unless programmes are made available to rectify or neutralise the negative influences that impinge on the individual from outside, and to enhance those influences that are positive. Through emphasis on this area, the Natural Law Party government will ensure that individual health is supported by the natural cycles that exist in the universe.

It is vital for the nation that the doctors are trained to make use of the Natural Law Party's preventive programmes

Proper design and orientation of homes

The Natural Law Party recognises the importance for health of the knowledge of Maharishi Sthapatya-Veda - the Vedic science of architecture, construction, interior design, and planning. This science explains that it is vital that the physical environment of the home, work place and whole community is in tune with the laws of nature and therefore does not generate imbalance and disease.

The orientation of buildings, for example, has important consequences for health, bringing support of Natural Law and upholding success and health when the entrance of a property faces east. Conversely properties with south entrances lead to problems and difficulties for the occupants.

Currently there are innumerable dwellings in Britain with south facing entrances, including the Prime Minister's residence in Downing Street, as well as south entrances to the country as a whole, all of which are contributing to problems in the nation. The Natural Law Party will implement a programme of National Planning and Reconstruction (please refer to the Housing, National Planning and Sustainable Development section) in order to neutralise negative influences on individual and collective health arising from incorrectly designed buildings and improper planning of urban and rural areas.

Making medical education complete

It is vital for the health of the nation that doctors are trained to make use of these and other preventive programmes. The Natural Law Party promotes the incorporation of Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health into undergraduate and postgraduate medical education in existing medical schools. We will also establish new medical schools - Maharishi Medical Colleges - whose curriculum will include all that is truly useful and non-detrimental in modern medicine, while adding this profound knowledge of Natural Law based health care, which uses the body's own inner intelligence to maintain perfect health.

5. PREVENTION-ORIENTED HEALTH CARE FOR THE WHOLE POPULATION

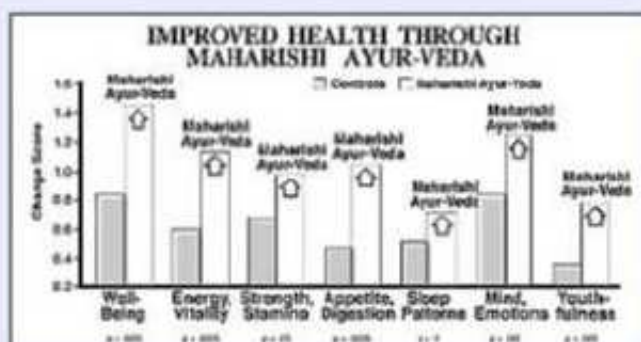

In order to educate the whole population in these simple, effective methods for preventing disease, the Natural Law Party government will open Health Education Centres in each constituency and train one prevention-oriented health care professional for every 3,000 people. Through its health education and natural medicine programmes, the Natural Law Party will promote self-sufficiency in health care for every individual, reducing dependence on the current medical system with all its attendant hazards.

Preventive health programmes to be offered will include:

- Courses on self-pulse reading to train the whole population to detect imbalance at its earliest stages before disease occurs,
- Courses on balanced diet, exercise, and daily and seasonal routines, to educate people in simple measures to correct imbalances in health,
- Natural herbal preparations to strengthen resistance to disease and restore balance to the physiology,
- Purification procedures to eliminate deep-rooted impurities and imbalances from the physiology, in order to cure disease and prevent future illness.

We will educate and inform the public about the benefits of vegetarian diet for health and the economy, as demonstrated by scientific research (Reference: British Medical Journal, 308 (1994): 1667-71).

The Natural Law Party's timely initiative to prevent disease will reverse the deplorable situation in our health care system, in which government pays only lip service to preventive medicine, with less than 1% of the NHS budget spent on prevention of disease.

Subjects who participated in Maharishi Ayur-Veda health programmes, including Transcendental Meditation, showed significant improvements on a number of general health measures as compared to controls. Journal of Social Behavior and Personality, 5(1990) 1-27.

6. EFFECTIVE TREATMENT OF CHRONIC DISEASES

Millions of people in Britain suffer from chronic disorders. Even the most advanced and expensive methods of treatment used in the current health system have been unable to prevent and treat these conditions successfully. The Natural Law Party will introduce effective and safe natural treatment programmes using Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health in order to provide relief to the millions afflicted by these illnesses, and where possible to prevent their occurrence. Research has already been conducted demonstrating the effectiveness of this approach. (Please see section 10). These programmes will be offered under the NHS through Maharishi Vedic Medical Centres in every constituency.

7. AMENDING LEGISLATION IN FAVOUR OF HEALTH, AND ELIMINATING THE HAZARDOUS SIDE-EFFECTS OF MODERN MEDICINE

The present medical system uses pharmaceutical and other treatments which have damaging effects on the health of the people and ultimately weaken the economy. Despite its serious inadequacies, this system is enshrined in health legislation. Doctors are trained to use this system almost exclusively.

The government's sponsorship of the growth and profitability of the pharmaceutical and other medical industries inevitably supports the promotion of the current medical system. At the same time, safe and effective non-pharmacological methods of treatment and prevention are receiving inadequate support.

This situation clearly conflicts with the government's responsibility to provide health care which is safe and effective.

A disease-free society can never be created through a system of medicine that creates poisonous side-effects and more diseases

The Natural Law Party government will amend legislation in favour of health, endorsing natural and safe methods of prevention and cure, and reversing the anomalous situation where the people are paying taxes to the government in return for health care which has serious detrimental effects on health.

We will promote good health through Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health and through whatever methods are safe and scientifically supported.

The Natural Law Party is not opposed to industry making profits. However, we will never sacrifice the health of the people for the sake of economic gain. Rather our health policies will help to strengthen the economy by promoting the health of the whole population, on which the economy depends.

8. PRODUCTION AND MARKETING OF HEALTHY FOOD -- SERIOUS DANGERS OF GENETICALLY ENGINEERED FOODS

The Natural Law Party will encourage farming that is pollution-free and sustainable, and it will promote production of natural, healthy, nutritious food which is free from toxic substances. Currently genetically engineered foods are being introduced without adequate testing and present a serious and unquantifiable threat to human health. We will prevent the growth and sale of these foods until they have been shown to be unquestionably safe (please refer to section on - Genetically Modified Foods).

Key issue - Ban genetically modified foods

Campaign to ban genetically engineered food

Because of the grave danger for health and the environment, we support a total ban on the introduction of genetically modified food, and a moratorium on the release of genetically modified organisms into the environment.

The Natural Law Party will also promote:

- Health education advertising campaigns on healthy diet, including in the national media,
- Health education in schools on good nutritious diet, supported by more nutritious school meals and subsidies for nutritious and healthy foods (e.g. fruit, milk)

9. COST SAVINGS

The national health budget is expected to total over 42 billion in 1997. Research findings indicate that Natural Law Party health programmes can reduce health care needs by at least 50%. Because our programmes are also very economical to implement and result in longterm improvements to health, this translates into savings of billions of pounds annually for the health budget. Through the Natural Law Party's health programmes, Britain will enjoy the world's premier health care system and become the healthiest and happiest nation in the world.

10. SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH DEMONSTRATING EFFECTIVE PREVENTION AND DEVELOPMENT OF PERFECT HEALTH THROUGH NATURAL LAW PARTY HEALTH PROGRAMMES

Over the past 25 years, more than 500 scientific research studies conducted at 215 universities and research institutions in 27 countries have shown that the Natural Law Party's natural health care programme prevents disease, decreases the need for medical treatment, alleviates individual and collective stress, improves mental and physical health, and enriches life in a holistic way. These studies have appeared in leading scientific and medical journals throughout the world and have demonstrated the benefits of this programme for people of all ages and all walks of life, including students, working people, housewives, and retired people (please refer to summary of research findings below).

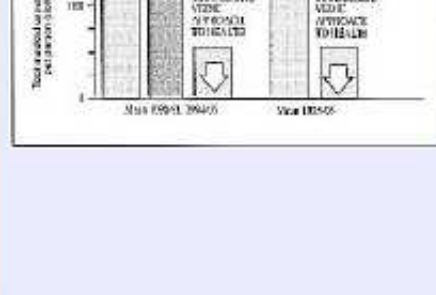

Reduced health care utilisation and expenditure

A study of 2,000 people practising Maharishi's Transcendental Meditation programme in the United States found that over five years their needs for medical and surgical care were more than 50% less than the norm. Hospitalisations were markedly reduced in all 17 disease categories studied, including 87% less for diseases of the heart and blood vessels, 55% less for tumours, 73% less for respiratory problems, and 86% less for nervous system disorders. Reference: Psychosomatic Medicine 49, (1987), 493-507.

In another study, 693 individuals using Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health had 59% lower total medical expenditure over a four-year period and lower utilisation and expenditure across all age groups and for all disease categories compared with 4,148 matched controls. Hospital admission rates in the group using Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health were 11.4 times lower for cardiovascular disease than in the control group, 3.3 times lower for cancer, and 6.7 times lower for mental health and substance abuse. The greatest savings were seen among patients older than age 45 using Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health, who had 88% fewer total patient days compared to control patients. Reference: American Journal of Managed Care, 3 (1997): 135-144.

In a third study, medical expenses (physicians fees) of 599 people in Quebec fell by an average of 5%-7% per year over seven years after starting Transcendental Meditation, compared to levels for the preceding years. Reference: American Journal of Health Promotion, (1995): 10(3) 208-216.

In a further study, Maharishi's Transcendental Meditation has also been found to be more cost-effective than medication in treating hypertension. Reference: American Journal of Managed Care, 2, (1996): 427-437.

In an analysis of health insurance data in the USA, total medical expenditure per person was reduced by more than 50% in 693 subjects using Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health compared to norms or a demographically matched control group of 4,148 subjects. American Journal of Managed Care, 3 (1997) 135-144.

Two Maharishi Ayur-Veda herbal preparations (Maharishi Amrit Kalash 4 and 5) were highly effective at inhibiting the oxidation of low density lipoprotein - a process involved in the development of coronary heart disease. The alcohol soluble extracts were over 1,000 times more potent than vitamin C or vitamin E (producing the same antioxidant effect at much lower doses). Pharmacology, Biochemistry, and Behavior, 43 (1992): 1175-82.

Effective prevention

Laboratory studies on herbal preparations of Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health have demonstrated powerful preventive effects against pathological processes that contribute to major diseases, such as cancer, heart disease, Alzheimer's disease and rheumatoid arthritis. Findings include protection against the toxic effects of free radicals, which are closely linked to ageing and as much as 80% of all major diseases. Herbal compounds of Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health have also been shown to improve immune responses and inhibit cancer growth in the laboratory.

In an analysis of 14 studies Transcendental Meditation was found to be more effective in reducing use of tobacco than other treatments. Alcohol Treatment Quarterly, 11(1-2) (1994): 13-87.

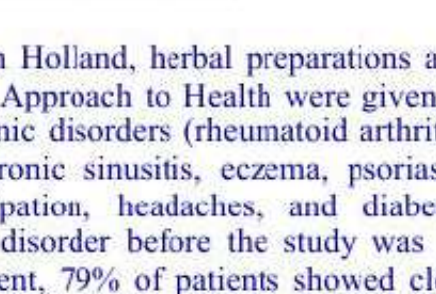

Reduced risk factors for disease

Programmes of Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health, including herbal preparations, Transcendental Meditation, and physiological purification procedures, have been found to reduce major risk factors for disease (including heart disease and cancer). Results include reduction of high blood pressure; decreased blood cholesterol levels; reduced oxidation of fats (relevant to the prevention of heart disease); reduced use of cigarettes, alcohol, and non-prescribed drugs; normalization of weight; effective stress reduction and improved resistance to stress.

In a three month randomised study of 127 older African Americans with mild high blood pressure, Transcendental Meditation was effective in reducing blood pressure. It was twice as effective as progressive muscular relaxation. Further analysis showed that Transcendental Meditation was effective in reducing high blood pressure in all risk groups, including stress levels, physical activity, and other factors.

A three month study showed that Transcendental Meditation was effective in reducing blood pressure in people with mildly elevated blood pressure. Transcendental Meditation was approximately twice as effective as a relaxation technique. Hypertension, 26 (1995): 820-27.

Benefits for chronic disorders

In a three-month study conducted in Holland, herbal preparations and dietary advice of Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health were given to 126 patients with ten common chronic disorders (rheumatoid arthritis, bronchial asthma, hypertension, chronic sinusitis, eczema, psoriasis, chronic arthritis, chronic constipation, headaches, and diabetes mellitus). The average duration of disorder before the study was 18 years. After three months of treatment, 79% of patients showed clear improvements. Treatment was well tolerated and no toxic effects were observed.

Reference: Nederlands Tijdschrift voor Integratie Geneeskunde, 5(35), (1989): 586-594.

Maharishi's Transcendental Meditation was effective in increasing exercise tolerance in an eight month controlled study in patients with chronic angina pectoris (chest pain related to heart disease). Reference: American Journal of Cardiology, (1996): 77, 867-870.

Controlled research has also shown clinical improvements in patients with bronchial asthma. Reference: Respiration, 32 (1975): 74-80.

Reduction of major risk factors for disease through Natural Law Party health programmes include reduction of high blood pressure; decreased blood cholesterol levels; reduced use of cigarettes, alcohol, and non-prescribed drugs; normalization of weight; and effective stress reduction.

Other published studies on the programmes of Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health have demonstrated:

Improved mental health

Decreased anxiety, depression, and aggression; increased self-esteem and self-actualization; decreased insomnia; and decreased use of non-prescribed drugs and prescribed tranquilizers. In a statistical meta-analysis of 146 independent studies, Transcendental Meditation was found to be twice as effective in reducing anxiety as other meditation and relaxation procedures. Another meta-analysis found that Transcendental Meditation was three to four times more effective than other procedures in developing self-actualization, a measure of positive mental health.

Statistical meta analysis of 146 independent outcomes found that Transcendental Meditation is significantly more effective in reducing trait anxiety than any other meditation or relaxation technique. Journal of Clinical Psychology, 124 (1990): 177-197.

Development of perfect health

Younger biological age and increased longevity; increased creativity and intelligence; improved memory and academic performance; improved perception and mind-body co-ordination; increased job satisfaction and performance; increased happiness and harmony in marriage.

The Natural Law Party government will implement scientifically-proven programmes for improving the collective health of the nation by disallowing the growth of stress in collective consciousness.

Twenty-four cities in which 1% of the population had been instructed in Transcendental Meditation displayed significant decreases in crime rate during the next year and decreased crime rate trend during the subsequent five years. Journal of Crime and Justice, 4(1981): 25-45.

Improved collective health of the nation

Decreased crime, accidents, suicides, and unemployment; improved economic prosperity, social integration, and international harmony; reduced civil and international conflict.

DECREASED INFLATION AND UNEMPLOYMENT

Using time series analysis, this study found a significant reduction for Canada and the United States in an economic 'misery index' - defined as the sum of monthly inflation and unemployment rates - when the number of participants in the group practice of the TM-Sidhi programme exceeded the square root of 1% of the North American population. Proceedings of the Business and Economics Statistics section, American Statistical Association, (1987): 799-804; (1988): 491-496; (1989): 565-570.

HAZARDS OF MODERN MEDICINE

Iatrogenic diseases pose a major threat to health throughout the world. According to a respected medical textbook, iatrogenic disease has become 'one of the most prevalent conditions facing modern health services, occupying countless hospital beds all over the Western world.'1 This view is strongly borne out by scientific research, as evidenced by many thousands of articles on the harmful effects of modern medicine published in medical journals over the past two decades. For example:

- The 1990 Harvard Medical Practice Study found evidence that iatrogenic diseases kill far more people in the United States than guns, road accidents, or many much more publicized disorders. The results of this study indicate that up to 2 million Americans are hospitalized each year and as many as 180,000 die as a result of adverse reactions to prescription drugs.2, 3
- A study commissioned by the Australian Department of Health showed that between 10,000 and 14,000 people died in 1992 as a result of preventable adverse events in hospital, with a further 25,000 to 30,000 suffering permanent disability.4
- Research on a series of patients admitted to the medical service of a university hospital in Boston, Massachusetts found that 36 percent suffered from iatrogenic disease.5
- It is estimated that 15 percent of hospital days in the United States are devoted to the treatment of drug toxicity.6

The horrifying side-effects of 'disaster drugs' such as practolol, clioquinol, phenylbutazone, benoxaprofen and, above all, thalidomide have so dominated medical and public thinking about iatrogenic disease that they have overshadowed the more insidious but ultimately much greater damage done by agents considered safe enough for widespread use. This point is clearly expressed in the following excerpt from a chapter entitled 'Two decades of drug-induced disasters' in a major medical textbook on iatrogenic disease:

High heap of scientific research papers on the hazards of modern medicine.

The hazards of modern medicine have been documented by thousands of articles published in medical journals. Utilising the complete knowledge of Natural Law, the Natural Law Party offers a complete health care programme that will eliminate these hazards and create a disease-free society.

'The thalidomide tragedy looms so ponderously over the history of side-effects that any inclusion of it in a general discussion all too easily distorts the entire picture, causing other events to pale into insignificance and suggesting that since 1961 we have solved the worst of our problems. That is most certainly not true. The number of patients gravely injured or killed in epidemics of drug-induced disease since then is a vast multiple of the number of thalidomide victims; the range of injuries produced is also so wide that no simple solution to the problem seems likely to emerge.'7

Thus, while extreme cases of drug toxicity may be terminated by withdrawal of the offending agent, the creeping destruction wrought by many drugs with 'acceptable' safety records goes on unchecked. Magnified through massive use, the hazards of such agents have become a much greater source of morbidity and mortality than any of the much more publicized drug disasters. A prime example is provided by the non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs (NSAIDs), which are among the most widely prescribed of all pharmaceuticals. A study published in the journal Drug Safety indicates that NSAIDs claim around 3000 lives per year in the UK alone.8

Of great concern is the fact that most adverse drug reactions go unrecorded. A recent article in US News and World Report quoted David Kessler, M.D., Chief of the United States Food and Drug Administration, who believes that 'only one percent of all serious drug reactions are reported'9

Another recent news article quotes Roy Schwarz, M.D., Group Vice-President of Scientific Education and Practice Standards at the American Medical Association, who summed up the current state of medicine as follows: 'We should make people aware of the uncertainties of medicine. Not everybody will be cured and in some cases disasters will occur. That's reality. ...Medical practice, by necessity, always will be based on trial and error.'10

The intrinsic toxicity of modern pharmaceuticals is especially dangerous in the elderly, who are by far the largest consumers of medical drugs, most likely to suffer side-effects and adverse reactions, and most easily harmed by the common practice of prescribing multiple drugs with consequent risk of complicated and potentially fatal interactions.11,12 Drugs cause or aggravate many common medical problems of the elderly, including dementia, confusional states, depression, Parkinsonism, falls (and associated fractures), loss of mobility, incontinence, heart failure, and many other conditions that drastically diminish the quality of life and independence of older people. In one study, 51 percent of new cases of Parkinsonism in elderly patients were found to be due to prescribed drugs.13

The toxicity of drugs is especially disturbing in light of serious doubts about the effectiveness and appropriateness of much drug use. Surveys have shown that a majority of prescriptions are for agents which have been defined as being of marginal therapeutic value. Nevertheless, these drugs still have substantial toxicity and pose a threat to health.14 For example, researchers at Yale University School of Medicine reviewed studies showing that between 24 and 66 percent of antibiotics prescribed in American hospitals are inappropriate.15 In another study, from Harvard Medical School, it was found that nearly 25 percent of older people were prescribed potentially inappropriate medications, placing them at risk of adverse effects. The authors suggest that their findings represent only 'the tip of the iceberg.'16

NEED FOR A MORE EFFECTIVE APPROACH TO PREVENTION AND TREATMENT

Modern medicine currently fails to prevent the majority of illnesses and its treatments are often directed only to the symptoms and advanced manifestations of disease, rather than addressing the root cause of the disorder. Overall, despite vast and continuously expanding expenditure on medical research and treatment services, modern medicine appears to be producing increasingly marginal advances.

In developed nations, these limitations are evident in the continuing high incidence of chronic disorders, including cardiovascular diseases, cancer, neurological degenerations (including Alzheimer's disease), diabetes, obstructive lung diseases (including asthma), arthritis, and psychiatric disorders. They are also reflected in the vast amount of resources consumed in trying to contain these problems and their complications, and the comparatively minuscule efforts and expenditure devoted to true primary prevention.

Although marked improvements in health standards have of course occurred in developed nations over the past century, these have resulted primarily from better nutrition, housing, and sanitation rather than from advances in modern medical technology. Moreover where major diseases are declining today - such as coronary heart disease in a number of developed nations - it is clear that these gains have little to do with expensive and sophisticated technologies such as drugs, surgery, and hospital care.

Indeed, Dr. Alexander Leaf, until recently Chairman of the Department of Preventive Medicine at Harvard Medical School, describes the current response to coronary heart disease as 'inadequate, despite massive efforts to apply costly treatments after the disease is clinically manifest...Doctors are too preoccupied with measures that only lessen symptoms and which will do nothing for the next generation of 30-, 40-, or 50-year-olds, dooming them to the same heart disease.'17

Doubts have also been raised about the current approach to cancer. According to research published in the New England Journal of Medicine in 1986, both crude and age-adjusted mortality rates from cancer in the United States have risen over three decades. The authors of this research conclude that, according to this evidence, 'we are losing the war against cancer'.18 Similar concerns were expressed in a 1993 editorial in The Lancet, which calls for the major rethink in the prevention and treatment of breast cancer, the commonest fatal cancer in women: 'To sustain the incentive for progress we must eschew complacency and recognize the dangers of a mindless race down familiar pathways when, in all truth, we lost our way several leagues ago along this very route.'19 Public concern over the lack of progress against cancer is also rising: a recent article in The Times discussing official British cancer figures observes that: 'More and more people are suffering from cancer, in spite of the huge resources pitted against the disease...'20

Meanwhile, in developing countries, growing expenditure on drugs and expensive diagnostic and therapeutic facilities has drawn resources away from vital basic public health measures. As a result, many infectious scourges continue to rage, while disorders prevalent in industrialized societies - like coronary heart disease, diabetes, and lung cancer - are increasing at an alarming rate. Moreover, although the iatrogenic epidemic has reached enormous proportions in developed nations, pharmaceutical toxicity presents an even greater threat to people in developing countries, where controls on drugs are often grossly inadequate.

Throughout the world, increasing concern about the hazards and limitations of the current approach to health is intensifying the search for new developments that can solve the current crisis in health care and take medicine forward towards its ultimate goal - the creation of a disease-free society.

Creating a flourishing economy

Anthony Hardy
SPOKESMAN FOR ECONOMY

"GOVERNMENT SHOULD NOT be in terms of money, but mainly in terms of the health and happiness of everyone. Prosperity is the natural outcome of creativity, which itself is born of inner peace and happiness. We will create a society affluent on every level, with no scarcity of anything, in which no citizen suffers from unemployment, recession, inflation, or any other economic hardship."

ECONOMY

1. ENLIVENING CREATIVITY IN NATIONAL CONSCIOUSNESS

All problems of the economy are due to lack of creativity. Natural Law sustains all growth and prosperity in the universe on the basis of infinite creativity, because everything in the universe has easy access to this nourishing source. Everything in the universe is an expression of Natural Law and is administered and nourished by it.

To maintain a strong, growing economy all that is necessary is to utilise the infinite creativity and organising power of Nature. The Natural Law Party will implement proven programmes for enlivening the infinite creativity of Natural Law in national consciousness and developing the full creative potential of every citizen and of the nation as a whole.

The Natural Law Party will lead the nation in the direction of natural growth through nature's irresistible theme of evolution, which will nourish everyone and everything. We will bring about the natural progress of the nation without allowing the accumulation of stress in the pursuit of progress.

Eliminating stress and problems

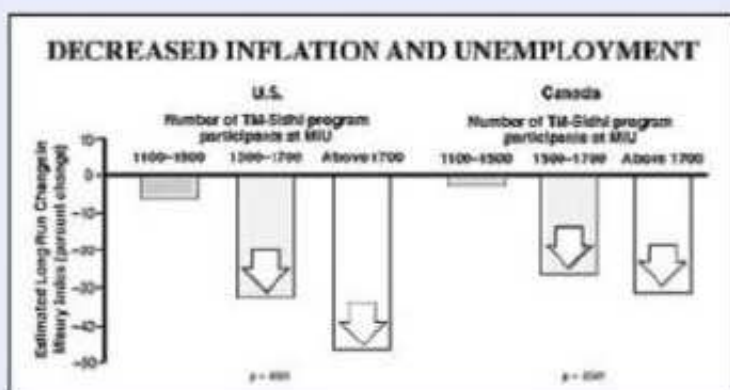

Due to increasing problems of health, crime, and inefficiency in public and private administration, the total economy suffers. Both the government and private industry become bogged down in attending to problems and cease to fulfill their total purpose which is to maintain the progress of the nation. By eliminating stress in individual and national life, the Natural Law Party will eliminate problems such as sickness and crime that drag down the progress of society and the effectiveness of government in maintaining the vitality of the economy.

It is common knowledge from modern physics that Nature performs through the principle of least action. It stands to reason that modern government should also work through the principle of least action. Then government will be as efficient and economical as the Government of Nature. The government of the Natural Law Party will have this skill of performance - do less and accomplish more. Under a Natural Law Party government everyone will be educated and trained to utilise this skill of Nature to function with maximum efficiency and economy, and will gain the ability easily to achieve prosperity and abundance in life.

New approach needed

If the new government is to be successful it must be on the basis of doing something new in every field of its responsibility. Only a new seed will yield a new crop.

Everyone is aware that a new approach is urgently needed if our economy is to progress in a healthy, life-supporting, sustainable manner.

Using time series analysis, this study found a significant reduction for Canada and the United States in an economic "misery index" - defined as the sum of monthly inflation and unemployment rates - when the number of participants in the group practice of Maharishi's TM-Sidhi programme exceeded the square root of 1% of the North American population. Proceedings of the Business and Economics Statistics section, American Statistical Association, (1987):799-804; (1988):491-496;(1989):565-570.

ECONOMY

2. THE NATURAL LAW PARTY'S SEVEN POINT PLAN TO REVITALISE THE ECONOMY

The Natural Law Party offers a seven point plan which will revitalise the economy and prevent future economic problems. We will set the economic goals, but will establish committees of the best experts in the nation to formulate and implement the actual procedures to attain our goals in these areas:

No one will be required to work hard, get tired, get stressed, get taxed, lose heart, give up, and remain in chaos. Your one moment of wise decision can save the whole nation from the failures of the past.

SEVEN POINT PLAN

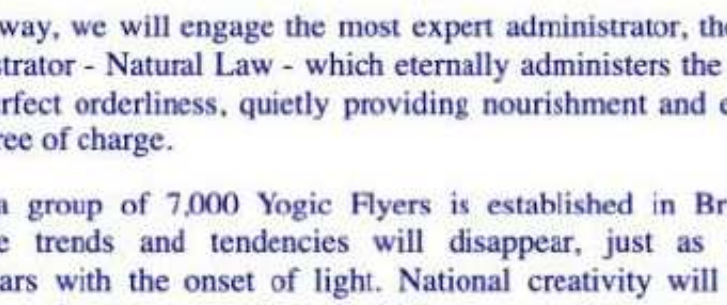

1. Enlivening the infinite creativity of Natural Law in national consciousness - the foundation for sustained economic growth

It is a universal principle of administration that supreme intelligence should be engaged so that government will have an atmosphere of positivity and harmony in the nation to prevent the emergence of negativity and problems.

The government, being the sovereign power in the nation, is expected to have control over situations and circumstances. But any government that does not have the support of Natural Law, even when it is supported by the majority of the nation, will always remain a football of situations and circumstances. This is the case with Britain's current government.

Other parties deal with problems only on the level of the problems themselves, without eliminating the stress and incoherence in national consciousness that underlies all problems. Unless the field is ploughed, the weeds remain and do not allow proper growth of a new crop. Unless the national consciousness becomes coherent and stress-free, problems will always exist and the progress of the nation will be obstructed.

The Natural Law Party, by enlivening the positive, harmonious, and nourishing power of Natural Law in national consciousness, will gain command over situations and circumstances and prevent the eruption of negativity and problems in the nation. We will establish a coherence-creating Group for a Government - 7,000 Yogic Flyers, experts in Natural Law - who will enliven the evolutionary power of Natural Law in collective consciousness to maintain positive and healthy trends in every area of national life.

People practising Transcendental Meditation showed significant improvements at work compared with members of a control group. Academy of Management Journal 17 (1974): 362-368.

In this way, we will engage the most expert administrator, the cosmic administrator - Natural Law - which eternally administers the universe with perfect orderliness, quietly providing nourishment and evolution to all, free of charge.

When a group of 7,000 Yogic Flyers is established in Britain, all negative trends and tendencies will disappear, just as darkness disappears with the onset of light. National creativity will flourish, investor and consumer optimism will increase, and the economy will shift from its existing uncertainties to a royal and steady path of sustained and sustainable growth. We offer this one solution to all the problems of the economy.

This coherence-creating programme has been verified politically through its recent application by President Chissano of Mozambique to create political peace in his country (see section on A Group for a Government).

The effectiveness of this programme has been scientifically verified by over 43 scientific studies during the past 23 years. In a recent demonstration project in Washington, D.C., a group of 4,000 experts in Natural Law - Yogic Flyers - created an influence of positivity and harmony that reduced violent crime to a level 20% lower than the level predicted on the basis of trends and dramatically improved the effectiveness of the US government. Other studies have shown that economic trends, as determined from the previous five years, became more favourable when a group of Yogic Flyers created coherence in national consciousness.

2. Developing the full creative potential of every citizen

Britain's most precious and under-utilised natural resource is the unlimited creative potential of its 58 million citizens. The Natural Law Party will introduce study and research in the field of consciousness into schools and businesses, in order to develop the full creative potential of every individual.

We believe that the only way to ensure the competitiveness of British businesses in international markets is to increase the creativity of British managers and work force. Our educational programmes will develop in everyone the same skill in action found in Nature's principle of least action, which promotes maximum accomplishment with minimum effort on the basis of infinite creativity. These programmes will awaken the inner creative genius of every individual in order that everyone can achieve fulfilment and perfection in their personal and professional lives.

The Natural Law Party government will establish British universities overseas to provide students with the opportunity to travel and study abroad. This will expand their horizons and will help make Britain more effective in the international economy.

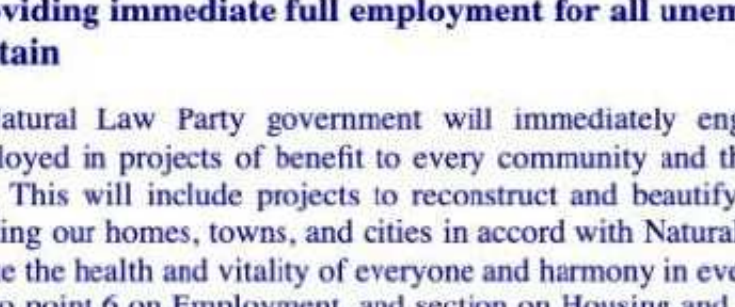

Poverty has its basis in lack of creativity, for which only the government can be held responsible. The Natural Law Party government will train the people to function from the highest level of creativity in order to eradicate poverty completely. Government should not lack the capability to bring fulfilment to everyone.

The supreme achievement of the Natural Law Party will be that through the knowledge of Natural Law introduced in the educational system, each individual will act in accord with Natural Law. No one will violate Natural Law or impinge on the rights of others. This will be the supreme fulfilment of the democratic system in Britain.

By eliminating stress in individual and national life, the Natural Law Party will eliminate the basis of ill health and all problems that restrict economic growth.

3. Creating a healthy nation

The Natural Law Party government will introduce prevention-oriented health education courses in business and industry. These programmes have been scientifically shown to improve the health and vitality of workers, resulting in less absenteeism and increased productivity (please refer to Health section). These programmes also eliminate the stress caused by routine work, improving enjoyment of life.

A study conducted at Sumitomo Heavy Industries by the Japanese National Institute of Industrial Health found significant improvements in physical and mental health in workers who practised Transcendental Meditation. Japanese Journal of Industrial Health 32 (1990): 656.

The prevention-oriented health education courses offered by the Natural Law Party will include training people how to read their own pulse in order to detect growing imbalances in their physiology, and how to correct these imbalances through dietary adjustments and herbal preparations before disease arises. These measures are predicted to reduce disease by 50% within 3 years, saving the nation 18 billion annually in health care costs and preventing untold suffering.

British workers have 177.2 million absentee days per year. With widespread application of the programmes proposed by the Natural Law Party, this figure can be reduced by 50%, saving British business 11.2 billion annually. In addition to the benefits for the individuals concerned and for British business, the government will receive billions of pounds in tax revenue from the increased profits generated by less absenteeism.

4. Providing immediate full employment for all unemployed in Britain

The Natural Law Party government will immediately engage the unemployed in projects of benefit to every community and the whole nation. This will include projects to reconstruct and beautify Britain, rebuilding our homes, towns, and cities in accord with Natural Law, to promote the health and vitality of everyone and harmony in every home (refer to point 6 on Employment, and section on Housing and National Planning).

5. Eliminating public sector borrowing and paying off the national debt while lowering taxes for all

The Natural Law Party government will implement a three-phase plan to eliminate public sector borrowing and quickly pay off the public debt by:

- Reducing expenditure without cutting services, by solving problems at their basis
- Increasing production by enlivening creativity in national consciousness
- Using the profits from engaging the unemployed in projects of general use to society.
- (See section on Eliminating the national debt)

6. Expanding Britain's export market

The Natural Law Party recognises that to ensure the continued growth and stability of our own economy, the whole world economy must also experience growth and stability. In order for the industrialised economies to continue growing, it is vital that developing economies grow in self-sufficiency rather than increasing debt and dependence. Our policy on international trade will therefore be to support the economic progress of all nations, particularly developing nations, rather than merely seeking profits for our own country. We will promote international development projects that support this ideal of mutual benefit.

This will help to create a permanent ever-expanding market for our goods and services abroad. We will increase exports of British equipment and expertise to developing countries to rebuild their towns, homes and infrastructure.

A Natural Law Party government will support the production and export of only life-supporting goods. We will therefore implement an immediate ban on the sale of arms overseas including the export of parts for military equipment (see Defence section).

7. Revitalising Britain's small business sector

The Natural Law Party government will implement reforms to stimulate the small business sector. On taking office, we will immediately establish an advisory board of the best talents in small business in our nation and quickly implement their recommendations.

The small business sector is responsible for the majority of both employment and economic activity. Currently our most creative entrepreneurs feel frustrated and stifled in a morass of regulation and ineffective policies that do not give them what they need.

Entrepreneurs recognize that government has a role to play, but feel there is a large gap between the effectiveness of government policies and what small businesses say they need. Our goal is to provide effective help to the small business sector.

When Transcendental Meditation was introduced to the employees of a chemical manufacturing company, the company increased in productivity and profit. Enlightened Management: Building High-Performance People (1989).

British industry depends on trade, yet most exporting is done by a few large companies. We need to stimulate exports by small businesses, who provide the majority of new job growth.

During the campaign, all Natural Law Party candidates will approach businesses in their constituencies to discuss our economic future: "Produce more and export more". They will present our plans for global economic revitalisation and ask entrepreneurs what they need in order to produce and export more.

When the Natural Law Party forms the government, we will give entrepreneurs what they need to accomplish their expansion goals, in the form of:

- Elimination of cumbersome red tape, which hampers establishing and running a business
- Lowering and simplifying taxes by eliminating Britain's underlying problems and revitalising our economy (please refer to section on Taxation)
- Creation of growing export markets through our international economic revitalisation plan
- One-stop information service on venture capital programmes
- One-stop information services on tax consultation, export markets, and new technology
- Networking with researchers across Britain
- Training in managerial and international networking skills
- Worker training and retraining programmes
- Programmes to awaken the inner creative genius of every student, worker and manager (please refer to section on Education)
- Consultation with the small business sector to decide what further initiatives are needed to revitalise this crucial component of our economy.

3. CORPORATE REVITALISATION PROGRAMME -- ENSURING GOOD FORTUNE FOR BUSINESSES

The Natural Law Party will promote a unique Corporate Revitalisation Programme to restore profitability and vitality to companies whose performance has declined, to improve the performance of successful organisations, and to help new organisations prevent problems. The programme utilises all 40 areas of the total knowledge of Natural Law contained in the Veda and Vedic Literature, as restored in its completeness by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi (see Health section).

The Corporate Revitalisation Programme is designed to improve substantially any company's competitiveness, organisational health, innovative capacity, empowerment and creativity of its employees, value for customers, and financial performance. In particular, it will enhance the good fortune of the company, a factor that is usually considered beyond the control of even the best managers. The Natural Law programmes will align the manager with the cosmic manager and render administration as problem-free and progressive as the administration of the universe.

The Corporate Revitalisation Programme does not endorse the modern principle of down-sizing or laying-off employees to increase company competitiveness. To spend less in order to save money is not intelligent management. To earn more money and keep on progressing without reversal is the right approach.

4. LOWER TAXATION

Lower taxes for all: Create more wealth and feel free to enjoy it

The Natural Law Party is not in favour of taxation. We believe that government should be nourishing to its citizens, as a mother is nourishing to her children. A government that administers through taxes will never be able to satisfy the citizens, since its capability to act depends on how much money it can receive from those governed. Such a government is not an independent sovereign government.

Natural Law Party: governing through the power to nourish

The Natural Law Party brings to light the supreme principle of governing through the power to nourish. The infinite organising power of the Unified Field of Natural Law nourishes everything and quietly governs the infinite diversity of the ever-expanding universe with perfect orderliness. By enlivening Natural Law in national life through coherence-creating groups, the Natural Law Party government will maintain orderly, positive and evolutionary trends, and thereby spontaneously prevent disorder and problems in society.

Elimination of problems and simplified administration means lower taxation

Eliminating problems and making the entire administration simpler and more efficient will naturally lead to reductions in government spending. As a result, the cost of administration will be low. In this way, the government of the Natural Law Party will be able to function without a terrible burden of taxation.

Natural Law Party says: "Create more wealth and feel free to enjoy it"

We believe that it is wrong to unduly tax those who are most precious for the growth of the economy: the tax policy of the Natural Law Party will not deprive the successful and creative people of the nation of their wealth. We advocate low taxes for all - a free market economy should mean 'create more wealth and feel free to enjoy it'. When creativity is fully rewarded by the administration, more wealth will be generated. Reducing taxes will favour everyone in Britain, allowing people of all income levels to retain more of the fruits of their life's work.

ESTIMATED ANNUAL SAVINGS

The purpose of government should be considered not only in terms of money but mainly in terms of the health and happiness in the life of the country. Prosperity is the natural outcome of creativity, which is born of inner peace and happiness. As a side-benefit, the economic plan of the Natural Law Party government will save central and local government over £108 billion annually (within the first term of office) through proven solutions to problems in all areas of national concern:

ANNUAL SAVINGS AFTER THREE YEARS (£ BILLION)

Health care:
Unemployment and welfare:	20
Crime:	20
Increased government efficiency and simplicity:	8
Defence:	6
Trade, industry, energy, and employment	30
Increased government revenue*	6
Absenteeism:	5
Reduced interest on borrowing:
TOTAL SAVINGS TO THE NATION:

£108 billion

* With Natural Law Party policies to increase production, GNP will rise dramatically and government revenue from taxes will increase despite lower tax rates.

Natural Law Party will immediately start phasing out VAT

We will reduce taxes in stages as problems throughout society are reduced. However, we plan to start immediately phasing out VAT altogether. This tax has created a situation, especially in the lower income brackets of society, whereby every time one purchases something the heart shrinks at the word "tax" added on to the price. If someone has to buy ten items in a day, then ten times the heart shrinks, a curse goes to the government, and the joy of buying is overshadowed. Also the complex administration of VAT places a costly bureaucratic burden on all types of business. Eliminating VAT will by itself create an immediate stimulus to the economy, leading to greater employment (and therefore lower expenditure for unemployment payments) and higher revenue from greater national wealth creation. Obviously there are restrictions within the European Union to the amount we can currently reduce VAT. However, when the British Natural Law Party government demonstrates the great savings to government from the implementation of its programmes, we are confident that other countries in the EU will want to do the same and will join us in eliminating VAT altogether.

Simplifying the tax system - eliminating the waste of collecting the people's money and disbursing it back to them

The Natural Law Party will simplify the complicated tax system. It is a waste of the nation's resources for the administration to collect money from the citizens and redistribute it back to them.

Currently there are so many different kinds of taxes - VAT, personal income tax, corporation tax, council tax, national insurance contributions, fuel tax, inheritance tax, capital gains tax, etc. Each requires a separate system of collection, which makes administration complicated. The government then has to tax people even more to pay the expenses of collecting and disbursing the money. High taxes create resentment, leading to a disproportionate degree of our national energy being wasted on tax avoidance, which in turn creates unnecessary pressure on the justice system.

Natural Law Party's one-tax system

In contrast, the programmes of the Natural Law Party will be in accord with the principle of least action through which Nature's Government quietly administers the universe. The Natural Law Party government will introduce a one-tax system. All taxes will be paid to a single government agency, eliminating the current system of dealing with so many levels of government for so many different kinds of taxes.

We will make the tax laws so simple that any citizen can understand them without assistance from a lawyer or accountant.

Our goal: a basic rate of 15% income tax

Our goal is to maintain current levels of personal allowance and to have a basic rate of income tax of 15% with no further deductions for anyone.

This is our target. Because of the current overload of debt and widespread problems, it may not be feasible to reduce all taxes immediately. However, we envisage a time when a 15% basic rate income tax level will be enough to finance an efficient government.

We will achieve that goal through the following plan:

- Expenditure on ill-health, crime, and unemployment will be reduced through solving these problems at their basis by eliminating stress in individual and national consciousness
- Government will become simpler and more efficient. Not only will the government itself be less expensive to administer, but businesses will no longer have to waste a disproportionate fraction of their resources dealing with complex regulations and paperwork, which causes frustration and reduces their profits
- As creativity increases in national consciousness through our programmes to enliven the evolutionary power of Natural Law, personal and corporate incomes will increase, creating higher revenues even with a lower tax rate
- Low taxes and a flourishing economy will attract and keep more investment and businesses in Britain
- A low tax rate and simple tax system will reduce tax avoidance, which some sources estimate reduces government tax revenues by more than 2 billion
- Paying off the national debt (please refer to Public Sector Borrowing section) will save 22 billion annually just in interest payments.

A new policy of taxpayer participation

The Natural Law Party government will promote a low-taxation policy along with inspiration for charitable contribution, donation, and investment for the community, its social well-being and progress. This will restore vitality to the natural impulse to "Love thy neighbour" and "Help thy neighbour". Currently one earns money and has no personal participation in government spending - the tax money goes to a stranger who spends it.

Our system will give to those who have earned the money the joy of participating in the spending for the good of others in their own community and constituency or for great national projects at home and abroad. Healthy and naturally refined emotions will once again thrive in national life through this beautiful tax policy of the Natural Law Party.

Decentralising administration for more efficient spending of tax revenues

The efficiency of administration will be further improved by delegating more power and money to local authorities, who know what is needed in their community and can best decide how the money should be spent (see section on All-Party Government).

Stimulating the economy by lowering taxes

The most powerful fiscal action a government can take to stimulate the economy and provide the basis for long-term economic growth is to lower taxes. High taxes indicate inefficiency of administration. The Natural Law Party is the only political party that offers programmes to reduce expenditure significantly and thereby responsibly cut taxes.

Lowering taxes will provide the financial basis for sustained economic growth and prosperity. This economic growth will create new jobs and eliminate unemployment.

5. ELIMINATING THE NATIONAL DEBT

Public borrowing caused by inefficiency of government and violation of Natural Law

The British people are burdened with high levels of public borrowing due to inefficiency of administration and violation of Natural Law in the nation, which results in ill health, absenteeism, inefficiency, lethargy, lack of creativity, and criminal behaviour. The government then tries to solve these problems, but when expenditure on problems exceeds government tax revenues, the government has to borrow money (public sector borrowing requirement, PSBR) and goes into debt to cover the deficit. The government's accumulated debt is currently approaching 380 billion and is growing by 1.25 million every 30 minutes.

The Natural Law Party government will achieve a balanced budget within three years

Natural Law Party's three-phase plan to eliminate public borrowing and pay off the national debt

The Natural Law Party government will implement a three-phase plan to eliminate public borrowing and quickly pay off the national debt:

1. Reducing expenditure without cutting services, solving problems at their basis:

The Natural Law Party government will achieve a balanced budget within three years. It will eliminate the deficit (currently 22 billion annually) by reducing public expenditure through proven, cost-effective solutions to the underlying problems, rather than through arbitrary spending cuts or by raising taxes, which can only cause further suffering. Our prevention-oriented administration will disallow the emergence of problems by providing complete knowledge of Natural Law, so that people will be able to administer their own lives spontaneously in the right direction, preventing problems before they arise.

For example, Transcendental Meditation has been shown to reduce the need for doctor visits and hospital care by over 50%. This alone will reduce health care expenditure by over 20 billion annually. Our proven programmes to reduce crime rate, recidivism, absenteeism, unemployment, and all other social problems will similarly reduce expenditure in those areas, saving the government a total of 108 billion after three years.

These predictions are not idle conjectures. Every programme of the Natural Law Party is based on established scientific principles, and is supported by extensive scientific research. These programmes have been verified by over 500 studies performed at more than 200 research institutions in 27 countries worldwide. Over the past 15 years, these programmes have been field-tested and found to be successful in reversing negative trends in society and promoting growth and progress in the life of the nation.

2. Increasing production by enlivening creativity in national consciousness:

As creativity increases in national consciousness through our programmes to enliven the evolutionary power of Natural Law, production of goods and services will be greatly enhanced and personal and corporate incomes will increase, creating higher revenues even with lower tax rates.

3. Using the profits from engaging the unemployed in projects of general use to society:

Some of the projects in which the unemployed will be engaged will generate profits that will be used to pay off the national debt. We will be careful to choose projects that do not compete with existing businesses in order not to cause dislocations in the private sector.

We will eliminate public borrowing in our first term of office

Implementation of this plan would eliminate public borrowing (currently 22 billion annually) within our first term of office and would allow us to reduce taxes substantially, thereby further stimulating economic growth. (Please refer to Taxation section.) As the economy flourishes, the ratio of the national debt to GDP (Gross Domestic Product) will decrease rapidly. This, in conjunction with decreased expenditure and increased revenues described above, will enable us to pay off the national debt. Through this plan Britain's vulnerability to foreign investors will finally be eliminated.

Inviting past Conservative and Labour ministers to join a debt creators commission to find means to repay the national debt they created

The Natural Law Party will make all efforts to discharge the national debt created by past administrations. But at the same time, we will establish a Debt Creators Commission (DCC), composed of prime ministers and Cabinet ministers of past Conservative and Labour governments who will be invited to find means to repay the debt that they irresponsibly created through their mismanagement.

Past leaders of the Conservative and Labour parties will have their creativity put to the test to discharge this 380 billion debt, which has placed all future governments and the British people in such an unfortunate situation. By volunteering their time to find the means to repay the debt, they will atone at least in part for the breach of the confidence that the people innocently put in their leadership.

The Natural Law Party government will introduce legislation to prevent any future government from indebting the nation. Before every election, the incumbent government would have to present its books to the public, and the books would have to be balanced.

The Natural Law Party is opposed to gambling, including the National Lottery, as a government-sponsored means of raising money. Gambling destabilises the hearts and minds of the people and promotes negative trends in society (see section on National Heritage for the alternatives we propose).

6. EMPLOYMENT

Providing immediate full employment

The Natural Law Party will provide immediate full employment by engaging the unemployed in the reconstruction of Britain, rebuilding our cities and national infrastructure in accord with Natural Law based principles to promote health and vitality. They will build new gardens, parks, fountains, and lakes to beautify the country. See section on Housing and National Planning. They will also be engaged in construction of new roads, reforestation, other public works, and social services such as assistance in hospitals and schools.

Their work will create a beautiful, healthy nation whose citizens feel that they are living in Heaven on Earth, while simultaneously eliminating the social distress caused by acute unemployment.

The Natural Law Party will implement the following policies in order to eliminate unemployment in the future:

• Sustained economic growth

We will sustain high employment by sustaining economic growth on the basis of increased creativity and reduced taxation.

• Professional training programme

Our ideal of education is: enlightenment first, then training in professions later. For those already close to graduation from secondary school and university, we will provide one-year professional training programmes while training them in techniques to develop higher states of consciousness. This will keep them in school longer and delay their entry into the work force until our economic revitalisation programme has had time to create a large number of new job opportunities. It will also mean that graduates are more mature and better prepared for their profession.

The Natural Law Party government will also establish schools abroad for students to travel and study in different countries.

• Strengthening future generations

The Natural Law Party will create an economic climate where it is unnecessary for mothers to work outside the home. We believe that future generations will suffer if children are raised by child-minders and day-care centres rather than by their mothers. Our policy will ensure the strength of the coming generation and the future success of the nation.

Given the number of mothers with pre-school children who are working outside their home, this one step alone would go a long way towards eliminating unemployment.

• Solving youth unemployment

Unemployment is particularly high among young people who have not completed their education. They feel frustration in their lives, and cannot find serenity, stability and dignity. The high number of early leavers and students who dislike school indicates that the current education system is inadequate - incapable of leading students to higher levels of fulfilment and success in their personal and professional lives.

The Natural Law Party government will offer special educational programmes and create special colleges for early leavers to provide enlightenment and perfection in their lives, raising their creativity to the level where they can accomplish anything. These programmes are highly attractive and interesting to young people because they have been shown to unfold the creative genius of every student, develop inner happiness, and provide the professional skills necessary for high levels of achievement. These programmes offer the experience of bliss in the experience of pure consciousness, which will make the learning process very appealing to everyone.

• More years in education

The Natural Law Party's policy is to provide the opportunity for all young people to complete higher levels of education. Ideally, every student should complete a PhD. Instead of the youth being unemployed they will become the leaders of Britain's future and lead the nation to function in accord with the principle of least action - maximum accomplishment with minimum effort, on the basis of infinite creativity on the ground of total knowledge.

• Shorter working hours

Through our proven programmes, the Natural Law Party government will increase the efficiency of the work force and the productivity of the entire nation. On this basis, we will propose that companies offer shorter working hours so that workers will have less fatigue and more time to enjoy personal, family and social life.

• Providing work opportunities abroad

The Natural Law Party government will provide employment opportunities for unemployed British workers abroad. We will train the unemployed as consultants in the reconstruction of developing countries, and will export British equipment and expertise to developing countries to rebuild their towns, homes and infrastructure. Unlike many current development projects which leave developing countries with large debts and take an unfair amount of profit to the richer countries, this project will be designed to assist developing countries in raising their standard of living and self-sufficiency, creating a lasting basis for mutually enriching trade. More than a hundred countries in the world need this support.

The reconstruction of the developing world will be undertaken simultaneously with the reconstruction of Britain. This will rebuild both economies simultaneously. Because Britain has strong connections to all nations, it will be easy to increase our exports of machinery, equipment, and other items to the developing world in order to start a global programme for rural development and urban renewal. See section on Housing and National Planning. This will also be an opportunity for Britain to have a more positive influence in the world, especially when combined with the Natural Law Party's ban on the export of arms. See section on Defence

To help implement this policy, embassies will be revitalised to create better trade relations.

The scope of this programme to glorify the world is so vast, grand, and dignified that it may even go beyond the imagination of many people, but only by planning on such a grand scale can we eliminate huge debts and avert economic recessions in our own country and throughout the world, and ensure that these problems do not happen again. The Natural Law Party has only to gain the support of the people, and all the great economic goals of Britain will be fulfilled through this programme.

By enlivening the infinite creativity of Natural Law in national consciousness through A Group for a Government, bringing support of nature to every individual, and training everyone to function in accord with the principle of least action, the Natural Law Party will ensure that every citizen will be successful in finding a rewarding and lucrative career without great effort, frustration or delay.

7. MANAGEMENT AND WORKFORCE

creating an ideal quality of life - prosperity, creativity, and happiness for Britain's work force

Prosperity naturally flourishes on the ground of creativity, which is born of happiness. Natural Law Party government will achieve the laudable goal of an affluent society: happiness - life without problems and suffering, and without any scarcity.

A Group for a Government will enliven the evolutionary power of Natural Law in collective consciousness to maintain positive and healthy trends in every area of commercial and individual life. This will eliminate the need for hard work in order to achieve prosperity and progress because Natural Law always works through the principle of least action, which promotes maximum accomplishment with minimum effort on the basis of infinite creativity. The influence of orderliness generated by the self-referral performance of this group will bring the support of Natural Law to workers and businesses, with the result that their good fortune - a significant factor in business success - will improve.

Stimulating the economy through solving problems at their basis

The Natural Law Party's cost-effective solutions to the nation's problems has the potential to save the nation over 108 billion per year within our first term of office, allowing the government to balance the budget and cut taxes significantly. This will propel the economy into a strong growth phase and will create millions of new jobs, thus putting an end to unemployment and declining standards of living.

Developing the full creative potential of managers and workers

The Natural Law Party government will also develop our most precious and under-utilised national resource - the unlimited creative potential of our 58 million citizens.

We will introduce study and research of consciousness into schools and businesses to awaken the inner creative genius of every individual and educate and train everyone how to achieve perfection in their profession.

Every manager and worker will enjoy high productivity, increased creativity, increased job satisfaction, and improved relations with co-workers. These programmes also eliminate the stress caused by routine work, improving health and enjoyment of life. The increased productivity shown to occur from Natural Law Party programmes will reward employers with higher profits, strengthen the domestic economy, and make Britain more competitive and successful in international markets.

Maximising wages and fulfilment

While a minimum wage is very important, what is more important is maximum fulfilment. Employers, workforce and trade unions together should create a working environment which is ideal in every respect, taking care of employees' job satisfaction, health, welfare and safety, and decreasing the number of working hours. Companies will be offered tax incentives to implement proven prevention-oriented health care measures, such as Transcendental Meditation and the other essential aspects of Natural Law Party health policy described in the section on Health. This would reduce employers' costs and improve profits, enabling employers to maximise wages for the workforce.

Improving benefits for workers, the unemployed, and the retired

We will supplement the monetary benefits of social programmes for the retired, the unemployed, the sick, the disabled, and the poor with programmes to enliven the individual's full creative potential. Unemployment benefits will also be supplemented by programmes to nurture creativity and self-sufficiency. The unemployed will be given the opportunity to give service in areas of general good for the community.

Increases in pensions will be supplemented by programmes to ensure the continued good mental and physical health, well-being, and happiness of the retired. These programmes will bring fulfilment to the role of the elderly in society.

The Natural Law Party government will champion all trends for improving the quality of life in British society. Please also see section on Family and Social Policy.

Improving the quality of life by creating ideal working conditions

- Shorter work hours: The ideal is that every company should have a six-hour working day. Our economic system should promote greater happiness, wealth, and wisdom for everyone in society and not leave the whole population tired and stressed every evening, without time to really enjoy life.
- Working closer to home: Our work force gets exhausted just from commuting, even before they get to work. We will support all means to allow people to work closer to their home.
- Lower taxes, and a greatly simplified tax system: The Natural Law Party government will lower taxes and introduce a one-tax system. We will make the tax laws so simple that any citizen can understand them without assistance from a lawyer or accountant.
- Life-supporting, healthy, dignified jobs: All work should produce something that is beautiful or useful. The Natural Law Party government would encourage productive, dignified employment in life-supporting, nourishing industries.
- Mothers at home: It is a strain both on mothers and on their children for mothers to work outside the home. The mothers become tired and stressed, and the children are weakened. This may lead to ill health, drug abuse, and crime. The Natural Law Party will create an economic climate where it is unnecessary for mothers to work outside the home. See section on Family and Social Policy.
- Improved industrial relations: Harmonious industrial relations require both employers and employees to appreciate and accommodate each others' needs. As long as stress prevails in the workplace, awareness will be restricted to immediate and short-term issues with self-interest dominating. The Natural Law Party government will eliminate stress in individual and national consciousness through highly effective, scientifically proven stress-reduction programmes. This will promote health, harmony, and cooperation in the workplace, bringing an end to the friction and suspicion between workforce and management that have long hampered economic growth.

8. SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH

Validating the Natural Law Party's Economic Programmes

- Increased Creativity: Individuals who learned the Transcendental Meditation technique showed a significant increase in creativity over a five-month period on three measures of creativity in comparison to controls (Journal of Creative Behavior, 13 (1979): 169). Other studies have demonstrated increased intelligence, academic performance, and orderliness of brain functioning (please refer to section on Education)
- Increased Profit and Productivity: Productivity and profit in a chemical manufacturing company increased progressively over a six-year period after the Transcendental Meditation programme was introduced to employees. (Enlightened Management: Building High Performance People, 1989)
- Enhanced Performance: Applications of the Transcendental Meditation programme in business settings have been shown to result in increased productivity, improved job performance and job satisfaction, reduced absenteeism, and improved relations with co-workers and supervisors (Academy of Management Journal 17 (1974): 362)
- Reduced Unemployment: A recent study of economic indicators in the U.S. and Britain found a sizeable reduction in Okun's Misery Index - defined as the sum of the inflation rate and the unemployment rate - from implementation of the coherence-creating programme proposed by the Natural Law Party (American Statistical Association, Business and Economics Statistics Section, (1987): 799; (1988): 491; (1989): 565)
- Improved Health of Industrial Employees: Scientists from the Japanese Ministry of Labour at the Institute of Industrial Health, studying nearly 700 employees of a major Japanese manufacturing company, found that those who learned Transcendental Meditation showed improved mental and physical health, decreased insomnia, and reduced cigarette smoking. (Japanese Journal of Industrial Health, 32 (1990): 656; Japanese Journal of Public Health, 37 (1990): 729)
- Decreased Need for Medical Care: A five-year study of health insurance statistics on over 2,000 persons practising the Transcendental Meditation programme - one of the prevention programmes endorsed by the Natural Law Party - found that doctors' visits and hospitalisations were less than half that of other groups of comparable age, gender, and profession. Improvements were observed in every major disease category, including an 87% drop in hospital admissions for cardiovascular disease (Psychosomatic Medicine, 49 (1987): 493)
- Reduced Health Care Costs: In a study from Quebec, medical expenses of 599 people fell by 36% over three years after starting Transcendental Meditation, compared to non-meditating control subjects. Subjects who had the highest medical costs before learning Transcendental Meditation showed an even greater reduction in expenses, which fell by 54% over three years after beginning the technique (Dissertation Abstracts International, 53 (1993): 12A)
- Decreased Absenteeism: When the Transcendental Meditation programme was introduced to the employees of a chemical manufacturing company, the number of days lost through illness fell by approximately 50% over a six-year period.

ECONOMY

PRINCIPLE OF LEAST ACTION

Every activity or process in Nature obeys the principle of least action, Nature's own principle of economy. For any activity, simple or complex, nature's infinite intelligence spontaneously and instantaneously computes which path will consume least effort for that activity.

For example, if an object moves from position X to position Y (see figure), there may be many (even an infinite number) of possible paths that the object can take. These are labelled as A, B, C, etc. Of these, one path, labelled L, will have a minimum value for a quantity known as the "action" (the momentum multiplied by the distance travelled). Nature spontaneously chooses this path. The same principle applies for all systems and all types of activity, however complex. When this principle was first stated by Maupertius in 1747, he exclaimed at the "divine economy" that nothing in the universe, not even "action", is squandered.

This theme of economy in Nature's administration of the universe may be termed the principle of "automation in administration". The Government of Nature operates with supreme efficiency, so that the maximum result is obtained for the minimum expenditure of effort. The whole of the universe is silently and efficiently governed through this principle.

ECONOMY

A NEW THEME OF WORLD ECONOMY: THE ECONOMY OF NATURAL LAW

The Natural Law Party is presenting a new practical philosophy of the world economy through which every country will gain self-sufficiency and will have complete faith in its own treasury, rather than always trying to derive strength for its own currency from the currencies of other countries.

A government is an all-powerful organisation: it can make any laws and it has its own treasury. Therefore a government should be a self-sufficient organisation, able to promote and secure the well-being and progress of everyone in the country.

If a government says that it has no money, it is not a proper government; it is not a successful government. If it has the top people working for it in different departments and it has a treasury, a government is not expected to say that it does not have this or that. The government should be able to provide. But all governments say they are short of money, and they are all borrowing. It is an odd situation, which is not proper for any government in the world.

This is because no government today is building its economy on the basis of the economy of Natural Law, which functions according to the principle of least action. Natural Law is most economical because its functioning is in self-referral dynamism - it creates from within itself. The economy of Natural Law promotes infinite creativity and infinite organising power. This is the economy of Natural Law that we want to bring into the management of the economy of the world and every country. Its basis is in economising action: perform action from the level of self-referral consciousness, the Unified Field of Natural Law. Then Natural Law will conduct the whole economy.

This is the time to replace the old concept that money works out everything with the new concept that Natural Law works out everything.

The national economy will then never be short of funds. The infinite organising power of Natural Law will uphold life, and money will be secondary. When money comes first, it becomes the driving force of life, and this creates strain and unnaturalness. The basis of the economy should be the economy of Natural Law.

This is an important aspect of the programmes of the Natural Law Party to establish the administration of Natural Law. It will be achieved by making available to everyone the training to rise to higher states of consciousness and function from the level of the infinite intelligence of Natural Law. This will require that all 40 values of the complete knowledge of Natural Law contained in the Veda and Vedic literature are utilised (see Health section) to eliminate obstructions in life and create a self-sufficient individual and a self-sufficient government with no weakness.

Existing governments administer in an unnatural manner. They are not able even to provide proper health, education, economy - so people have to work hard. Governments promote hard work. The Natural Law Party will be promoting activity from silence.

This is a glimpse of the economy we are going to create. At present every government is dependent on other governments: there is a global dependence of all governments. So freedom does not exist: no nation is sovereign today. Every currency is dependent on all other currencies.

The Natural Law Party will create a situation whereby every government will enjoy freedom, self-sufficiency and non-dependence.

DECENTRALISING GOVERNMENT

Devolving responsibility for solving problems to the local level

The Natural Law Party government will give more power and responsibility for the solution of pressing national problems to the leaders of local authorities throughout the nation.

Any problem, whether unemployment, crime or pollution, has its origin at a local level. It is there, locally, that the problem is known best and can be solved most quickly. Therefore our policy will be to help the local government solve national problems locally, at their origin. When all local problems are prevented, national problems will never arise.

The Natural Law Party will, for example, solve the problem of unemployment at the local level. The planning and programmes developed by the All-Party Government of experts on the national level will be implemented on the local level. Mayors and leaders of councils will be given the responsibility, the financial resources, and the authority to:

- Educate and take care of the youth of their municipality so as not to let them remain unskilled and unprepared for the work force See section on Education.
- Ensure sustained growth in the local economy to create jobs for newcomers to the job market. This will be achieved through maintaining a local Group for a Government to enliven the evolutionary power of Natural Law in the municipality, and by establishing a local commission comprising business leaders, engineers, and other professionals to recommend programmes that will create and sustain high employment.
- Local council leaders will work with their local Member of Parliament to administer programmes to employ the unemployed in rebuilding the infrastructure of the area - including roads, bridges, railways, and schools and other public buildings. They will create advanced telecommunications networks, and generally make the environment more attractive for new businesses to be drawn to the area and operate there profitably. In addition, the unemployed will be engaged in the creation of lakes, fountains, public gardens and woods, with a focus on creating an environment that will be not only beautiful but also healthy and nourishing for children and adults alike. See section on Housing and National Planning.
- The capital needed for these projects will be created through local bond issues which will be repaid through the revenues generated by charging tolls or user fees where relevant, and through the greater revenues coming to the city from expansion of business activity.

The Natural Law Party government's policy of decentralisation will also apply to all other government services, such as programmes to care for the needy, which can be more efficiently and inexpensively delivered at the local level.

SIMPLIFICATION AND INCREASED EFFICIENCY OF THE SOCIAL SECURITY SYSTEM

The brilliance of the social security policy of the Natural Law Party government will be to:

1. Increase the certainty of income support for those who need it
2. Greatly reduce the wastage of national energy in collecting and disbursing taxes
3. Shift the responsibility of caring for those in need to the local level. (This will be provided through the structure of the single tax policy of the Natural Law Party government.)

As stress in national consciousness is dissolved through the upsurge of coherence created by our Group for a Government policy, everyone will be enjoying greater affluence and better health. Everyone will have better fortune and will increase in self-sufficiency. The integrity and harmony of the family and community will rise, so that anyone in need will be lovingly cared for by their family, friends, or fellow workers.

The extended family: fulfilment for every generation

The extended family - four generations living together - will naturally become common. The wisdom and experience of the elders will be naturally available to the young so that every generation derives maximum from the previous generation. In this way, the desire of the elderly to nourish their children will be fulfilled, and at the same time, the elderly will be taken care of by those in their middle years. See section on Family and Social Policy.

Implementing these plans will require a sufficient degree of transformation in the social order. The Natural Law Party government will be careful to achieve this ideal in a natural way without imposition of law. These concepts will be proposed and when there is consent of the population then laws will be passed to implement these plans and raise government performance to this high level.

LAW AND JUSTICE

Creating a crime-free Britain

Richard Johnson
PARTY CHAIRMAN

"ONLY THE NATURAL LAW PARTY has programmes that have been shown to reduce crime immediately and substantially. We will create a crime-free Britain by reducing stress in the individual and society, and by developing in the whole population the ability to think and act spontaneously in accord with Natural Law."

1. Three proven programmes to arrest crime:
 - Crime prevention through proper education
 - Immediate crime reduction by creating coherence in national consciousness
 - Effective rehabilitation
2. Major cost savings
3. Simplifying the legal system
4. Scientific research demonstrating the effectiveness of the Natural Law Party's programmes:
 - Immediate 20% drop in violent crime (Washington D.C. 1993)
 - 60% drop in crime over five years (Merseyside 1988-92)
 - 40% drop in prisoner reconviction rates (California 1983)

2. COST SAVINGS

Through this three-fold approach of proper education, creating coherence in national consciousness, and effective rehabilitation, we can dramatically reduce the cost of crime currently estimated at more than 30 billion a year according to Home Office figures. (See section on Solution to the problem of crime).

Based on the results of research, fully implementing the Natural Law Party programmes would quickly reduce prison costs by half, saving £800 million per year. In addition, the £16 billion per year costs of the criminal justice system can be reduced substantially by reduction of crime and by simplification of the legal and judicial system. (Please see section on Economy).

3. SIMPLYFYING THE LEGAL AND JUDICIAL SYSTEM

When the approaches described above are implemented, there will be less need for the complicated legal and judicial system that currently exists. Laws are made on the basis of people's behaviour, and when the whole population begins to behave more in harmony with Natural Law, everyone will be increasingly law-abiding. The influence of intense positivity in national consciousness created by A Group for a Government will progressively eliminate stress and crime in the nation. As a result, the need for law enforcement and judicial processes will be less and less. On this basis, the Natural Law Party will explore the possibility of reducing the expense and complexity of the legal system by turning over parts of the judicial function to the respected elders of every community.

Through the programmes of the Natural Law Party, Britain will enjoy a natural state of law and order, based on the harmony, happiness, and productivity of all its citizens - a crime-free Britain - a shining example for every other nation.

Crime can never be eliminated by punishing criminals. We must have a prevention-oriented approach.

4. SCIENTIFIC RESEARCH DEMONSTRATING THE EFFECTIVENESS OF THE NATURAL LAW PARTY'S PROGRAMMES FOR CRIME PREVENTION AND REHABILITATION

• Prevention of crime through education

Of the more than 500 scientific research studies on the benefits of Maharishi's Transcendental Meditation, many studies document its effectiveness in increasing intelligence, creativity, and academic performance. In addition, studies show the following effects of this programme: growth of higher levels of moral judgement; reduction of dropout rate among disadvantaged young people; and reduction of drug abuse. These findings demonstrate that implementing this technology as a part of education will lead to greater educational achievement and prevent the problems of young people that are associated with the tendency towards crime.

REDUCED DRUG AND ALCOHOL ABUSE

Subjects who practise Transcendental Meditation showed significant reductions in all categories of substance abuse as compared to controls. Reference: International Journal of the Addictions, 12 (1977): 729-754; 26 (1991): 293-325.

Sample references: British Journal of Educational Psychology, 55 (1985): 164-166; Education, 107 (1986): 49-54; 109 (1989): 302-304; Journal of Personality and Individual Differences, 12 (1991): 1105-1106; Dissertation Abstracts International, 36 (1975): 4361A-4362A; 38 (1977): 3351A and 3372B; The Journal of Creative Behavior, 13 (1979): 169-180; International Journal of the Addictions, 26 (1991): 293-325.

• Reduction of crime at the local and national levels through A Group for a Government

Extensive scientific research demonstrates that a large group of participants in the Transcendental Meditation and TM-Sidhi programme reduces crime by reducing stress and creating an influence of coherence and harmony in the collective consciousness of society. The reduction of crime is immediate when the group is assembled, and crime reverts to its former levels when the group leaves. These findings indicate that for lasting reduction and elimination of crime, it is necessary to establish a permanent group of professionals to generate this influence of coherence in the nation and the world.

Sample references: Journal of Conflict Resolution, 32 (1988): 776-812; Journal of Crime and Justice, 4 (1981): 25-45; The Journal of Mind and Behaviour, 8 (1987): 67-104; 9 (1988): 457-486; Social Indicators Research, 22 (1990): 399-418; Dissertation Abstracts International, 50 (1989): 2203B; Social Science Perspectives Journal, 2(4) (1988): 127-146; Psychology, Crime and Law, 2(3) (1996), 165-174.

Creating a truly democratic government

If democracy is to be real, education must make the individual self-sufficient and enable him to fulfil his desires without jeopardising the interests of others. As long as law enforcement is necessary, government cannot truly be called democratic, since the very act of enforcement deprives the individual of his right to freedom. The government established by the Natural Law Party will be democratic in the full sense of the term, since it will uphold law and order simply by educating the population to think and act spontaneously in accordance with Natural Law and by preventing stress from arising on both levels, individual and collective. Such spontaneous compliance with law is the only way to maintain law and order. It will eliminate the basis of all crime, and crown the government with success. The wise voters of this election have the ability to choose whether to have effective law and order or to continue with the same old problems that have lingered on for generations.

• Effective rehabilitation of maximum security prisoners

Transcendental Meditation has proved its success as a rehabilitation programme in maximum security prisons throughout the world. These studies demonstrate that through this programme inmates show reduced hostility and aggression, reduced stress and anxiety, improved behaviour, improved health, and improved mental health. Most important, in comparison to other rehabilitation programmes, reconviction rates are reduced by 40% among those who learn Transcendental Meditation.

In the African nation of Senegal, 11,000 prisoners and over 900 prison officers were instructed in Transcendental Meditation in 1987-1988 and as a result, reconviction rates dropped from 90% to less than 8%, reducing the prison population by half and allowing a number of prisons to be closed.

Sample references: Criminal Justice and Behavior, 5 (1978): 3-20; Journal of Criminal Justice, 15 (1987): 211-230; Dissertation Abstracts International, 34 (1973): 4732A; 43 (1982): 539B; International Journal of Comparative and Applied Criminal Justice, 11 (1987): 111-132.

REDUCED RECIDIVISM

Prisoners on parole who had learned Transcendental Meditation while in prison had fewer new prison terms and more favourable parole outcomes each year over a five-year period after release than matched controls. Reference: Journal of Criminal Justice, 15 (1987): 211-230.

EUROPEAN POLICY

A simple formula for conflict-free politics and problem-free government

John Collins

SPOKESMAN FOR EUROPEAN POLICY

"THE SOVEREIGNTY OF THE UNITED KINGDOM should not be sacrificed for the sake of the further unification of the European Union. Unity and harmony cannot be achieved in a state of dependence. Every European nation must have strong and integrated national consciousness, which can be reliably created by the Natural Law Party's 'Group for a Government' programme. This is the only formula to create the ground for both true sovereignty of the European nations, and for lasting unity in Europe."

EUROPEAN POLICY

1. A EUROPEAN UNION OF SOVEREIGN NATIONS

The Natural Law Party offers a reliable and scientific programme to create real and lasting unity in Europe. The Natural Law Party places as a priority the principle that the United Kingdom must not sacrifice its sovereignty for the sake of the European Union. Unity and harmony cannot be achieved in a state of dependence. Only strong, integrated, sovereign nations can contribute towards a European Union that has true meaning and is of value to its member states.

The Natural Law Party emphasises that union cannot be accomplished by political means, as demonstrated by the recent history of the EU. Unity cannot be legislated for; neither can it be legislated against. Only Natural Law can create a united Europe of sovereign nations, just as Natural Law strengthens every cell and every organ in the body while maintaining the integration of the whole body.

Only the invincible evolutionary power of Natural Law can promote the tendencies, wishes, and needs of each country at the same time as strengthening the collective interests of the Union as a whole. The Natural Law Party will introduce the 'Group for a Government' programme of a group of experts in Yogic Flying, which has been shown by research to bring coherence, integration, and stability to the collective consciousness of the nation. This will uphold and strengthen the sovereignty of each nation. At the same time, unity among nations will naturally be created through the unifying influence of Natural Law (see section on A Group for a Government).

With regard to a referendum on our future in Europe, the options being presented so far are basically two in number: do we want (a) unity or (b) sovereignty. This creates an uncomfortable choice for everyone.

The Natural Law Party's programme for Europe solves this dilemma by offering the third choice that everyone wants: unity and sovereignty.

EUROPEAN POLICY

2. SECURING A STABLE FOUNDATION FOR EUROPEAN MONETARY UNION

The issue of monetary union within the EU is one of the most critical facing the government of the United Kingdom during the coming parliamentary term. European Monetary Union (EMU) imposed under the wrong conditions could have disastrous consequences for the economies of all member states and the EU as a whole, and could jeopardise the future of the EU itself. It is dangerous to impose EMU when the EU is undoubtedly not ready for it. Conversely, a "wait-and-see" policy endangers the stability of the EU and reveals a conspicuous lack of both intelligence and purpose in policy.

Clearly, monetary union is desirable in that it provides stability for internal and international trade, it disallows predatory speculation on a national currency, and it disallows one nation from artificially manipulating its currency for unfair trade advantage.

Only the invincible evolutionary power of Natural Law can promote the tendencies, wishes, and needs of each country at the same time as strengthening the collective interests of the Union as a whole

Monetary union must be based on true stability of each currency, which in turn is based on the stability and strength of the national economy. Equally, economic stability cannot be artificially contrived - as is clear from the turbulent economic history of each EU country during the past few years. Economic stability and dynamism can be created only by strengthening the real basis of the economy, which means unfolding the full creative potential of the population, and creating coherence, integration, and dynamism in the collective consciousness.

Therefore the Natural Law Party's prescription for successful financial union is:

- create coherence in the collective consciousness of the United Kingdom (and other member states);
- verify the effectiveness of this strategy by monitoring economic stability and a quality of life index;
- measure the stability of the pound, as well as that of the other EU currencies;
- link the currencies by an exchange rate mechanism (ERM) only when their stability has been demonstrated;
- finally, when these criteria are met (i.e. when the stability of the ERM and that of all the participating currencies is clearly demonstrated) and all nations agree on it, introduce a single currency.

The Natural Law Party proposes that the European currency, once introduced, would be used for international trade and transactions. Each country would retain its own currency for internal transactions, since the traditional currency of each nation is such an important symbol of sovereignty.

3. EFFECTIVE REFORM OF THE COMMON AGRICULTURAL POLICY

The hazards associated with the transformation from self-sufficient, traditional farming to industrialised, agrochemical-dependent farming have been exacerbated by the economic framework set by the Common Agricultural Policy (CAP). The often artificial constraints set by the CAP result in even higher usage of chemicals, overproduction and waste, a loss in the traditional diversity of crop production, and economic pressures that create disadvantages for the small traditional farming units.

The Natural Law Party agriculture policy urges a complete reform of the CAP to rectify these imbalances, encourage sustainable farming, minimise bureaucratic intervention, and promote natural, organic agriculture (see section on Agriculture).

4. ESTABLISHING A COMMON EUROPEAN POLICY TO BAN GENETICALLY MODIFIED FOODS

The Natural Law Party has carried out a thorough scientific investigation of the potential hazards associated with the introduction of genetically modified foods, and has concluded that the short- and long-term risks involved do not justify the commercially-driven haste to introduce these highly unnatural products. The life and health of this generation and all future generations, together with the healthy future of our environment, should not under any circumstances be jeopardised for the sake of short-sighted economic gain posing in the garb of science (see Agriculture - section on Genetically Modified Foods).

The Natural Law Party is already conducting a campaign throughout Europe and worldwide to alert politicians, the food industry, farmers, and consumers to the dangers associated with genetic modification. The Natural Law Party will continue to pursue this campaign, in or out of office.

5. FULFILLING THE SOCIAL CHAPTER THROUGH EFFECTIVE PROGRAMMES FOR THE ECONOMY

The requirement to subscribe to the Social Chapter cedes national sovereignty to the EU for issues that should be determined by our own government. The government of the United Kingdom, with its parental role for the life of everyone in the nation, should be able to formulate its own economic and social policies to ensure proper conditions and benefits for the people of our own country. Having such regulations imposed from Brussels could easily lead to the imposition of conditions that are unfair or unsuitable to the specific circumstances that apply in Britain. This is already experienced in all too many areas of administration currently regulated from Brussels.

The economic and social policies of the Natural Law Party will provide better conditions than those of the Social Chapter

The economic and social policies of the Natural Law Party will provide better conditions than those of the Social Chapter. The Natural Law Party's programmes will fulfil the goals of the Social Chapter automatically, by providing the workforce with a good quality of life, good health, the opportunity to develop their full potential, and favourable and cordial conditions at work. The Natural Law Party's programmes will result in a healthy economy, in which the principle of hard work is replaced by Nature's Principle of least action, the principle of economy in Nature. The principle of least action, found everywhere in Nature, ensures that there is maximum result for the minimum expenditure of effort (see section on Economy).

6. COMMON FOREIGN POLICY AND DEFENCE POLICY THAT SERVES THE INTERESTS OF THE EU MEMBER STATES WHILE NOURISHING STABILITY AND PEACE IN THE WORLD

The Natural Law Party advocates the same foreign policy for the EU as it advocates for the United Kingdom - a policy that truly nourishes and supports all nations (see Foreign Policy section below). This approach will allow the EU to play a nourishing role with regard to its neighbours in Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union. Expansion of the EU eastwards (with regard to economic and defence issues) is regarded as a threat or difficulty only when the element of coherence in collective consciousness is not being attended to. Just as this factor provides the key for creating integration within the EU, it also creates the ground for the integration of the EU with its neighbours and partners from all over the world.

Likewise, the defence policy of the EU must adopt the same principles as outlined in the Defence section of this Manifesto. Security and invincible defence can not be established through the means of arms, but only through creating lasting and stable peace in the world. The only true security for Europe lies in securing the real friendship of all other nations, not in posing a bigger threat by amassing a large and well-armed military.

Any military corps set up by the EU must include a prevention wing, a group of 7,000 experts in Yogic Flying. This group will secure the immunity of Europe from hostility, from within and without, and create the basis for Europe's friendship with all nations, the only intelligent basis for sound foreign policy.

7. CREATING MORE EFFICIENT GOVERNMENT IN EUROPE AND REDUCING THE BUREAUCRACY OF ADMINISTRATION IN THE EUROPEAN UNION

The theme of Natural Law government can be summarised in the expression "Automation in Administration". The Government of Nature operates with supreme efficiency, using what is known in physics as the "principle of least action". Nature's intelligence spontaneously computes the path of minimum effort for any action. Through this principle of supreme economy, the whole of the universe is silently and efficiently governed.

The Natural Law Party applies this principle in designing its approach to administration and setting policy in each area. Effective government is streamlined government; it absorbs as little as possible of the taxpayers' money in conducting its tasks silently and efficiently.

Nowhere is this principle more needed than in the affairs of the European Union. Precious financial resources from each country are needlessly spent in simply maintaining the over-populated, over-complex, and inefficient bureaucracy of the various components of the European administrative machinery.

Not only is an overly bureaucratic administrative system expensive; it is actually less able to fulfil its mandate to serve the people than a slimmer administration. There is so much inertia within the system as it administers itself, that little energy is available for its external functions. The Natural Law Party would take all necessary measures to make the administration of the European Union efficient and proficient in serving the peoples of Europe.

8. PHASING OUT VAT BY MAKING GOVERNMENT MORE EFFICIENT

The regulations regarding VAT are one example of the sovereignty of the member nations of the EU being eroded. Every nation in the EU should have the right to eliminate this burdensome tax by making its own administration more efficient. As pointed out in the section on Taxation (see Economy), VAT creates an administrative burden for both government and business. It is a complex tax to administer, and places a restriction on the ability of everyone to enjoy their own earnings, particularly the lower income brackets of society.

The Natural Law Party will create the ground for phasing out VAT by making administration more efficient and by making substantial savings in a number of areas of governmental expenditure through the introduction of more effective programmes. Just this one measure of phasing out VAT will add a substantial stimulus to the economy.

Since the Natural Law Parties throughout Europe are united on this issue, the Natural Law Party can make a commitment to reverse the erosion of national freedom created by European legislation on VAT.

9. THE COMPLEXITY OF THE EU AND THE DIVERSITY OF ITS MEMBER STATES DEMAND A SCIENTIFIC APPROACH TO ADMINISTRATION, THE APPROACH OF THE NATURAL LAW PARTY.

The more complex and diverse a system, the more simple and systematic its administration must be for that system to function effectively. The European Union is complex not just because the population it serves is much larger than any individual member state, but because there is enormous diversity in the systems of administration in the member states, as well as in their cultures and languages.

The Natural Law Party provides the simplicity, effectiveness, and universality needed in the administration of the EU, through its scientific Natural Law based approach.

10. THE URGENT NEED FOR NATURAL LAW POLICIES IN THE EU

The existence of the EU has brought into being new types of legislative problems. For instance, the removal of border controls has created new forms of cross-border crime for which the existing policing and judicial systems are not equipped. Other difficulties arise where there are inequities resulting from the application of single EU rules in the context of the widely-varying situations in the member states.

The policies of the Natural Law Party are ideal for tackling this situation, since they are not based on the specific legislative history of any one country, but on universal scientific principles of direct relevance everywhere. The scientific research also indicates that the Natural Law Party's practical programmes are well-equipped to solve these new European level problems. For instance, the crime prevention and criminal rehabilitation strategies of the Natural Law Party are equally applicable to the new transnational crime as they are to the more "traditional" forms of criminality, in order to create a crime-free Europe.

UK MANIFESTO

EUROPEAN POLICY

11. FOREIGN POLICY

THE OVERRIDING PRINCIPLE behind the foreign policy of the Natural Law Party is for Britain always to have only a nourishing influence on the family of nations. This will be achieved by bringing national consciousness in tune with Natural Law so that the nourishing and evolutionary power of Natural Law guides the actions of the nation and spreads to influence all other countries.

Nourishing all nations and promoting world harmony

Natural Law Party government will uphold the well-being, progress and prosperity of all nations simultaneously by governing the nation from the common basis of life - the holistic value of Natural Law - nourishing everyone and everything equally.

The foreign policy of the Natural Law Party is to promote both the sovereignty of nations and the unity between them, as already described in the case of the EU member states (more...).

Lasting integration and progress in the world family can be sustained only when the sovereignty of each country is upheld and respected in an environment of unity amongst nations. This can be realised only by ensuring that coherence is maintained in world consciousness. The Natural Law Party will champion the creation of a coherence-creating group on each continent to ensure the permanent integration of the family of nations.

The world is a beautiful mosaic of different cultures. That mosaic can be sustained and enriched by bringing life in tune with Natural Law, the quality that is developed when coherence and integration are created in the collective consciousness of each nation.

Foreign policy and foreign aid to promote progress and self-sufficiency for all nations

In every way, the foreign policy of the Natural Law Party will promote only positive values in the world. This will include:

- Rapidly phasing out the export of arms by Britain. Not only does the export of arms promote fear and destruction in the world, but according to the principle of "as you sow so shall you reap", it also delivers suffering to our own country;
- Strongly supporting forms of international trade that are of mutual benefit, particularly in the case of developing countries, both economically and in terms of the goods and services exchanged. Trade and development initiatives should never put weaker nations into debt and should always promote life in accord with Natural Law - self-sufficiency, sustainable development, and prosperity;
- Supporting foreign aid that creates self-sufficiency, not dependence, in the nations receiving the aid. Our policy on foreign aid is to place the emphasis on education and knowledge in order to unfold the creativity of the people, strengthen cultural integrity, develop greater self-sufficiency, and promote life in accord with the Laws of Nature predominating in each specific area. Aid will never be at the expense of the interests of the recipients.

An effective solution to the growing problems of immigration and refugees

The problems of immigration and refugees are particularly pressing today, and our approach in Britain is inextricably linked to our position in the European Union. These are world problems that cannot be solved simply by tightening border controls in Britain, or other EU member states.

Refugee problems arise when social and political conditions become unbearable in a country or region. This occurs when life has deviated so far from Natural Law that life itself becomes intolerable. Large-scale immigration problems result from a less severe situation, but are essentially from the same cause - people are unable to feel satisfied or happy in their home country as a result of the highly-stressed, uncomfortable, or deprived situation that they experience there.

In order to solve these problems for the sake of their own well-being, Britain and the other EU states must take a greater role of global responsibility.

The countries of the EU must adopt the task of restoring integration in all the countries of the world. This is not just an economic responsibility and cannot be accomplished through money alone; it is one of ensuring that the collective consciousness in each country is maintained in harmony, balance, and coherence. The solution is to create groups of 7,000 experts in Yogic Flying on each continent. These groups will maintain a high level of order and creativity, stimulate the economy, and promote growth and welfare. This will bring satisfaction to national life everywhere, and eliminate the need or desire to migrate.

Natural Law Party can succeed where UN has failed

The Natural Law Party of the United Kingdom, in collaboration with the 63 other national Natural Law Parties now active in the world, is in a unique position to realise the vision of the founders of the United Nations, the League of Nations and all other international endeavours to create a problem-free, prosperous and harmonious world.

In today's world, the solution to problems of peace, crime, the environment, and all areas of life cannot be achieved by any nation on its own, but requires the participation of all nations. The Natural Law Parties are uniquely qualified to solve global problems because they are the only political force in the world that is sufficiently integrated and has the knowledge to do so.

The programmes of the Natural Law Party, whether implemented by elected Natural Law governments or by existing governments and leaders of society, can soon resolve the world's most intractable problems and create a heavenly quality of life for everyone.

UK MANIFESTO

DEFENCE

1. INVINCIBLE DEFENCE STRATEGY

History teaches that national defence through military power is a mirage. World events in this century prove that when nations develop a bigger military force it only induces distrust and fear in other nations and attracts their aggression. The time has gone when military power could be considered the power to save. Today, military power means the ability to destroy oneself.

The Natural Law Party does not oppose military power. Rather, we ask the question: "Can perfect defence be brought about by current military power alone?" In our defence policy, in particular through our plans for a prevention wing within the armed forces, we have designed complementary programmes of Natural Law to raise the power of military defence to invincibility and secure an indomitable influence of integrity in national life.

By creating the Maharishi Effect through a 'Prevention Wing' in the military, Britain will radiate a peaceful influence to all nations, naturally disallowing the birth of an enemy

Being a friend to all nations

There is no defence against a determined aggressor. Security therefore relies on remaining a friend to other nations.

But how can we accomplish this? For history provides another lesson: political treaties and military alliances do not ensure lasting friendship. Britain needs an invincible defence strategy by which we can maintain friendliness with all nations.

There is only one invincible element in nature: the evolutionary power of Natural Law. That same nourishing power of Natural Law that maintains the security of the Earth, the moon, and all the planets moving in empty space with infinite dynamism, that same invincible power, if properly used, should be able to provide absolute defence to life on Earth and to the life of any nation on Earth.

DEFENCE

2. PREVENTION WING

The Natural Law Party has access to knowledge and technologies that apply the invincible power of Natural Law to national defence. We will make national defence invincible by maintaining liveliness of Natural Law in national consciousness through a group of 7,000 experts in Yogic Flying.

This group will be the prevention wing of the military. It will comprise just over 3% of the armed forces personnel, leaving the remaining 97% to carry out their duties as before.

The indomitable influence of positivity and harmony in society generated by the group practice of Yogic Flying is known as the Maharishi Effect. By creating this effect, Britain will radiate a peaceful influence to all nations, naturally disallowing the birth of an enemy.

In fact, with such a group of Yogic Flyers, Britain will hold the balance of power in the world and prevent the birth of an enemy for all nations through the ability to nourish every nation. Through the creation of coherence and harmony in world consciousness, world peace is stable and no nation will threaten any other nation.

National defence has to be as strong as possible, because a strong, perfect defence means a perfectly healthy nation - a nation which cannot be disturbed or disrupted by anyone. A perfect defence programme will ensure the perfect collective health of the nation, which is vitally important to secure the health of all individual citizens. The Natural Law Party will establish such a perfect defence programme.

Eliminating terrorism and other threats to national security

There are many threats to national security which conventional means of defence are powerless to repel. Rising crime, social tension and terrorism are threatening the safety of our streets and causing widespread fear and suffering. The only shield against crime and terrorism is indomitable coherence in national consciousness. A group of 7,000 Yogic Flyers will prevent negative trends within our society, and will protect the nation against destructive influences either within the country or coming from beyond its borders.

By creating the Maharishi Effect through a 'Prevention Wing' in the military, Britain will radiate a peaceful influence to all nations, naturally disallowing the birth of an enemy

Improving readiness

The Natural Law Party will improve and maintain the readiness of Britain's defence and security forces for all their different roles, and will promote continued research in higher quality of weaponry. However, our policy will be to refrain from the production of new weaponry - since the need for destructive defence capability will not arise in a situation in which the military is maintaining coherence in national and world consciousness. We will emphasise the development of human rather than material resources, and our programmes will improve the health, creativity, and effectiveness of military personnel, (see - Scientific Research).

3. VICTORY BEFORE WAR: THE FULFILLMENT OF PEACE-KEEPING

Britain is proud of its prominent role in United Nations peace-keeping operations. While the UN has played the role of global policeman with increasing frequency in recent years, serious doubts have been raised about the wisdom of an approach to world peace that attempts peace-keeping through the use of armed military personnel. In addition, it is clear that multi-national peace forces do not offer a solution to the basic problems of the countries they are protecting. Meanwhile, the peace-keepers themselves are exposed to unacceptable levels of danger, to which they are often not even permitted to respond effectively.

The Natural Law Party will implement real and effective peace-keeping measures which maintain harmony and coherence in world consciousness, thereby disallowing enmity to grow within or between nations. Our Natural Law based defence strategy provides a new approach that will not only make Britain invincible, but will also help other nations to gain invincibility. It will materialise for every nation the principle of victory before war.

4. A TOTAL BAN ON BRITISH ARMS SALES OVERSEAS

Britain's defence industry now commands about 25% of the world market in arms, making Britain the second largest arms exporter in the world. Most MPs from all the old political parties - Conservative, Labour, and Liberal Democrat - are proud of this achievement because it is good for British jobs. But an economy that is based on arms sales is not a healthy economy. Money earned from arms sales is bloodied money.

In fact, Britain has gained a bad name in the world for living off the selling of arms. By selling arms abroad, Britain is profiting from every country's desire to get ahead of its neighbour in the arms race. In some cases Britain has supplied arms to two countries who are rivals, either at war or on the brink of war with each other. Thus Britain has a vested interest in the two countries remaining hostile to each other.

This is a crime against Natural Law. The principle is: "As you sow, so shall you reap." Britain reaps the consequences of selling arms abroad by experiencing high crime, violence and terrorism at home. It is only a matter of time before arms are turned on our own nation.

The Natural Law Party is not satisfied with the proposals of other parties, who would like to stop arms sales just to those countries with oppressive regimes or an aggressive foreign policy. The view of most politicians is that "arms sales are all right provided the country we are selling to is all right". By contrast, the Natural Law Party will ban all weapons exports. It is enough that the British arms industry supplies Britain's own defence needs, without having to export to other countries.

It is wrong to suppose that Britain needs its arms export industry. In actual fact, the arms industry is heavily subsidised by the taxpayer and is costing Britain millions every year.

The defence strategy of the Natural Law Party is to promote peace not war in the world. Jobs will be found elsewhere for the 100,000 people who are currently employed in making arms for export. The defence industry employs highly trained workers whose skills can be used in other, more constructive high-technology industries.

Through its special programmes for the economy, the Natural Law Party will bring about full employment in manufacturing and service industries that nourish the quality of life in the nation and create only positive effects in the world. This will be a welcome change from the destructive role that Britain is known for at present.

Validating the Natural Law Party's Defence Programmes

Scientific research has found that group practice of Yogic Flying improves quality of life, decreases turbulence and violence in society, reduces regional conflict, increases positivity of events in situations of international conflict, improves international relations, and increases progress towards peace (Journal of Conflict Resolution, 32, (1988): 776, and 34, (1990): 756; Journal of Mind and Behavior 8 (1987): 67-104 and 9(4), (1988): 457-486; Journal of Crime and Justice 4 (1981): 25-45; Social Indicators Research, 22, (1990): 399; Dissertation Abstracts International, 49, (1988): 2381A, and 50, (1989): 5; Social Science Perspectives Journal 2(4), (1988): 80-94)

Many benefits important for military training and readiness have been shown to develop through our programmes, including:

DEFENCE

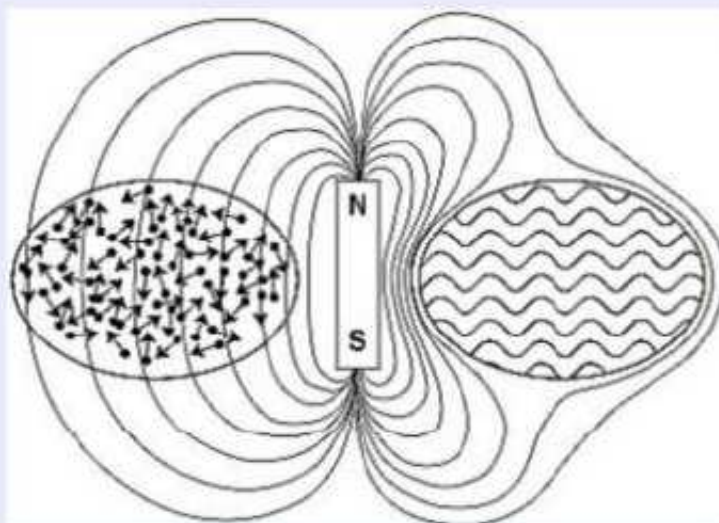

6. INVINCIBILITY FOR THE NATION

A scientific formula to make the nation impenetrable to harmful influences and preserve Britain's freedom and peace

The Natural Law Party government will implement an invincible defence strategy based on Natural Law. A universal principle in Nature is that internally coherent systems possess the ability to protect themselves against disruptive influences, while incoherent systems are easily penetrated by disorder from outside.

MEISSNER EFFECT

An Example of Invincibility in the Quantum Physics of Superconductivity

ORDINARY CONDUCTOR

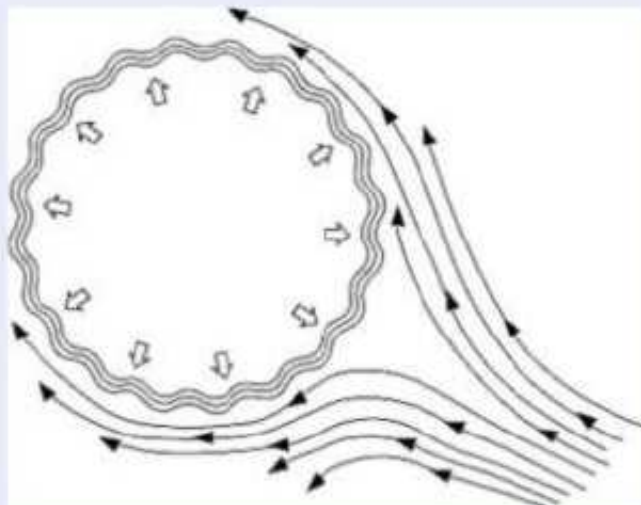

In an ordinary electrical conductor, incoherent, disordered electrons allow penetration by an external magnetic field.

SUPER CONDUCTOR

In a superconductor, the coherent collective functioning of the electrons spontaneously excludes an external magnetic field, and maintains its impenetrable status.

MAHARISHI EFFECT

Creating an Invincible Armour for the Nation

This principle of invincibility is clearly illustrated in physics as the Meissner Effect, and in the functioning of a nation as the Maharishi Effect - the powerful influence of harmony in society resulting from practice of the Transcendental Meditation and TM-Sidhi programme, including Yogic Flying, by a small proportion of the population.

Scientific studies have shown that the Maharishi Effect can be created by as little as the square root of one per cent of the population of a nation or large city practising Yogic Flying together in one place. One group of 7,000 Yogic Flyers (the square root of one per cent of the world's population) has been found to create the Maharishi Effect for the whole world.

This example of invincibility is not unique in Nature; parallel phenomena of invincibility can be found in many areas of the physical and biological sciences. In each case the ability of the system to resist disorder is always based on coherent collective functioning.

Another physical example of invincibility through internal coherence is seen in the phenomenon of superfluidity. In an ordinary liquid, in which atoms function in a disorderly, incoherent way, an influx of heat from outside randomly disturbs the atoms within the liquid. However, if the same liquid is in a superfluid state, all its atoms function coherently with each other. Under these circumstances, any influx of heat is conducted as an orderly wave through and out of the superfluid without disturbing its internal coherence.

Similarly, on the level of a nation, when the Maharishi Effect is generated through the group practice of Yogic Flying, harmony, positivity, and coherence grow in all levels of national life. If this influence reaches a sufficient intensity, an integrated national consciousness is created.

The result is an invincible armour for the nation, which automatically prevents incoherent influences from disturbing the country's internal peace and harmony.

AGRICULTURE

Natural agriculture for healthy food

SPOKESMAN FOR AGRICULTURE

"AGRICULTURE IN BRITAIN TODAY is in a constant state of crisis because of the increasingly unnatural manipulation of food production and distorted government policy that often supports profits while putting human health and the environment at serious risk. The Natural Law Party is the only party committed to a comprehensive plan to bring agriculture in accord with Natural Law in a profitable, sustainable manner and to make us once again confident that our food is safe and healthy."

1. The Natural Law Party will promote a shift to sustainable, profitable, organic agriculture that produces natural, non-toxic, healthy food.
2. Our policies will revitalise the farm economy and bring new life to rural communities by promoting the consumption of locally produced foods.
3. We will promote rural education, employment, and research.
4. The Natural Law Party will introduce programmes to bring the full support of Natural Law to every farmer and rural community.
5. Scientifically proven benefits of our agricultural policies.

AGRICULTURE

1. PROMOTING A SHIFT TO NATURAL AGRICULTURE AND HEALTHY FOOD

The Natural Law Party will promote farming that provides the nation with healthy food and other raw materials produced in a sustainable, humane and pollution-free way. We will promote high-quality food and healthy diets, thereby reducing disease and medical costs (WHO, 1990). We will seek to increase and diversify rural employment, thereby bringing balance and vitality to country communities. Long-term, our policies will lead to a diversified, ecologically-sustainable, aesthetically-pleasing countryside. We will not allow short term gain to compromise the future health and well-being of the population and the ecological integrity of the environment.

A Natural Law Party government will provide training in techniques that allow farmers' awareness to align with the fundamental field of Natural Law - Pure Consciousness (Hagelin, 1987). As a result, their skill and success in co-ordinating the myriad of factors involved in crop production will increase, and the creativity and flexibility needed to develop new and more ecologically sound farming practices will arise.

The Natural Law Party regards farmers as the nourishing parents of our nation. No parents would like to put their children's health at risk by giving them chemical additives with unknown long-term effects.

We will foster farming practices that result in the development of agricultural ecosystems that have the diversity, stability and resilience of natural ecosystems

Promoting sustainable farming

In recent decades UK agriculture has undergone a transformation from largely self-sufficient, traditional farming systems to industrialised systems reliant on external inputs of fuel energy and chemicals, and which produce considerable amounts of non-recycled waste. Many of the isolated laws of nature discovered by modern science have been applied to new farming technologies. Serious environmental concerns have been raised, such as water pollution or the contribution of agriculture to greenhouse gases and global warming. There is concern about the long term health effects of pesticide residues in food and water, and there has been a succession of food safety scares, of which BSE is the most dramatic and costly example. Clearly, industrialised farming is giving rise to environmental imbalances and health concerns, and, with its reliance on fossil fuel energy, it is not sustainable long-term.

The Natural Law Party will promote organic agriculture and supports the aims of the Soil Association and other such recognised organisations. We will foster farming practices that result in the development of agricultural ecosystems that have the diversity, stability and resilience of natural ecosystems.

This will be realised by, for example:

- The utilisation of residues and wastes within the food system to ensure the recycling of mineral nutrients, the avoidance of pollution, and the elimination of the need for fertilizers produced using fossil fuel energy;
- Cultural techniques that minimize or eliminate fuel energy requirements for tillage and harvesting;
- Crop diversification and rotation to reduce the risk of losses to pests and disease;
- The use of non-chemical crop protection methods;
- The humane treatment of farm animals;
- Initiatives to encourage home food production and processing using gardens, allotments and urban farming;
- Initiatives to encourage tree planting in agroforestry schemes for perennial food crops, for renewable biomass fuel (see Energy policy), for timber, and for benefits in soil stabilisation, nutrient recycling, water management and climate improvement;
- The harmonious integration of landscape and people;
- Educational programmes informing consumers of the benefits of organically grown food.

Reversing the damage caused by industrialised agriculture

These measures will help rejuvenate the soil and reverse the many dangerous trends resulting from intensive industrialised agriculture, such as the erosion of the topsoil accumulated over millennia; the leaching of minerals from the soil; the increasing concentration of harmful chemicals in the water table, streams, and rivers; and the local extermination of many soil organisms that are a vital part of healthy food production and a balanced ecosystem.

It must also be noted that industrialised agriculture involves enormous hidden costs which are not included in the cost of food. These include the contribution to the 120 million being spent each year by water companies to clean up polluted water supplies caused by agrochemicals and industrial waste - an amount that is added to our water bills.

In addition, the taxpayer supports directly many other costs, such as the cost of the BSE crisis and other food crises, and the cost of restoring the countryside.

Worldwide, three million cases of acute pesticide poisoning leading to more than 200,000 fatalities are estimated to occur annually. Resistance of insect pests and weeds to pesticides and herbicides is an increasing problem. This indicates a need for a change in crop protection strategies. Genetic engineering is an attempt to extend this fight against Nature for a few more years using newer weapons, which could eventually have far higher costs than anything we can now imagine (see section below on Genetically Engineered Foods).

Even without considering the many hidden costs of industrialised agriculture, organic agriculture that incorporates environmentally sound technological advances is now highly profitable, and the shift to healthy organic production is therefore entirely viable. In fact, it is a shift that must be made urgently before chemical agriculture and genetic engineering distort natural systems to a point where organic farming is impossible.

Adverse effects of agrochemicals

There is now a great deal of concern about potential damage to human health arising from a continual long-term, low-level pesticide exposure. In particular concern has been raised about possible cancers, genetic damage, foetal damage, various neurobehavioural and neurological disorders, as well as allergies and other immuno-regulatory disorders associated with low-level exposure to pesticides. References: The BMA Guide to Pesticides, Chemicals, and Health. Edward Arnold, 1992 ; Robbins C: Poisoned Harvest: a Consumers Guide to Pesticide Use and Abuse. Victor Gollanz Ltd 300-313, 1991.

Recent research has shown that nitrate fertilizers may decrease the nutritional value of crops, manganese and zinc being particularly affected. Reference: Nutrition and Health 1992, 8: 1-6.

Almost 40 percent of pesticides currently in use are linked with at least one adverse effect. Reference: The London Food Commission: Food adulteration and how to beat it. Unwin Paperbacks 1988.

2. IMPROVING THE FARM ECONOMY

In line with our policies on the economy, energy and environment, the Natural Law Party will promote the consumption of locally-produced and locally-processed food, thereby reducing the costs and environmental damage associated with transport, and increasing the income and employment available in rural communities.

The present economic framework of UK agriculture is dominated by the European Union Common Agricultural Policy (CAP). The resultant government subsidies amount to around 50% of the farm-gate value of the food produced (OECD, 1994). The CAP encourages overproduction and wasteful food surpluses, using high levels of external chemical and energy inputs. It favours large producers to a greater extent than small family farms.

The Natural Law Party will promote:

- A total reform of the CAP, seeking long-term to minimize government subsidies and, in the medium-term, to design such intervention to encourage the transition to sustainable farming systems. In other words, we will put in place a subsidy structure to help the shift to natural, organic agriculture;
- Improvement of the marketing skills of food producers;
- Farmers markets selling locally produced food;
- Agriculture as a source of renewable non-food resources, e.g. biomass energy or materials and chemicals for manufacturing and construction;
- Local, family-owned agricultural processing businesses, which add value to commodities at source and create higher income for rural communities;
- revitalising rural communities by decentralising government and public services and by favouring building programmes in small towns rather than the extension of city suburbs (see section on Housing and National Planning).

International trade

The Natural Law Party will promote initiatives for ecologically sustainable food production abroad for those foods which cannot be grown in Britain. The Natural Law Party will encourage the use of British expertise and equipment to develop these organic production systems overseas. Trade of British foods to regions overseas where they cannot be grown will also be promoted. Thereby, mutually beneficial international trade in agricultural commodities, equipment and services will be encouraged.

Especially in the case of developing countries, care will be taken to ensure a fair division of the profits from this international trade so that local producers receive greater reward and the local economy is strengthened rather than forced into debt.

3. RURAL EDUCATION, EMPLOYMENT AND RESEARCH

The transition to an ecologically sustainable food system will call for the development and testing of production systems uniquely matched to the landscape, climate and soil of each locality.

Agricultural production is likely to become more labour intensive, creating new opportunities for the unemployed, and it will require people with a deep understanding of Natural Law and broad awareness, able to comprehend the many factors involved in ecologically sound farming. To facilitate these developments the Natural Law Party will:

- Introduce training programmes to align producers, advisors, researchers and students in the field of food and agriculture with the Unified Field of Natural Law;
- Redirect government-funded researchers and advisors to use their knowledge of isolated laws of nature in the development of ecologically self-sustaining production, processing and distribution systems for each region;
- Revise the curriculum of university, college and school rural science and agriculture courses to encompass the principles of ecologically sustainable production and Maharishi's Vedic Science.

The rural community

In recent years UK farmers have lost their traditional esteem as the "yeomanry" or nourishing parents of the nation. Overburdened with bureaucracy and a succession of crises such as BSE, they are an isolated, ageing population showing increasing symptoms of stress and ill-health. The high price of land, distorted by the effects of the CAP, makes it difficult for young people to enter farming. Mechanisation and the trend to non-local food marketing and processing has decreased employment opportunities and led to rural depopulation.

The Natural Law Party will reverse this decline in the health and fortune of the rural population, both on the level of the individual and the community, by introducing training in Transcendental Meditation and Yogic Flying. Research has amply demonstrated the health and societal benefits of this training (see Group for a Government and Health sections).

4. BRINGING GREATER SUPPORT OF NATURE TO BRITAIN'S FARMERS

Because all diverse expressions and tendencies in creation have their common source in the field of pure intelligence, the Unified Field of Natural Law, the Natural Law Party offers to train every farmer how to harness this fountainhead of Natural Law and thereby employ the skilled hand of Nature quietly to organise the infinitely complex network of factors influencing agricultural production.

This training course will include the Transcendental Meditation technique and Yogic Flying. By enlivening the Unified Field of Natural Law in each individual's consciousness, these programmes will bring greater support of Nature to farmers.

With this training, farmers will spontaneously be able to work more advantageously with Nature, making better decisions for maximum yields and continuous enhancement of the land and environment.

This development of consciousness and the benefits it will bring to agriculture will be significantly enhanced by the coherence created in national consciousness as a whole by the group of 7,000 Yogic Flyers. (See section entitled Group for a Government.)

5. BENEFITS OF THE AGRICULTURAL POLICIES OF THE NATURAL LAW PARTY

Research has found that sustainable farming techniques result in fresher and purer food with higher concentrations of minerals; yields as great as or greater than current methods; lower costs of production, lower fiscal costs of maintaining farm incomes, lower environmental costs, better long-term profitability, and reduced erosion (U.S. National Research Council, "Alternative Agriculture", 1989; World Resources Institute, "Paying the Farm Bill: U.S. Agricultural Policy and the Transition to Sustainable Agriculture", 1991; American Journal of Alternative Agriculture, 1, 1987: 153; Texas Department of Agriculture, "Texas Agriculture: Growing a Sustainable Economy", 1990). In addition, lower chemical inputs mean fewer health problems.

Research has found that Transcendental Meditation and Yogic Flying increase creativity, productivity, intelligence and energy; progressively develop higher states of consciousness; and bring more support of Nature to the individual. Additional published scientific research findings on this programme of importance to farmers include increased physiological and psychological adaptability, reduced stress, improved resistance to stressful situations, improved mental health, improved cardiovascular health, increased effectiveness, increased productivity and work satisfaction, reduced accidents and sickness, and improved quality of life in society. (See section on Scientific Research.)

Taken together, these benefits translate into significant cost savings: billions of pounds in the short-term and even larger savings in the long-term.

HOUSING AND NATIONAL PLANNING

Creating healthy buildings within a framework of sustainable development

John Renwick

SPOKESMAN FOR HOUSING AND NATIONAL PLANNING

"FOR THE FIRST TIME there is a building science that will transform the way people think and feel, by using the design and layout in accord with Natural Law so as to create good health, clear thinking, happiness and prosperity."

1. A European Union of sovereign nations. The Natural Law Party will promote approaches to architecture that support the health, happiness, prosperity and good fortune of the occupants.
2. Reconstruction and beautification of the whole nation architecture, design, construction and planning that is fully in accord with Natural Law.

UK MANIFESTO

HOUSING AND NATIONAL PLANNING

1. ARCHITECTURE THAT SUPPORTS THE HEALTH, HAPPINESS, PROSPERITY AND GOOD FORTUNE OF THE OCCUPANTS

"The building maketh the man" is an old saying still valid today. Many of our society's problems stem historically from poor or overcrowded housing and badly designed public buildings and places of work. The built environment has never been planned in an integrated way and we are also increasingly seeing the disastrous results of development which is unsustainable. The best architects and planners aim to improve living conditions, yet even the most expensive modern buildings and the most carefully planned towns and villages have consistently fallen short of this goal.

This situation has arisen because modern architecture and planning fail to take into account subtle yet powerful factors that influence how we think and feel, and affect even our health, vitality, and success.

There is a need, therefore, for a comprehensive, thorough and scientific approach to architecture, design, and construction - one that will promote our whole built environment to be in tune with the Laws of Nature and in harmony with our natural environment. The Natural Law Party has found that the system known as Maharishi Sthapatya Veda satisfies these requirements.

Maharishi Sthapatya Veda is the ancient Vedic science of architecture in accord with Natural Law. It recognises these cosmic and solar influences and uses them in a precise way to create buildings which promote the evolutionary power of Natural Law for the well-being of the occupants.

Architecture in accord with Natural Law

Just as modern science takes advantage of specific Laws of Nature to split atoms and launch space shuttles, Maharishi Sthapatya Veda design takes advantage of the most fundamental Laws of Nature that promote health and prosperity. It uses mathematical formulae, equations and proportions to design ideal living conditions. Through this technology buildings become established in the fundamental values of beauty and peace. Other essential elements, such as parks, fountains, waterways and lakes, are used to create a harmonious whole.

The Natural Law Party will promote the use of Maharishi Sthapatya Veda and all approaches to architecture and planning that can create a living environment that is fully in accord with Natural Law. At the same time, we will promote the use of the best available modern knowledge of sustainable development. In this way, we will transform the built environment into one which is nourishing to all and a pleasure to live in. Now, for the first time, there is an opportunity to create an environment that will have a totally positive influence on the way people think and feel - homes and offices that by their intrinsic design create good health, clear thinking, happiness, harmony and prosperity for the family or business.

Healthy homes

The underlying reason for our housing problems is that our homes have not been designed to do their job. Our home is our base where we need to feel secure and nourished; being at home should give us more energy and less fatigue, allow us to think clearly and creatively and above all to experience less stress and more peace of mind. Perhaps we should all ask ourselves "To what extent does my present home do this?"

Local authorities and individual home-owners constantly try to improve their homes but fail to achieve the increased satisfaction that they seek, because the design is not according to Natural Law.

The importance of correct orientation

The Natural Law Party will encourage the use of Maharishi Sthapatya Veda in the construction of new homes and the rectification of existing ones. This is not a style of architecture, rather a set of universal principles that can be applied to any architectural style. It starts from the premise that a home provides the connection between its owner and the wider environment. If a home is designed correctly, in accordance with fundamental principles, it will nourish every aspect of the owner's life and his or her influence on the surroundings. Highly specific and detailed principles are used, for example, to establish the correct orientation and position of a house on a plot, the right dimensions and proportions of the building, and the proper placement of the rooms according to their uses.

If for example the dining room is placed where the office should be, then one may feel hungry while trying to work in the office, or one may have too much intellectual discussion in the dining room! In the one case, work is unproductive; in the other case, digestion is impaired. Similarly, there is a correct place for a main entrance to a house: this should not be on the south side, or the result could be loss of wealth, deteriorating health, or other problems. The Natural Law Party will implement policies to make these principles widely available for architects, builders and developers. These will include incentive schemes to encourage volume house builders to adopt environmentally friendly materials and sustainable technologies in construction of new houses.

Recent reports from different parts of the world from people who have been living and working in buildings designed according to Maharishi Sthapatya Veda have been extremely encouraging. One house owner commented: "It's hard to describe in words but there's such a feeling of peace and harmony in the house. It goes way beyond the nice architecture or the absence of 'new house smell' as a result of using non-toxic building materials. Everyone says they feel at home here. My wife and I have experienced more harmony and smoother relations. Our five-year-old daughter is better behaved. All of us sleep better."

Healthy workplaces

The concept of the "sick building syndrome" is now widely accepted, to the extent that many modern commercial and institutional buildings are now being demolished for lack of a remedy. However there are countless other workplaces where people experience more subtle discomfort and health problems as a result of the design and materials used. These problems go largely unrecognised, but still represent an unquantifiable human and economic loss to the nation.

An office can be designed not only to promote the creativity and health of workers but also to enhance the good fortune of the business or organisation using it. The science of the Maharishi Sthapatya Veda incorporates over one hundred tests for the proper selection of a site and numerous remedies for incorrectly designed buildings, thereby providing the parameters necessary for any business to enjoy the benefits of support of Nature - good fortune, good health and success for management and work force.

Again, owners themselves testify to the benefits of this system of architecture in accordance with Natural Law, mentioning increased profits, comfort and creativity experienced in their business.

Influence of buildings on the physiology

The Natural Law Party will support research to identify precisely the nature of the harmonious influences on the human physiology produced by correct orientation and design of buildings. Independent scientific studies have already shown that a key part of the brain known as the thalamus behaves in a different way according to the orientation of the head to different points of the compass. Studies on factors such as breathing-wall technology and thick-walled construction, another aspect of architecture in accord with Natural Law, indicate that these types of construction generate levels of humidity within buildings that are ideal for respiration.

The advantages of having one's place of work close to where one lives is an additional factor dealt with in the Energy and Environment section of the manifesto.

HOUSING AND NATIONAL PLANNING

2. NATIONAL PLANNING: RECONSTRUCTION OF THE BUILT ENVIRONMENT

The Natural Law Party will involve the very greatest experts in the nation to evolve a plan for the reconstruction of the entire country using principles of architecture and planning in accord with Natural Law. All new developments would take place according to this plan so that eventually our cities, towns, villages and indeed the whole country are laid out in a way that fully promotes life and inspires everyone.

This seemingly daunting task should be seen in context: the majority of buildings around us have a lifespan of under 100 years, and it is not uncommon for poor quality 1960s and 1970s buildings to be demolished even now. For centuries we have been constantly rebuilding our built environment on a piecemeal basis. We should now ask ourselves whether we are going to pass on to our children the same jumble of buildings and lack of holistic planning that we inherited from our parents?

Our cities, towns, villages and indeed the whole country will be laid out in a way that fully promotes life and inspires everyone

National, regional and city planning

Natural Law based Vedic architecture includes the concept of Vastu, which is the sum total of all the effects of the different aspects of placement and construction of any building, community, city, or even an entire nation or continent. Detailed criteria are given for correct architecture, placement, layout and planning on all these levels, in order to promote life and progress. If Vastu is incorrect in any way it produces negative effects on the health, success and prosperity - the good fortune - of the individual, family or community.

The Natural Law Party's national strategy for reconstruction will take this aspect of the Vedic science of Maharishi Sthapatya Veda into account in order to create maximum benefit for the whole country and every individual, family and community.

National planning policies will continue to be mirrored in Structure Plans and district-wide Local Plans for implementation on the local level, as they do now. The difference will be that now the principles followed on both national and local levels will be scientific principles of Natural Law.

Maharishi Sthapatya Veda includes formulae for the proper orientation and placement of buildings within a town or city in order to derive maximum advantage from Natural Law. No building is in isolation and the relationship between buildings and landscaping around them is an important element of the design.

National and local planning have to take into account the fundamental human need to have adequate space. The trend towards inner city redevelopment, cramming new housing into heavily polluted areas, goes against this need and inevitably results in more stress and higher crime rates. The Natural Law Party will promote development around the perimeter of existing centres of population. Larger plots and more open space between buildings can be achieved only by economic growth and a new approach to building services. The Natural Law Party will promote housing and neighbourhoods that are self-sufficient in terms of their energy needs and therefore less reliant on the proximity of neighbouring buildings and services (see section on Energy and Environment).

Forestry and landscape architecture

The Natural Law Party will promote extensive landscaping and planting in existing towns and cities. Architecture in accordance with Natural Law includes the provision of certain trees and plants for maximum benefit to health, and the location of lakes, ponds and fountains to introduce the soothing influence of water. The Natural Law Party will promote the planting of forests on the outskirts of towns and cities for rest and recreation. Major transport routes will be flanked with planting to counteract the stressful influence of travel and to facilitate wildlife corridors.

Regional centres of architectural excellence

National reconstruction will start with the building of regional centres with excellent architecture and planning that is in accord with Natural Law, where residential, commercial and educational buildings are designed for better health and prosperity. At the same time the Natural Law Party will establish health centres in every constituency in order to make the knowledge of better health easily accessible to everyone. In each centre the layout and design of the buildings themselves will promote the health, happiness and good fortune of everyone who visits them (see Health section).

New training in architecture and building

The Natural Law Party will supplement the education provided in schools of architecture, building and design, with Natural Law programmes that develop the full potential of every student. At the same time, courses will be supplemented with knowledge of systems of architecture, building and design that are in accord with Natural Law, glorifying the environment and promoting health, happiness and success for everyone. At a vocational level, apprentice schemes will be encouraged in the use of natural building materials and other aspects of sustainable development in order to address the long-term decline of the construction industry, which has brought about an unprecedented shortage of skills.

Through their involvement with locally-based reconstruction projects, employers will be encouraged to include training in new as well as traditional skills, using local materials and techniques. As part of vocational training in basic building skills the Natural Law Party will also seek to strengthen existing schemes for unemployed and homeless people to build their own homes.

HOUSING AND NATIONAL PLANNING

3. SUSTAINABLE DEVELOPMENT

Development associated with our way of living in today's production-and-consumption society is now causing enormous environmental and public health problems. We are behaving as if we had another planet to escape to after destroying this one. This situation is clearly unsustainable. The most obvious implications include changes in the weather due to an excessive greenhouse effect in the upper atmosphere, a waste crisis nearer home, and wholesale destruction of the delicate balance in our environment.

No one looking at the figures would dispute that we have an environmental crisis on our hands. Every nine months in this country we produce enough waste to fill Lake Windermere. Each year there are ever larger volumes of commercial, industrial and domestic waste and decreasing options for its disposal. All waste streams are becoming increasingly polluted with an historically unprecedented amount of chemicals, metals and even radioactivity.

At the same time, if present trends continue, global mean temperature will rise by 0.3 degrees C per decade - a greater rise than the world has seen over the past 10,000 years. The full consequences are unknown but include changes in sea level, flooding, drought and the creation of new deserts, disruption of eco-systems and increased risk of cancer.

National and local planning should take into account the fundamental human need to have adequate space

Inadequacy of the government's present policy

The British government signed up to the provisions of the 1992 "Earth Summit" in Rio de Janeiro. This included committing Britain to a comprehensive programme of action to achieve a more sustainable pattern of development through local Agenda 21 policies. Subsequent government reports such as "Sustainable Development: the UK strategy" and more recently "Making Waste Work" deliberately understate the magnitude of the problems although they do attempt a comprehensive framework for addressing them.

However, whilst highlighting the need for a fundamentally new approach to achieve sustainability, in practice the government has opted for a pace of change based on short term political and economic gains. All too often the government has introduced measures that merely reinforce the maintenance of the status quo - an example which is then followed by local authorities in their attempts to implement Agenda 21.

Nowhere is this contradiction more evident than in the waste industry, a sector whose importance is at present far greater than it would need to be if development were more sustainable. Britain is the last country in Europe to introduce a landfill tax; and even then the level of taxation has been set too low to have much effect in making industry produce less waste. At the same time, the government supports the delusion that industry's best available technologies for waste disposal (increasingly highly engineered landfills) work, in spite of scientific research proving otherwise. The government talks the language of waste reduction while taking a vested interest in landfill.

The Natural Law Party advocates the policies outlined below in order to address these issues immediately. Ultimately development can be sustainable only if it is in harmony with Natural Law; society has to use materials that Nature finds easy to dispose of and technologies that involve low risk. In the meantime, there has to be progressively less reliance on substances and processes that damage the environment and public health.

Natural and non-toxic building materials

The use of natural building materials has been shown to be a key factor in promoting better health and sustainable development. Yet measures to limit the damage caused to the environment by all aspects of development have focused mainly on energy-saving to limit the production of greenhouse gases rather than on cutting out technologies that cause other types of pollution. Such technologies include our share of the estimated 50,000 chemicals in common use in the European Union, of which 4,500 are demonstrably toxic and persistent in the environment with a tendency to accumulate in biological systems.

The Natural Law Party will promote an extensive education programme for producers, manufacturers, specifiers and builders, to inform them of the health hazards of these chemicals, the processes that produce them, and the natural alternatives. At the same time, we will introduce legislation to make natural building materials more widely available.

Local participation

Our society is invariably critical of how the Victorians handled industrial development. However, future generations may look back on our own time and say, "They became increasingly sophisticated at answering the wrong questions."

Asking the right questions requires a different approach and a shift in awareness from partial analytic solutions to holistic ones based on Natural Law. Sustainable development cannot be achieved by intellectually balancing all the relevant factors in order to try to bring minimum disturbance to the environment. Instead it requires a widespread recognition of the need to use natural resources wisely and the technology to meet the basic needs of all, thereby extending to everyone the opportunity to satisfy their aspirations for a better life.

The first approach is to bring the thinking and action of every individual spontaneously in accord with Natural Law through special educational programmes and by bringing national consciousness in alliance with Natural Law by establishing A Group for a Government. On this basis of increased awareness, local people will be more creative in finding natural, sustainable solutions to local problems, and will be more receptive to education about new methods that are more sustainable. These two approaches are complementary and interdependent.

Education alone is insufficient; for example, research has shown that no amount of publicity on the polluting effect of motor cars has been able to change people's driving habits. Only when there is an increase of coherence in national consciousness will education programmes bring solutions.

Reform of UK regulatory bodies

Regulation is the first line of defence the public has in order to limit pollution, given the difficulties of legal action against companies who cause environmental damage. The present government tries to encourage trust in regulatory agencies. Yet in many sectors, including the waste industry, the same authority that issues licences also investigates infringements of licences by operators. In many cases therefore these authorities have every motivation to cover up any infringement, especially as they are partially or wholly funded by the industry they are investigating. The existence of a licence implies that an industrial process is controlled, whereas in practice these bodies lack the technology, budget or will to investigate complaints properly.

The Natural Law Party will separate these two functions in order to eliminate regulatory corruption. This is an essential first step in dealing with the increasingly unknown and unforeseeable effects of pollution. Adequate resources must be allocated to research on the toxic effects of various chemicals and other substances. The present systems of regulation cover only pollutants acting individually; little is known about their combined effects. Yet recent research has highlighted the fact that combinations of chemicals, as they are now beginning to occur in our environment, can be considerably more toxic than the individual chemicals on their own, posing unprecedented threats to human health.

Regarding the issuing of licences to manufacturers to use chemicals or any other approaches that may be harmful in any way, the Natural Law Party advocates the principle that synthesised materials and chemicals are "guilty until proved innocent", rather than the other way round as is the case at the moment. The Natural Law Party would also strengthen the regulating bodies' power to operate the principle that "the polluter pays" for the pollution caused.

International co-operation against pollution

The spread of pollution does not recognise political boundaries. The framework for increased sustainability needs to change at the EU and international level in order to bring a unified solution to a transnational problem. Being active in over 63 countries the Natural Law party is uniquely positioned to foster international co-operation leading to deep and lasting solutions.

ENERGY AND ENVIRONMENT

1. PREVENTING THE VIOLATION OF NATURAL LAW

The Natural Law Party will create a pollution-free nation through pollution-free industries, energy, and transport; energy conservation; and educational programmes to develop higher consciousness and prevent the violation of Natural Law - the basic cause of pollution and other environmental problems.

The Natural Law Party's educational programmes provide complete knowledge of Natural Law and the ability to live spontaneously in accord with Natural Law. These programmes enliven the evolutionary, creative qualities of Natural Law on all levels - individual and national. Improved creativity will eliminate from the environment the pollution created by less developed creativity in the past. Improved creativity also lies at the heart of programmes that both create jobs and protect the environment.

Working in close co-operation with business, industry, and the whole population, the Natural Law Party will pursue a balanced energy and environment policy through its educational programmes as well as by promoting energy conservation, conversion to renewable, clean forms of energy production and raw materials, and pollution-free industries and transport. Most importantly, we will improve the quality of life in our cities, towns, and countryside by promoting the most advanced knowledge of environmentally sound architecture and planning (see section on Housing and National Planning).

As a result of these measures, the Natural Law Party sees a bright future: a time when the air in all our cities and the water in all our rivers and lakes is pure and clean; when Britain's towns are beautified by many more parks, gardens, and fountains; when renewable, non-polluting, inexpensive energy is abundantly available; when our natural resources and our waste are efficiently managed; when the destruction of biodiversity has ceased; when many new jobs are available in environmentally friendly industries; and when there is effective global co-operation to resolve environmental problems.

Balancing our energy and environmental needs

Pollution has accumulated due to violation of Natural Law by past generations. Many of the habits of thought and methods of action that created this pollution persist today. The design of most towns and cities and the practices of our industries are adding to the problems of pollution.

Britain's standard of living, economic vitality and quality of life depend on maintaining proper balance among our energy, material and environmental needs. However, Britain relies heavily on fossil fuels and lacks an adequate long-term plan for energy conservation and conversion to renewable, clean forms of energy production.

Also, there are inadequate long-range policies to conserve our natural resources and there is a lack of educational programmes capable of training people to live spontaneously in accord with all the laws of nature. The policies of the Natural Law Party will remedy these serious deficiencies.

ENERGY AND ENVIRONMENT

2. EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMMES TO DEVELOP CONSCIOUSNESS

The biggest obstacle to a balanced energy and environment policy is lack of complete knowledge of the environment, its complex inter-relationships, and the effect of human activity on it. As a result, most initiatives to safeguard or improve the environment are, at best, unpredictable or partial in their effects.

It is impossible for human intelligence to comprehend all the complexities of the global environment. Therefore, violation of Natural Law has been inevitable, and the accumulated stress arising from violation of Natural Law inevitably creates the imbalances that result in environmental problems and natural disasters.

Only cosmic intelligence can resolve this dilemma. Fortunately, it is possible for human intelligence to gain access to cosmic intelligence. Through Transcendental Meditation, individual awareness experiences pure consciousness, the total potential of Natural Law - described by quantum physics as the Unified Field of all the Laws of Nature. This experience enlivens the Unified Field of Natural Law - pure consciousness - in the individual's thought and action.

As consciousness is the most basic element in life, everything in creation is the environment of consciousness. Enlivenment of consciousness will improve the creativity of every grain of creation, and of every individual and group in society. Improved creativity on all levels will eliminate pollution from the environment created by the less developed creativity of previous generations.

It is true that all individuals are responsible for the environment that they create around themselves. But the environment of every individual is also influenced by the collective creativity of all the people in each city, country, and the world.

The Natural Law Party possesses the knowledge of Natural Law necessary to eliminate the pollution accumulated through the violation of Natural Law by past generations. It supports educational programmes, such as the Transcendental Meditation technique and Yogic Flying, that enliven the evolutionary, creative qualities of Natural Law on all levels of life - individual and national.

A Natural Law Party government will create a pollution-free environment by promoting pollution-free industry, agriculture, energy and transport

ENERGY AND ENVIRONMENT

3. ENERGY CONSERVATION: RENEWABLE, NON-POLLUTING FORMS OF ENERGY PRODUCTION AND USE OF NON-POLLUTING RAW MATERIALS

The Natural Law Party will provide incentives for domestic and industrial conversions to systems using renewable energy sources. We would like to see a much more vigorous approach to solar power generation, both photo-voltaic (for production of electricity) and thermal (for production of heat).

The privatisation of the power industries has led to a reduction in research, and there has been a growing dependence on natural gas to fulfil Britain's power requirements. The Natural Law Party sees the urgent need for further research into renewables and diversification in the areas where we as a nation are consuming power.

The privatisation of the power industry has also led to serious social problems especially in the less wealthy areas of society. Programmes involving, for example, prepayment of domestic fuel bills need to be carefully assessed for their economic and social impact.

Deregulation of public transport, especially buses in cities, is leading to some serious congestion and pollution problems.

To keep the fulfilment of our energy and environmental needs in balance, Britain must proceed simultaneously on two parallel paths: energy conservation and the development of renewable, non-polluting forms of energy production and raw material usage

The problem of city pollution will be addressed in terms of long-term restructuring of city layouts with more cross-ventilation, at the same time as encouraging the use of electric vehicles within city boundaries. Hybrid vehicles (diesel-electric) for both private and public transport will be encouraged as an interim solution for vehicles that have to journey both within and outside cities. However, the long-term goal of vehicles should be zero-pollution under all conditions, which will also help preserve precious oil reserves.

Immediate attention must be given to large-scale pollution problems such as the North Sea.

To keep the fulfilment of our energy and environmental needs in balance, Britain must proceed simultaneously on two parallel paths: energy conservation and the development of renewable, non-polluting forms of energy production and raw material usage. The Natural Law Party will promote both. This will be achieved by appropriate favourable tax treatment and by encouraging:

- research on energy efficiency; energy storage; alternative forms of energy; and energy-efficient and alternative-energy vehicles,
- performance standards for energy-consuming and/or pollution-emitting products,
- energy-efficient and pollution-free measures at home and at work,
- the continued development of Local Agenda 21 programmes, which implement strategies for sustainable development at the community level,
- businesses that make environmentally friendly products,
- the development and use by industry of non-polluting, renewable forms of energy production and raw materials,
- the prohibition of the release of genetically modified organisms into the environment, including their use in the treatment of waste and especially in the human food chain.

4. REGENERATING THE ENVIRONMENT OF BRITAIN'S TOWNS, CITIES AND COUNTRYSIDE

The Natural Law Party also promotes highly integrated systems for the built and natural environment, based on both ancient and modern sciences of architecture and planning, in order to establish life in full accord with Natural Law. These include:

- design and orientation of buildings to gain maximum support of Natural Law for the occupants,
- building construction that provides adequate natural lighting and ventilation and uses non-toxic building materials,
- town planning that ensures ample green space, low noise and air pollution, low stress and crime, and the growth of community spirit and civic pride,
- parks with beautiful lakes, fountains and trees,
- ideal villages and towns around the outskirts of the cities to decongest the inner cities,
- community forests on the outskirts of towns and cities for improved biodiversity, landscape quality and opportunities for access and recreation.

In addition, the Natural Law Party's policies support the proper management of National Parks and Nature Reserves; waterways, lakes, and seas; natural resources; manufacturing and waste disposal; farmland and forests (refer to section on Housing and National Planning).

5. REVITALISING THE ECONOMY-CREATING JOBS WHILE SAFEGUARDING THE ENVIRONMENT

The Natural Law Party believes that protecting the environment and creating new jobs are not contrary principles. Certainly the government should not promote jobs that contribute to the widespread destruction of our national resources and environment. In the long-term, such jobs are as dangerous for the economy as they are for the environment.

However, there is no reason to assume that the creation of more and better jobs need have a damaging effect. On the contrary, there are many new jobs and new industries in renewable energy, sustainable agriculture and forestry, and other fields that will further the interests of both the environment and the economy.

As technology changes and as Britain's needs evolve, it is natural that business, industry, and employment also shift to reflect these changes. To subsidise and promote outmoded jobs and industries simply obstructs the evolving nature of our economy and ultimately constitutes a drag on it. A Natural Law government would promote a healthy economy by promoting new industries and new jobs that serve the evolving needs of both our society and the environment.

In short, the Natural Law Party wants to make Britain a world leader in environmentally friendly industries. From the implementation of this policy, we anticipate a net increase in jobs.

ENERGY AND ENVIRONMENT

6. EXTENSIVE RESEARCH SUPPORTING THE ENVIRONMENTAL POLICIES OF THE NATURAL LAW PARTY

Extensive research on Transcendental Meditation has shown many benefits of the practice relevant to a sound national energy and environment policy. Studies have found higher levels of moral reasoning; greater ability for broader comprehension simultaneous with the ability to focus sharply; increased integration of self with the social environment; improved perception and memory; and increased intelligence. In addition, more than 40 studies on the Maharishi Effect - the influence of coherence in collective consciousness created by group practice of Transcendental Meditation and Yogic Flying - have found improved quality of life throughout society. (For references, see section entitled A Group for a Government).

Other research suggests that renewable energy sources will soon be economically competitive with fossil fuels. Studies in the US and Britain have shown that existing energy efficiency technologies could significantly reduce the use of fossil fuels and also electricity, allowing for the more rapid development of renewable technologies at a net cost saving (Union of Concerned Scientists, "America's Energy Choices"; Electric Power Research Institute, Romm, "The Economic Benefits of Combatting Global Warming", 1992). We estimate that a comprehensive energy conservation programme could save Britain several billion pounds annually.

ENERGY AND ENVIRONMENT

7. CLOSING DOWN THE NUCLEAR INDUSTRY TO PROTECT LIFE AND THE ECONOMY

The dangers posed by long-lived radioactive nuclear wastes and potential nuclear accidents argue against present-day nuclear technology as a major component of Britain's long-term energy future. The problem of finding suitable long-term repositories for nuclear waste in Britain has not been solved despite the expenditure of over 200 million on site investigations. Even when a suitable site is found, there is the basic human factor - people in Britain do not want nuclear waste stored in their own back yards. Experimental nuclear technologies, such as advanced converters and breeder reactors have the severe disadvantage of producing weapons-grade nuclear materials as by-products, leading to insuperable problems of nuclear weapons containment and non-proliferation.

It is clear that nuclear power is completely unviable economically. In the long run, taxpayers will have to pay enormous amounts for the safe disposal of nuclear waste and the decommissioning of nuclear power stations. These costs are not included in current charges for electricity generated by nuclear power.

For these reasons, the Natural Law Party does not support the use or development of nuclear energy. We will redirect the taxation on fossil fuels, which is currently used to subsidise the nuclear power industry, to develop new sustainable environmentally-friendly energy sources.

TRANSPORT

Pollution-free transport for a healthy environment

Christopher Adamson
SPOKESMAN FOR TRANSPORT

"TODAY WE ARE DAMAGING our environment and our health at a historically unprecedented rate due to our short-sighted approach to transport. Only the Natural Law Party has an integrated plan to resolve this problem on all levels while fully supporting human health and happiness.

1. The Natural Law Party will promote pollution-free transport. We are committed to the rapid development of alternatives to petrol, diesel, and pollution-generating sources of electric energy.
2. We will promote community developments that integrate housing, business and leisure activities, thus minimizing the need for travel and fostering greater social cohesion.
3. Our transport policy is closely linked to our policy on National Planning and Reconstruction - a long term strategy that fully respects Natural Law.
4. With appropriate safeguards, we will support rail privatisation and encourage greater use of the railways especially for the transport of freight.

TRANSPORT

1. POLLUTION-FREE TRANSPORT

The United Kingdom has one of the highest levels of vehicle smoke and soot emissions in the European Union. Air pollution hospitalises 20,000 people a year in Britain, the primary pollutants being "particulates" emitted by road vehicles.

By promoting appropriate research the Natural Law Party will vigorously explore suitable pollution-free means of generating power for transport, such as solar power and energy from vegetable oils, in order to reduce and eventually eliminate the dangers to human health and the environment caused by the use of fossil fuels and nuclear based energy.

As well as air pollution, attention will also be given to reducing noise generated by road traffic, particularly heavy goods vehicles. The Natural Law Party will promote not only the use of energy sources for transport that are pollution-free, but also the development of advanced transport technologies (such as the use of energy-storing high-speed flywheels) that are more durable and environmentally friendly.

Where environmentally and economically acceptable, schemes to reduce the amount of through traffic in our towns, cities and villages will be promoted.

Development and construction strategies will also be promoted which seek to minimise pollution, and which create a balanced and harmonious natural environment for living and working. These strategies will include the increased promotion of alternatives to car based transport within urban areas, such as "park and ride" schemes.

In common with our policy on the economy, our policy on transport puts the health and well-being of every individual before money and profits.

TRANSPORT

2. REDUCING THE AMOUNT OF TRAVELLING NECESSARY

It is neither practical nor acceptable to limit car ownership or to penalise car usage excessively. A more fundamental solution is needed.

Transport policy needs to include a wide range of factors, such as the changing patterns of employment and work, the size and design of towns and cities, and population distribution patterns. Two of the main causes of road congestion today are: firstly, the prevalence of long commuting distances to work, and secondly, the excessive reliance on car based transport within urban areas. Also see section on Housing and National Planning.

Quite apart from the question of road congestion levels, which have resulted in traffic speeds in our larger cities often no faster than those at the beginning of the century, daily work-commuting patterns now consume large amounts of natural and human resources - energy, materials, time, and money.

However, new technology and changing patterns of work in the nineties mean that much of this waste is no longer necessary. The spread of information technology, for example, means that people can now increasingly work from home while businesses can often organise their enterprises in ways which no longer require a single large centrally located facility. Both these factors can help to reduce the need for excessive travel by the workforce. The Natural Law Party will encourage and give further impetus to these trends.

3. LONG-TERM NATIONAL STRATEGY

In addition, the Natural Law Party will promote initiatives that make it easier for people to work closer to home and to gain better access to locally produced goods and services.

Combined with its economic development strategy (see Economy section) the Natural Law Party will provide guidance to planning authorities for the establishment of more locally-based economic and social structures - integrated development and construction schemes where housing, business activities, leisure, education and health care are located in ways that reduce the need for travel (see section on Housing and National Planning).

TRANSPORT

4. REVITALISING THE RAILWAYS

The Natural Law Party will seek to encourage rail transport in order to reduce air pollution and road traffic congestion, although it must be recognised that the rail network can principally only fulfil major linkages between urban centres that are already connected by rail.

Since 1964 the proportion of national freight transported by rail has fallen from 13% to just 5% and road congestion is currently estimated to cost the nation £19 billion per year. It is estimated that by 2005 a third of the motorway and trunk road network will suffer chronic congestion.

The Natural Law Party will encourage the return of freight to the railways because of their special suitability for freight transport. Integration of freight facilities with local road networks will be vital for this purpose. Integration of the railway network with other components of the public transport system for personal travel will also be encouraged in order to reduce car usage.

Subject to appropriate regulation to protect the interests of consumers, and in accordance with its general intention to reduce the role of government in unnecessary areas at taxpayers' expense, the Natural Law Party supports the return of the railways to the private sector and will not seek their re-nationalisation.

FAMILY AND SOCIAL POLICY

1. BETTER SOCIAL SERVICES AND LESS NEED FOR SOCIAL SECURITY

A Natural Law Party government will give more than just cash payments to those in need of social security: our policies are designed, and scientifically proven, to help people to develop their natural creative intelligence, improve their health, and have more support of Natural Law. People will then naturally achieve more and be more self-sufficient, so that in most cases government help will no longer be necessary.

Although most people will neither want nor need government help anymore, the Natural Law Party will make sure that those people who need financial and other help will receive all that they need, eg. the disabled and those with long-term health needs. This will be possible because of the savings to government expenditure resulting from our proven programmes to reduce crime, sickness and other problems.

By reducing public spending in other areas the Natural Law Party will make sure that those people who still need financial and other help will they get all they need.

Because problems start at a local level, they can best be solved by people working at local level, so the Natural Law Party will give local organisations more authority and responsibility. Local groups know what is best and they can give the best care to those who need it.

Underlying all these policies, the Natural Law Party's programme to create an integrated national consciousness through the group practice of Yogic Flying will eliminate stress and generate a powerful influence of positivity and harmony in society. (See section on A Group for a Government.) In this nourishing atmosphere there will be a better community spirit and families will become stronger. People and organisations will naturally care more for those who need help. The voluntary sector, which plays a major part in resolving individual and social difficulties, will be promoted and encouraged with appropriate financial support.

FAMILY AND SOCIAL POLICY

2. STRENGTHENING FUTURE GENERATIONS

The happiness and health of our mothers are the basis of the happiness and health of the whole country. It is vital that the mothers of Britain's children are never under stress.

Stress on the mother jeopardises the proper development of the child. Weakness in the child leads to weakness in the nation, such as delinquency, unemployment, family breakdown, drugs and crime. Above everything else, children need the love and warmth of their mother at home rather than merely carers and day nurseries. When children have the benefit of a stable and caring home environment, they are stronger and more integrated and balanced throughout their lives.

A working mother loses the royal freedom that she enjoys at home. She often experiences stress and fatigue at work, and then has to fit another day's work in the home into her evening hours. She finds it difficult either to relax herself or to give her children the calm and loving attention she wants to give them.

Therefore a Natural Law Party government will make it possible for mothers to avoid having to work outside the home through special tax incentives, allowances and other means.

Strengthening the family

Other ways in which the Natural Law Party will strengthen the family are by providing:

- a slightly shorter working day so that people have more time to enjoy their families and their personal and social lives;
- prevention-oriented health education and natural medicine to reduce illness;
- "A Group for a Government" to neutralise the demoralising and destructive trends which threaten family life, such as gambling, and drug and alcohol abuse.

Mothers will not have to work outside the home, thereby ensuring the health and happiness of our children and safeguarding the nation's future

Mutual support of all generations

Natural Law Party policies will reduce the generation gap. Social and family values will strengthen through the enlivenment of Natural Law and all age groups will begin to support each other more. Older people's desire to nourish the younger generations will be balanced by the natural desire of younger people to take care of and support every need of older people. Every age group makes a vital contribution to society: we need the energy of youth and the wisdom of age. The Natural Law Party will give older people the chance to speed up their own growth to higher states of consciousness while at the same time enlivening the nourishing power of Natural Law throughout society. We will all enjoy a better quality of life and the reduction of social problems.

3. ENSURING HUMAN RIGHTS AND HARMONIOUS RACE RELATIONS

Violation of human rights is violation of Natural Law. The most free and complete expression of human rights is thought and action spontaneously in accord with Natural Law.

Rights for every individual, and social justice for every group - including the rights of all ethnic and cultural groups - can be ensured only by enlivening Natural Law on the individual and collective levels and bringing all behaviour spontaneously in accord with Natural Law. This can be achieved through the programmes of the Natural Law Party.

The Natural Law Party recognises the natural birthright of every individual to realise his or her full potential and enjoy the full support of Natural Law. Our educational programmes will provide this most basic human right.

We also recognize that human rights can never be ensured unless social tension is relieved by eliminating stress from collective consciousness. When this is achieved through the Natural Law Party's coherence-creating programme, justice, equity and tolerance will be spontaneously guaranteed for everyone.

4. RESOLVING THE PROBLEM OF ABORTION

Natural Law is always nourishing to life. The problems associated with abortion cannot be solved through legislation. Around the world, different countries have adopted a spectrum of legislative positions on abortion, but in none have the problems been solved. It is clear that a deeper approach is needed. The solution involves tackling both levels, individual and societal. The Natural Law Party's programme to create coherence in the collective consciousness reduces stress and creates a more balanced state in society, bringing life in tune with Natural Law. For the individual, through proper education everyone can grow in higher states of consciousness and complete knowledge of Natural Law, so that all of life becomes more balanced and fulfilling. By implementing these strategies, unwanted pregnancies can be avoided, together with the stress and internal conflict they inevitably cause.

FAMILY AND SOCIAL POLICY

5. OLDER PEOPLE SHOULD BE THE GUIDING LIGHT OF THE COMMUNITY

The older generation is a fund of wisdom and experience, of great potential value to immediate family and society as a whole. The knowledge, experience and maturity of our senior citizens can contribute to many areas of life, including education, the law and justice system, and in sustaining the fabric of the family and the community.

We promote a system of natural health care proven to reduce the amount of medical care needed, particularly among older people.

Under a Natural Law Party government elderly people will grow in enlightenment whilst at the same time enjoying doing the maximum possible to increase the nourishing power of Natural Law in society.

Energetic, healthy, self-sufficient

The system of natural health care advocated by the Natural Law Party is prevention-oriented. Research has shown that it leads to a 50% reduction in the need for medical care. For those over 40, the reduction is even more marked, rising to 68%. Retired people using this proven health care system find improvements in their health, well-being and mental clarity and live longer. They become more self-sufficient and so less dependent on others and the whole community enjoys the benefits of their wisdom and experience.

The older generation is a fund of wisdom and experience, of great potential value to immediate family and society as a whole

Guiding the community

The influence of intense positivity in national consciousness created by A Group for a Government will progressively eliminate stress and crime in the nation. On this basis the Natural Law Party will explore the possibility of reducing the expense and complexity of the legal system by turning over the judicial function to the older people in every community. With their experience and wisdom, older people are the ideal counsellors for the younger members of society. A Natural Law Party government will restore them to this rightful place of honour as the guides of society. When the legal system is simpler and we are judged by the wisdom of our elders, justice will be quick, fair and inexpensive. We will also give older people more opportunity to help in education of young people. This will relieve the pressure on teachers and allow children to benefit from the wisdom of the elderly. There are many areas of society to which older people can contribute - we will give them the opportunity.

6. SCIENTIFICALLY VALIDATED PROGRAMMES

Extensive scientific research on the education and health programmes of the Natural Law Party has shown increased intelligence, creativity, and job performance and satisfaction, as well as improved health, greater happiness and well-being, and reduced stress (please refer to the sections on Health and Education). Other research has validated the effectiveness of our programmes for reducing crime, violence, and turbulence in society (please refer to section on A Group for A Government).

In a well controlled, random assignment study, elderly subjects practising the Transcendental Meditation technique lived longer than non-meditating controls. Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, 57 (1989): 950-964.

NATIONAL HERITAGE

1. NATURAL LAW HAS TWO VALUES

Natural Law is very simple; it is very intimate to life. Natural Law has two values: its holistic value through which the entire universe is administered according to the principle of least action; and its specific variations which are lively in localised regions of time and space.

These localised values of Natural Law are the basis for all the diverse climatic and geographic conditions of our planet, which in turn give rise to the rich cultural diversity of every nation. The holistic value of Natural Law maintains unity and integration among all the diverse specific values of Natural Law.

By enlivening in national consciousness the Unified Field of Natural Law, the Constitution of the Universe, which is the source of both the holistic and the local laws of Nature, the Natural Law Party's programmes nourish cultural diversity while simultaneously strengthening the unity between all cultures. When each cultural group is strong within itself then it will not feel threatened and can live in harmony with its neighbours. Likewise, every religious group will flourish, and conflict between religions will come to an end. This will lead to a strong and integrated nation.

The all-pervading, all-positive field of Natural Law nourishes the rich diversity of different cultures while creating unity among them all Conferences and legislation alone cannot maintain the richness of every aspect of national, local and ethnic culture in Britain. The solution is to enliven the support of Natural Law for all areas of national life, thereby strengthening every aspect of culture while creating unity among them all.

2. FULFILMENT TO THE ARTS

The Natural Law Party regards the purpose of art as the expansion of happiness. Art is a celebration of life and great art can give us direct experience of the deepest values of life. This is why there is such a natural attraction to the arts.

The Natural Law Party will introduce new elements from Maharishi's Vedic Science into the study and practice of the arts which will enliven the full potential of creative intelligence in individual awareness. This will promote all creative styles while allowing distinctive cultural perspectives to retain their own individuality and status.

The Natural Law Party will actively promote the best of existing styles of creative expression in all areas of art, design and performance. At the same time, we will promote the great variety of cultural values present in Britain today from all over the world and from various times in the past. In particular, we will support approaches which are fully in accord with Natural Law, such as Maharishi Sthapatya Veda (the ancient Vedic Science of architecture, interior design, construction and environmental design, see section on Housing and National Planning, and Maharishi Gandharva Veda, (the ancient Vedic Science of music which creates balance in Nature, eliminates stress in the atmosphere, and produces a healthy influence for the individual and peace for the world).

3. INNER GLORIFICATION LEADS TO OUTER GLORIFICATION

Natural Law Party programmes will glorify the inner life of every individual. This will naturally express itself in a desire to glorify the outer environment.

The Natural Law Party will encourage artists to collaborate with architects and planners to beautify urban environments with works of art, parks, lakes and gardens. A more richly decorated environment will uplift everyone, and it will be a natural attraction for tourists. Awards will be given to communities that create beautiful environments attracting large numbers of visitors.

4. VEDALANDS -- WORLD-CLASS THEME PARKS OFFERING ENLIGHTENMENT, KNOWLEDGE, AND ENTERTAINMENT

In order to fulfil the growing enthusiasm of the population for theme parks that promote both entertainment and knowledge, a Natural Law Party government will sponsor the creation of Vedic educational theme parks - Vedalands.

Through a great range of exhibitions, rides, displays and shows, using the ultimate in modern technology, ancient wisdom, and magical illusion, the Vedalands will entertain the senses, stimulate the intellect, arouse the emotions, and enliven consciousness.

Libraries, art galleries and museums

The Natural Law Party supports the development of greatly enhanced library facilities for the whole population, using all aspects of modern technology and communications. We will ensure that the total range of knowledge of Natural Law, both modern and ancient, is available to everyone. Likewise, the Natural Law Party will encourage support for art galleries and museums, and ensure that the very best facilities are available for maximum appreciation of the rich diversity of culture, ancient and modern.

5. ROLE OF THE MEDIA

The content of the national print and broadcast media inevitably reflects the quality of life in society as a whole. We cannot blame the media alone if their reports are dominated by negative and depressing material.

The Natural Law Party, along with the majority of the population, would like to see more emphasis on positive reporting in the media, but our approach is more fundamental than mere persuasion or legislation. Through the implementation of the full range of policies of the Natural Law Party, the life of the nation will be transformed, glorifying all aspects of the inner and outer life of everyone. The increased creativity, inspiration and happiness in national consciousness will naturally be reflected by the media.

When the nation is transformed into a more loving and supportive society, then the media will reflect that transformation in terms of more positive reporting, greater inspiration and greater justice to all people.

The Natural Law Party believes that the media should not be in the hands of either the government or the opposition. It should be fully independent. In this way, it can fulfil its own long held and laudable goal to reflect equally and impartially the views, hopes and aspirations of all the groups that make up our nation.

6. NEW SOURCES FOR THE FUNDS THAT ARE CURRENTLY BEING RAISED BY THE LOTTERY

The Natural Law Party believes that the national lottery, which encourages gambling and thereby destabilises the hearts and minds of the people, is not an appropriate means through which the government should raise funds. To provide additional funding to the areas currently supported by the proceeds of the national lottery, we will encourage local and national initiatives to raise sponsorship and donations. Such an approach to the funding of the arts and other areas will involve people more deeply because they will see more directly the benefits of their contributions. This will help to create a more loving and supportive society.

7. ENCOURAGING PARTICIPATION IN SPORTS

A Natural Law Party government will encourage individuals of all ages to take part in sport for the sake of their health, vitality, psycho-physiological balance and social well-being. Different individual constitutions are suited to different sports. Therefore a greater range of sporting facilities will be made available to the public to meet the demands of different groups. We will develop local and national initiatives to fund both the facilities and the training in different sports.

In particular, we will ensure that Britain's sportsmen and women are not left trailing behind their international competitors because of inadequate support.
