EUROPEAN MANIFESTO 1999

*Natural Law Unites - creating a truly unified
Europe as the first step to a
United World*

INTRODUCTION

Dr Geoffrey Clements
LEADER OF THE NATURAL LAW PARTY

"AT THE TIME OF THIS EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT ELECTION, the Balkans war is creating the worst threat to stability in Europe for 50 years. At the same time, Europe is facing an invasion of another form; genetically modified crops and foods are being thrust upon us, with almost no regard for the wishes of the public or the risks to our health or the safety of the environment.

The Natural Law Party has effective, scientific solutions for these and the other serious ongoing problems in the life of the nation, Europe and the world. The crisis in Yugoslavia can be resolved. The formula of creating a group of experts in Yogic Flying will produce an immediate and lasting effect. Stress and incoherence will subside, and be replaced by harmony, integration and peace.

Our campaign to ban genetically modified crops and foods is based on sound scientific principles. This campaign is being conducted by the Natural Law Party throughout the EU, and in a total of over 70 countries around the world.

The old policies of the old parties will yield the same old problems. The new scientific programmes and policies of the Natural Law Party can create a united problem-free Europe as the first step to a united peaceful world."

"The policies of the Natural Law Party are not a luxury. Bringing life in accordance with Natural Law is absolutely essential for our individual and collective well-being, and our very survival."

Peter Warburton, DEPUTY LEADER

"The Natural Law Party is the only party that offers a bright future for everyone, based on proven programmes, creating a crime-free, disease-free, pollution-free, problem-free nation, Europe and world."

Richard Johnson, CHAIRMAN

"Our programmes enliven the nourishing and evolutionary values of Natural Law to restore and maintain the health, happiness and harmony of the family of the nation."

Patricia Saunders, DEPUTY CHAIRMAN

"The European Union is a vast and complex project. Its success can only be assured if collective consciousness is made highly coherent by a group of 7000 Yogic Flyers."

John Collins, DEPUTY CHAIRMAN

EUROPEAN MANIFESTO 1999

UNITY AND SOVEREIGNTY

Creating a European Union of truly sovereign nations – the first step to a peaceful united world

The Natural Law Party offers a reliable and scientific programme that will fulfil the fundamental objectives of the founding of the European Union – the creation of real and lasting unity, peace, and prosperity

However, the Natural Law Party places as a priority the principle that the member states must not sacrifice their sovereignty for the sake of the European Union. Unity and harmony cannot be achieved in a state of dependence. Only strong, integrated, sovereign nations can contribute towards a European Union that has true meaning and is of value to its member states. The Natural Law Party emphasises that union cannot be accomplished by political means, as demonstrated by the recent history of the EU. Unity cannot be legislated for; neither can it be legislated against. Only Natural Law can create a united Europe of sovereign nations, just as Natural Law strengthens every cell and every organ in the body while maintaining the integration of the whole body. Only the invincible evolutionary power of Natural Law can promote the tendencies, wishes and needs of each country at the same time as supporting the collective interests of the Union as a whole.

The basic cause of all problems, sickness and suffering is the violation of the laws of nature.

When billions of people violate innumerable laws of nature every day, it inevitably leads to the accumulation of stress, conflict and failure in society. The policies of the Natural Law Party utilise the complete scientific knowledge of Natural Law available today to bring all aspects of life fully in accord with Natural Law. The fundamental programme of the Natural Law Party is the Vedic technology of consciousness brought to light by Maharishi Mahesh Yogi

This technology includes Transcendental Meditation and Yogic Flying. More than 600 scientific studies have been conducted at 200 research institutions in 30 countries showing the benefits of this technology in all areas of life, bringing the life of the individual and society in tune with Natural Law.

Over 40 of these scientific studies demonstrate that a group of experts in Transcendental Meditation and Yogic Flying can dramatically reduce negative social trends, such as crime, sickness and economic failure and to enliven coherence, integration and stability in society. These studies clearly show that a group of 7000 people practising Transcendental Meditation and Yogic Flying will create a positive transformation in the life of the whole continent.

On the individual level, the practice of Transcendental Meditation and Yogic Flying creates an effect of increased integration and coherence of brain functioning and decreased stress. A group of experts in these programmes generates an effect of coherence in the collective consciousness through which the same benefits can be experienced for society as a whole.

The Natural Law Party will therefore immediately establish such a 'coherence-creating' group of 7000 people in Europe and national groups in each EU country. Unity among nations will automatically be created through the unifying influence of Natural Law throughout the continent, while the sovereignty of each nation will be upheld and strengthened.

The Natural Law Party's scientifically validated policies will raise the administration of Europe to the level of the administration of Nature, which provides both for the needs of the whole and for the needs of every part without any conflict of interest. The decisions of the EU member states will be supported by the party's coherence-creating programme. With a truly integrated and positive European collective consciousness, each member state's choice would be both in its own interests and in the best interests of all other member states.

EUROPEAN MANIFESTO 1999

SOVEREIGNTY INSTEAD OF SUBSIDIARITY

The principle of sovereignty should take precedence over the principle of subsidiarity

The Natural Law Party believes that the principle of subsidiarity in the EU should be replaced by the principle of putting first the sovereignty, independence and self-sufficiency of every member state. If the collective consciousness of Europe is integrated, and the national consciousness of each nation is strong and self-sufficient, then new policies will naturally be in favour of all nations and the Union as a whole.

A harmonious and well-functioning European Union will only become a living reality if none of its sovereign member states are forced to accept a treaty or directive from the Union at any time, and if every decision that can be taken at the national level is taken at the national level.

For any European treaty each country should have the freedom not to participate, or to do so at a later date (as, for example, has already happened with Economic and Monetary Union or the Schengen Treaty). No country should be forced by the European Union to adopt a policy that it does not like. It will also be necessary to develop a satisfactory mechanism for member states to modify their participation in a treaty they have already joined, in case the conditions of the treaty are no longer acceptable to the nation.

EUROPEAN MANIFESTO 1999

COMMON FOREIGN POLICY

Nourishing stability, progress, unity and peace in the world

John Collins

FOREIGN AFFAIRS SPOKESMAN

The implementation of the Natural Law Party's programme to create a truly peaceful and united Europe will be the foundation for the unique common foreign policy for the EU advocated by the Natural Law Party.

The Natural Law Party believes that the EU should treat all other nations in the world in the same way as it treats its own member states – using the proven technologies of Natural Law to promote peace, progress and unity among the world family of sovereign nations.

As described in chapter 1, the party's 'coherence-creating' programme provides the key for creating integration and peace within the EU while maintaining fully the sovereignty of member states. The same programme, utilising the profound technologies of Natural Law, will also be used to create the ground for harmonious and constructive relationships between the EU and all other nations. Establishing one group of 7000 'coherence-creating' experts in Europe will go a long way to achieve this according to the scientific research. However, as a safety factor, the Natural Law Party proposes that the EU should finance a similar group on every continent. This will create an indomitable unifying influence throughout world consciousness and maintain perpetual world peace and harmony. Establishing these groups is the first priority of the EU common foreign policy advocated by the Natural Law Party.

In general, the EU foreign policy and foreign aid programmes of the Natural Law Party will always incorporate proven policies and programmes that are truly nourishing and life-supporting, promoting only progress and self-sufficiency and never increasing long-term debt and dependency for any nation. For this reason, foreign aid will always be linked to educational programmes that develop full creative potential and provide essential training and skills.

A Complete Ban on Arms Exports

The Natural Law Party also stands for a complete ban on arms exports, on the basis of the principle, "As you sow, so shall you reap" which in this context serves as a warning that the destroyer will be destroyed. Earning one's income by selling the means of destruction in the world will inevitably bring the same influence back home, leading to increased conflict, crime and destruction in one's own country.

EUROPEAN MANIFESTO 1999

COMMON DEFENCE POLICY

Creating invincible defence by maintaining a coherence-creating group in Europe and on every continent

Dr Nigel Kahn

DEFENCE SPOKESMAN

Security and invincible defence will never be established by amassing arms, but only by creating lasting and stable peace in the world.

The only true security for Europe, both internal and external, lies in securing the real friendship of all other nations, not in posing a bigger threat with a large and well-armed military.

The Natural Law Party therefore supports the idea of a common defence policy for the European Union, but not the maintenance of a common military force. On the basis of its prevention-oriented approach to defence, the Natural Law Party proposes that the EU should maintain a coherence-creating group of 7000 experts in Maharishi's Transcendental Meditation and Yogic Flying in Europe, and a similar group on each continent. The extensive scientific research on these programme shows that this will raise integrity, stability and harmony in world consciousness to such a degree that regional or international conflicts will simply not arise.

In this situation, there will be no need for a European military task force for use in the context of conflicts within the EU, between the EU and other regions, or in any part of the world. The coherence-creating groups maintained by the EU on all continents will be a true 'peace-keeping' force, securing the immunity of Europe and all parts of the world from hostility and conflict, and maintaining harmony among all nations.

This is the only intelligent basis for a sound common defence policy. The Natural Law Party's unique programme to create and maintain world peace renders obsolete the present EU debate on the framework for military alliance, including the involvement of Nato, the WEU, or the so-called "partnership for peace".

The war in Yugoslavia

The war in the Balkans emphasises the need for a fundamentally new and effective approach to solve international crises. The United Nations is clearly ineffective in its role as international peace-keeper, and the large military powers and military alliances such as Nato are taking upon themselves a unilateral mandate to use military action. This approach displays a mode of foreign policy that says: "If you do not conform to my idea of internal and foreign policy, I will bomb you."

Military action not only reveals a distinct lack of intelligence, it poses an enormous danger to the world; violence always begets more violence.

The military powers involved in the Nato attacks on Yugoslavia can expect not only that more violence will erupt in the Balkans, but also that the balance of power in the world will become dangerously destabilised. There is an eternal principle "As you sow, so shall you reap." Therefore, an upsurge of acts of violence and negativity must also be anticipated in the Nato nations themselves.

There is no doubt that oppression and cruelty has been prevalent in Yugoslavia; however, further acts of violence will only serve to worsen the situation and pose the greatest threat to peace and international security seen for many decades.

The scientifically validated programme to create peace based on establishing a coherence-creating group of experts in Transcendental Meditation and Yogic Flying is no longer a luxury, or something that can be evaluated at leisure. How long can anyone stand idly by, knowing that an effective and reliable solution is available when there is the danger that the fire of war will burn more savagely and spread further in Europe and in other parts of the world? The Natural Law Party will – whether it is elected into office or not – place as an urgent priority the creation of permanent groups of coherence-creating experts in Yogic Flying. The immediate need is for a group of 2000 experts, to neutralise the stress in the Balkans region; the next priority is to establish a permanent group of 7000 to guarantee the future peace of the world.

EUROPEAN MANIFESTO 1999

ECONOMIC AND MONETARY UNION

Securing a stable foundation for Economic and Monetary Union

Anthony Hardy
SPOKESMAN FOR ECONOMY

For several years the Natural Law Party has maintained that under the wrong conditions Economic and Monetary Union (EMU) could have disastrous consequences for the economies of all member states and the EU as a whole. It is highly dangerous to impose EMU when the EU is undoubtedly not ready for it and it could easily jeopardise the future of the EU itself.

This is not only an economic issue but also an issue of sovereignty since the Euro will quickly undermine the sovereignty of member states. With incoherent European collective consciousness, EMU could easily create serious new tensions in Europe as the advantages and disadvantages become clear for different member states, and the people of disadvantaged regions begin to realise that it is an economic regime from which there is no easy escape. However, monetary union clearly also has advantages in that it provides stability for internal and international trade, it disallows predatory speculation on a national currency, and it disallows one nation from artificially manipulating its currency for unfair trade advantage.

The Natural Law Party therefore believes that the two most important requirements for EMU are: to create stable conditions under which it can work effectively, and to protect the sovereignty of each member state. To be effective, monetary union must be based on true stability of the economy of each member state. Economic stability cannot, however, be artificially contrived as is clear from the turbulent economic history of each EU country during recent decades. Economic stability and dynamism can be created only by strengthening the real basis of the economy, which means unfolding the full creative potential of the population, and creating coherence, integration and dynamism in the collective consciousness.

Now that a single currency has been implemented for eleven member states since 1 January 1999, it is very urgent to use the best means to bring stability to the new currency, the Euro. Since the coherence of collective consciousness is the real basis of the stability of the economy throughout Europe, the Natural Law Party strongly advocates the immediate establishment of a coherence-creating group in Europe.

Only with a stable collective consciousness, and through that a stable economy, will the Euro have a chance of becoming a stable currency.

On this basis, the Natural Law Party believes that the current purely economic criteria for EMU are quite inadequate and proposes an additional stability criterion: the stability of collective consciousness throughout the EU. This would apply both to countries already committed to joining and those who may wish to do so in the future. The Natural Law Party also recommends that the central banks of the eleven Euro countries should be maintained, and that the European Central Bank (ECB) should make its decisions in conjunction with them.

The Natural Law Party's policy is that EU member states should continue to be completely free to decide for themselves when and whether they wish to participate in EMU. The implementation of Natural Law programmes will not only create a stable foundation for EMU, but will also create the basis for full employment, as confirmed by extensive scientific research.

Regarding the decision pending in the UK about joining the single currency, the Natural Law Party's policy is first to apply nationally the new stability criterion of creating a coherent, stable collective consciousness, the basis of a stable, progressive, problem-free economy. While other parties discuss a timetable for monetary union on the basis of purely economic and political factors, we believe that a decision should be made only after the Natural Law Party's new stability criteria have been met. Only when there will be no risk of losing out should the nation decide to join.

The next step will be to make a democratic decision through national referendum. We suggest three options for the referendum:

1. To join the single currency, which will mean abandoning the pound and using only the Euro
2. To stay out of monetary union altogether and keep the pound
3. To use both the pound and the Euro, with the two linked by an exchange rate mechanism set by the UK government.

With the third option, the UK will be able to keep the pound as a symbol of national identity and maintain a degree of control over the national economy, while having the advantages of also using the Euro.

EUROPEAN MANIFESTO 1999

EU BUDGET

Resolving the EU budget crisis through increased efficiency and self-sufficiency

The enormous savings from the implementation of Natural Law programmes in the EU will lead to a dramatic reduction of over two thirds in the EU budget over a seven-year period. These savings will be derived mainly from the elimination of agricultural subsidies, the reallocation of structural funds, and the simplification of administration.

There will be additional savings wherever Natural Law Party policies are applied on a national level in any member state leading to substantial reductions in crime, sickness, economic failure, and other problems. These savings will be at least £945 billion a year within four years, and will facilitate the Natural Law Party's stated objective of phasing out vat and cutting total taxation dramatically in all member states.

Of course, there will be costs involved in the implementation of Natural Law programmes but these will easily be covered by the existing allocation of funds in each specific area. For example, the establishment and maintenance of the 'coherence-creating' groups of 7000 people in Europe and on each continent (see section on Unity and Sovereignty) can be financed out of existing funds allocated to development aid, and will in fact be the most fundamental contribution to sustainable development and peace in the world.

The great savings resulting from the implementation of Natural Law programmes, combined with the party's low-tax policy, will also help to resolve the current debate about tax harmonisation in EU countries.

STRUCTURAL FUNDS:

Promoting progress and self-sufficiency in all regions of the EU

The Natural Law Party will implement a completely fresh approach to the subsidies supplied by the EU through structural funds. Of course, the ideal of helping the weaker regions in the EU should in principle be maintained. However, the Natural Law Party believes that financial assistance should always be linked to the implementation of Natural Law programmes to resolve the specific problems on a long-term basis.

The Natural Law programmes will include projects to increase coherence and positivity in the collective consciousness of the region, as this is the basic prerequisite for economic growth, and one which is universally overlooked in existing economic and personal development programmes.

This approach will bring self-sufficiency to the region in need, and prevent repeated relapses into the same problems. In addition, special task forces skilled in the use of the Natural Law Party's programmes in specific areas – education, preventive health care, management, etc. – will be employed to help implement training and other programmes to eliminate the specific problem and promote progress. In this context, the Natural Law Party believes that assistance should be given preferably in the form of interest-free loans or, in exceptional cases, subsidies. The aim will be to make the recipient self-sufficient within a reasonable period of time. It will be the policy of the Natural Law Party not to grant subsidies permanently, but just for the limited time necessary to raise the region/country to the level of self-sufficiency and sustainable growth.

LOWER TAXATION

Reduced taxation through simplified government and effective Natural Law policies

The Natural Law Party supports a low taxation policy, since cutting taxes is the best way to stimulate economic growth. The principle is: "Create more wealth and feel free to enjoy it." Through the simplification of government and the implementation of scientifically proven Natural Law programmes to reduce crime, sickness and other problems, there will be substantial savings to government which will facilitate a dramatic reduction in taxation. On a European level, the Natural Law Party will begin by phasing out vat completely.

CREATE FULL EMPLOYMENT AND A STABLE FLOURISHING ECONOMY

We will introduce Natural Law-based principles of business and industry that unfold the full creative potential of everyone and support and promote progress on the ground of pure, pious principles, nourishing everyone and damaging no one.

SAVINGS FOR THE EU WITH NATIONAL LAW PROGRAMMES

Through the programmes of the Natural Law party, at least £945 billion a year could be saved from the budgets of the EU and its members states within four years (in Britain alone, this would amount to £108 billion). this is approximately 30% of all expenditure necessitated by problems in the areas listed below.

Health£485 billion
50% less health care costs, in private households and in businesses

Crime£214 billion
25% less crime

Economy£107 billion
20% less absenteeism, less alcoholism, less conflict at the workplace

Social Security and Unemployment£82 billion
20% reduced costs, less poverty and unemployment through a flourishing economy

Traffic accidents£35 billion
25% less traffic accidents

Other factors£22 billion
Simplified administration, etc.

EUROPEAN MANIFESTO 1999

AUTOMATION IN ADMINISTRATION

Increasing efficiency and reducing bureaucracy in the EU

The theme of Natural Law government can be summarised in the expression "Automation in Administration". The Government of Nature operates with supreme efficiency, using what is known in physics as the "principle of least action".

Nature's intelligence spontaneously computes the path of minimum effort for any action.

Through this principle of supreme economy, the whole of the universe is silently and efficiently governed. The Natural Law Party applies this principle in designing its approach to administration and setting policy in each area. Effective government is streamlined government; it absorbs as little as possible of the taxpayers' money in conducting its tasks silently and efficiently. Nowhere is this principle more needed than in the affairs of the European Union. Precious financial resources from each country are needlessly spent in simply maintaining the over-manned, over-complex, and inefficient bureaucracy of the various components of the European administrative machinery.

Not only is an overly bureaucratic administrative system expensive; it is actually less able to fulfil its mandate to serve the people than a slimmer administration. There is so much inertia within the system as it administers itself that little energy is available for its external functions. The extent of inertia has recently been illustrated by the inability of the Commission to respond to the auditors' report on the EU accounts showing widespread fraud and misuse of funds resulting in the resignation of the Commission as a whole.

The Natural Law Party would therefore take all necessary measures as soon as possible to make the administration of the European Union efficient and proficient in serving the peoples of Europe.

The Natural Law Party is particularly well placed to achieve this objective since its scientifically proven policies will reduce and eventually eliminate the problems that occupy so much time and attention of the EU administration – failure and problems in all areas of the economy, agriculture, law enforcement, immigration etc.

NATURAL AGRICULTURE

Making agriculture natural, healthy and in favour of the farmer, the consumer and the environment

Mark Griffiths

Dr James Brewster
AGRICULTURE SPOKESMAN

The hazards associated with the transformation from traditional farming to industrialised, agrochemical-dependent farming have clearly been exacerbated by the economic framework set by EU Agricultural Policy. The artificial constraints set by EU Agricultural Policy have often resulted in even higher usage of chemicals, as well as over-production and waste, and a loss of the traditional diversity of crop production. The Natural Law Party will implement an urgent and complete reform of EU Agricultural Policy to rectify these imbalances – reforms that will be far more substantial and address the problems on a much deeper level than anything being undertaken in the EU at the moment. The aim will be to encourage sustainable systems of farming, minimise bureaucratic intervention to farmers and promote organic agriculture, fully in alliance with Natural Law, while restoring the responsibility, self-sufficiency, and prestige of farmers.

To achieve these objectives the Natural Law Party's policy will be to phase out EU agricultural subsidies over a period of seven years, at the same time as implementing a new approach that promotes a transformation of agriculture in Europe to natural, sustainable systems of agriculture, particularly organic systems. To facilitate this, agriculture subsidies will be phased out first for conventional agriculture and some of the funds transferred to research projects to develop natural sustainable systems of agriculture and to make them more productive.

There will be regular reviews of the success of this important transformation of European agriculture in the direction of creating natural, healthy food for everyone. While the goal is to phase out subsidies, attention will be given to areas in special need in order to ensure that they still receive essential support either on a European or national level.

An important aspect of the transformation will be to use a part of the savings for special education and training for farmers and the general public. Farmers will be introduced gradually to the importance of Vedic farming – Natural Law-based farming – and to programmes that will bring the consciousness of the farmer in accord with the nourishing power of Natural Law. The Natural Law Party's educational programmes will restore the dignity of farmers in the eyes of the public and raise the awareness of everyone to the importance of natural food for every aspect of health and the environment. This will include alerting everyone to the fact that fresh and locally grown food (not transported over long distances) has profound health benefits for the consumer and is an important way to protect the environment. The high standard and quality of such future agricultural production in Europe must necessarily be protected against imports of products of inferior quality from outside Europe.

As agricultural subsidies are reduced some of the funds will also be transferred to integrated rural development programmes that will strengthen the economic and social vitality of the EU's rural areas while restoring and protecting the natural environment. A complete ban on genetically modified foods

The Natural Law Party will place an immediate and total EU-wide ban on all genetically modified agricultural products, including field trials, commercial production, and imports

The party believes that there is no alternative to a ban because of the serious, scientifically established hazards of GMOS for human health, biodiversity and the environment. The emphasis for progress in agriculture should instead be on the readily available natural alternatives to provide healthy food for the whole population.

Public debate about genetically modified (GM) food has taken centre stage in many European countries this year, including Britain. With continuing extensive media coverage of the issues surrounding gm foods, people are better informed about the risks of gm foods, and opinion polls show clearly that the great majority do not want them. The Natural Law Party can take much credit for this situation since it was the first political party to take up this issue and has been actively campaigning world-wide for a ban on GM foods for several years.

EUROPEAN MANIFESTO 1999

EU ENLARGEMENT

Natural Law programmes are the only basis for successful EU enlargement

In the acceptance of new member states there must be two prerequisites. One is that the European Union is harmonious, prosperous and integrated within itself, and the other is that the new member has risen to an adequate level with a coherent, integrated national consciousness and the full support of Natural Law.

A strong, harmonious whole cannot be built by putting together incoherent parts.

Therefore the Natural Law Party proposes that Natural Law programmes should be implemented not only within each member state but also in applicant states. These scientifically validated programmes will enliven the support of Natural Law for each country, bringing economic growth and stability, strengthened national integrity, reduced crime, and improved health, education and national security. They will support national sovereignty and self-sufficiency at the same time as supporting harmonious relations between nations on matters of common interest. Only on the basis of developing these qualities can new countries join the EU without any danger of weakening the integrity and economic stability of the existing EU member states.

In order to facilitate this approach, a special Quality of Life index will be developed to assess progress both within the EU and in applicant states. The index will include a wide variety of measures, such as crime rates, sickness levels, pollution, economic stability and growth, the simplicity of administration, reduction of taxes, naturalness of agriculture, and signs of growing cultural integrity and improvements to the environment.

Europe is a beautiful mosaic of cultures, languages, races and values. If the national consciousness of each country is brought into alliance with Natural Law through the programmes of the Natural Law Party, then integration will proceed naturally and without struggle, while sovereignty is fully maintained.

NATURAL DESIGNS FOR EU BUILDINGS

All EU facilities to be built in accord with Natural Law

Many of the EU's problems arise from the fact that the buildings housing EU institutions have not been built using principles in accord with Natural Law. Modern architecture and planning fail to take into account subtle yet powerful factors that influence thinking, feeling and behaviour and affect health, vitality and success.

By contrast, Maharishi Sthapatya Veda, the world's most ancient system of architecture, offers a comprehensive and scientific approach, that brings the built environment in tune with the laws of nature and in harmony with the natural environment.

Maharishi Sthapatya Veda provides the precise knowledge and time-tested formulas to determine the right direction, right placement of rooms, and right proportion for any building.

The Natural Law Party will therefore make it a priority to ensure that all buildings used by the EU, including the facilities of the European Parliament and the European Commission, are constructed fully in accord with Natural Law, in order to provide a healthy and fully supportive environment for the European administration. This will transform the decision making of the EU institutions and create health, happiness, and prosperity for all the peoples of Europe

EUROPEAN MANIFESTO 1999

DEMOCRACY IN THE EU

Natural Law Party calls for an end to undemocratic election procedures

The Natural Law Party believes that election procedures should be as open and democratic as possible in order to bring in fresh, new ideas to create a better government. At present, in some EU countries there are very restrictive electoral requirements which in effect prevent new parties from entering the elections (for example, the requirement for very large numbers of signatures in Italy, Germany and Denmark). These restrictions serve the interests of the old parties, but keep valuable new ideas out of the election debate. The EU Natural Law Parties will therefore work in a concerted way to bring an end to restrictive and undemocratic election procedures, both for national and European elections in EU member states. Some basic requirements are obviously necessary, but for true democracy these should be minimal in every country.

In general, the Natural Law Party would like to see voting systems of absolute proportional representation so that every group in society and every party has a voice in government.

This will truly encourage the introduction of new knowledge and new solutions, rather than supporting just the failed approaches of the past. The administration of Natural Law will bring satisfaction to every citizen and not just to the majority.

SOCIAL CHAPTER

Fulfilling the EU Social Chapter through effective programmes for the economy

Patricia Saunders

SOCIAL AFFAIRS SPOKESWOMAN

The economic and social policies of the Natural Law Party will provide better conditions than those of the EU Social Chapter.

The Natural Law Party's programmes will fulfil the goals of the Social Chapter automatically, by providing the workforce with a good quality of life, good health, the opportunity to develop their full potential, and favourable and cordial conditions at work.

The Natural Law Party's programmes will result in a healthy economy, in which the principle of hard work is replaced by nature's principle of least action, the principle of economy in nature.

The principle of least action, found everywhere in nature, ensures that there is maximum result for the minimum expenditure of effort

EUROPEAN MANIFESTO 1999

RESOLVING NEW EU PROBLEMS

Only Natural Law policies can effectively tackle the new problems resulting from European integration

The existence of the EU has itself brought into being new legislative problems. For instance, the removal of border controls has created new forms of cross-border crime for which the existing policing and judicial systems are not equipped. Other difficulties arise where there are inequalities resulting from the application of single EU rules in the context of the widely-varying situations in the member states.

The policies of the Natural Law Party are ideal for tackling this situation, since they are not based on the specific legislative history of any one country, but on universal scientific principles of direct relevance everywhere. Scientific research also indicates that the Natural Law Party's practical programmes are well-equipped to solve the new European level problems. For instance, the crime prevention and criminal rehabilitation strategies of the Natural Law Party are equally applicable to the new transnational crime as they are to the more 'traditional' forms of criminality.

Likewise, the Natural Law Party's environmental programmes, which promote a rapid transformation to pollution-free and sustainable energy, transport, industry and agriculture, will also help to resolve quickly the serious new pan-European environmental problems.

Solving the problems of immigration and refugees

The 7000 groups of Yogic Flyers on each continent will also help to solve permanently the serious problems of immigration and refugees experienced in the EU. The Natural Law Party is actually the only party with a realistic solution to this problem, not by blocking the entry of people and making them unwelcome, but simply by making migration unnecessary. The only way to deal with the increasing movement of peoples from east to west and south to north is to improve the quality of life in the countries from which they are coming. Natural Law programmes will easily accomplish this and maintain a high degree of satisfaction and integration everywhere in the world, thereby resolving refugee and migration problems everywhere.

EDUCATION

Dr Jeremy Bowler

"Making education complete through the knowledge and experience of Total Knowledge – the knowledge of Natural Law"

Introduce Vedic education which provides Total Knowledge, unfolding the full potential of the Self, the Atma, of everyone, the ocean of knowledge, power and bliss. Every student will gain the ability to harness the infinite organising power of Natural Law and thereby grow in the ability to spontaneously think rightly and act according to the evolutionary direction of Natural Law, making no mistakes and not creating any basis for suffering.

SPECIAL NOTE: The Natural Law Party supports free full-time education for everyone up to degree level, and part-time education for all adults. Through the Natural Law Party's consciousness-based approach to education everyone can grow in wisdom and knowledge throughout their life. Universal free education is now quite feasible with the dramatic reduction in costs made possible through the development of digital satellite communications and the Internet. The global satellite university, Maharishi Open University, is a perfect example of what can be achieved. In stark contrast to the segmented education offered by existing universities, which develops only a part of the brain, this unique university offers to everyone in the world total knowledge for the total development of brain functioning, the basis of successful management of life.

NATIONAL PLANNING AND RECONSTRUCTION

John Renwick

"Reconstructing the nation to promote good health and good fortune; architecture and planning in accord with Natural Law."

The Natural Law Party aims ultimately to rebuild all cities and homes, including all government offices, according to the Vedic principles of Maharishi Sthapatya Veda – architecture, design, construction and planning that is fully in accord with Natural Law, connecting individual life with cosmic life and creating ideal living conditions on earth.

NATURAL LAW BASED ADMINISTRATION

Peter Warburton

"Creating conflict-free politics and problem-free government."

The Natural Law Party will introduce Natural Law-based administration – administration based on Vedic principles, consciousness-based administration – where the national administration, the national constitution, is supported by the Cosmic Constitution of the Universe which governs the infinite diversity of the universe without a problem – a perfect government with the ability to prevent problems and satisfy everyone.

HEALTH

Dr Geoffrey Mead

"Creating a disease-free society through prevention-oriented natural health care."

The Natural Law Party will achieve this through a scientifically proven approach – Maharishi's Vedic Approach to Health, natural prevention-oriented health care that includes healthy daily routine, nourishing diet, and harmonious behaviour. Today, the discovery of the Veda and Vedic Literature at the basis of the human physiology offers a perfect system of health care on the basis of the complete knowledge of Natural Law available within the inner intelligence of the body of everyone.

EUROPEAN MANIFESTO 1999

ENVIRONMENT

Mark Griffiths

"Creating a pollution-free environment."

The Natural Law Party promotes pollution-free industry, energy, transport and agriculture, and the introduction of Vedic programmes to eliminate the very basis of all pollution – the violation of Natural Law by the whole population.

EUROPEAN MANIFESTO 1999

FAMILY AND SOCIAL POLICY

Patricia Saunders

"Eliminating the causes of disintegration of family and cultural values."

Natural Law programmes will dissolve stress in collective consciousness and create an upsurge of happiness, harmony and stability in the family and community; supporting the Vedic principle of "Vasudhaiva kutumbakam" – "The whole world is my family" – and creating a world where every culture rises to express its full value while living in harmony with all other cultures.
